New Satellite Spurs Soviet Moon Hopes

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union stood Saturday a step closer to the moon as the heaviest payload ever put into orbit sent back data.

The space vehicle weighing 26,896 pounds appeared to be a test of the kind of orbiting vehicles that the Russians plan to use as way stations to a lunar landing. It was named Proton 1.

Extra Large Rocket

It successfully tested a new powerful booster rocket, possibly larger than anyone else's. The biggest American payload in orbit was 21,000 pounds.

The Soviet launching came Friday as the world was praising the success of America's Mariner 4 in photographing Mars. Transmitters on a Soviet Mars probe that was launched about the same time as Mariner failed months ago.

The official Soviet news agency Tass reported the Mariner success only briefly. But Saturday it collected favorable comment on Proton 1 from all over the world. The emphasis was heavily on beating the Americans.

After the brief original announcement of Proton 1, Soviet sources lapsed into their customary silence on an unmanned orbital launching. The only statement came from Sergei Vernov, corresponding member of the Academy of Sciences, who said that Proton 1 is in effect a cosmic ray station for registering particles of superhigh energy.

The announcement specified that the 26,896-pound weight did not include the booster rocket which probably also went into orbit. So the total weight hurled aloft was concealed.

Proton 1 is in an orbit ranging from 118 miles to 390 miles.

The largest weight sent into orbit by the United States was the instrumented final booster section of a Saturn rocket weighing 37,799 pounds. Only about 3,000 pounds of this was considered to be the spacecraft or payload, however.

The largest American payload, a dummy satellite of 21,000 pounds, was lofted last month by a Titan 3C rocket whose last stage weighed another 11,000 pounds.

U.S. Cautioned Not To Gamble On Viet Crisis

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Alexei N. Kosygin warned Saturday that the Communist world is prepared to meet every American raise in the stakes of war, that he considers "extremely dangerous" in Viet Nam.

...es must realistically ...ysics and politics ...on causes a corresponding ...counteraction," Kosygin said in a speech in the capital of Riga.

...ach new aggressive action in Viet Nam undertaken by the Americans is meeting and will inevitably meet a corresponding rebuff from the forces of national liberation and the Socialist states."

Kosygin's comments were believed to be substantially the same as those conveyed to Washington through U.S. roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman last week.

Washington has said that Harriman's talk with the premier Thursday was of interest but did not change the situation.

The Soviet government chief's hostile remarks on Viet Nam ended a short-lived lull in anti-American attacks by top Soviet leaders.

Mishap Fatal To Drag Racer

J. V. "Cue-Ball" Wales, a drag racer from New Orleans, was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Francis Hospital early today after crashing at the Harmon Raceway about 11:30 p.m. Saturday when his race car chute failed to open at the end of his run.

Wales was completing his run in the final elimination race of the AA/fuel dragsters event and was traveling in excess of 200 m.p.h. when his car chute failed to open and he went over an embankment at the end of the track and slid into a deep ditch.

The car was completely demolished.

Wales had won the race.

The body was to be taken to Mulhearn's for funeral arrangements.

Three In Family, Two Others Die In Area Crashes

By DIANE TAYLOR
World Staff Writer

Five persons, three of whom were members of one family, were killed in Northeast Louisiana accidents Saturday and seven others were injured.

Dead as the result of three separate accidents are Mr. and Mrs. Claude Mason and their 11-month-old daughter, Wanda Gail, all of Sicily Island; Mrs. Jacquelyn Green Boles, 36, of Fort Worth, Tex.; and Fred Rayner, 51, of Tioga.

Catahoula Sheriff's officials said Mr. and Mrs. Mason and their infant daughter were killed when Mrs. Mason lost control of the auto she was driving, causing the vehicle to collide with a truck about 1:10 p.m. Saturday one mile north of Jonesville.

Mason was 48 and his wife, Mrs. Letha Juneau Mason, was 42.

Injured Seriously

Another daughter, Dorothy, 15, was reportedly injured seriously and was taken to a Natchez, Miss., hospital. She was treated for fractures of the hip, arm and leg.

Two other daughters, Barbara Dianne and Claudine, escaped injury in the collision.

Dwayne Harris, 11, of Jonesville, a passenger in the truck, was injured and the driver, Oscar E. Montpelier, 31, of Rt. 1, Jonesville, was not hurt.

An accident involving a panel truck converted into a family camper claimed the life of Mrs. Boles, injuring her husband, Preston Boles, 36, two children, Louis Boles, 3, and Johnnie Minard, 12, and a fourth passenger, Jay Scott, 19. All were of Fort Worth except Scott who listed his address as Conroe, Tex. The injured were treated and released at Glenwood Hospital, West Monroe.

The Boles accident occurred on Interstate 20 near Calhoun about 7:50 a.m. Saturday, 1.1 miles east of the I-20 and U.S. Hwy. 80 interchange.

Investigating officers of Troop F, Louisiana State Police, said the truck left the road, ran along the shoulder, then returned to the road only to flip over on its side. Mrs. Boles was thrown from the truck and pinned beneath the wreckage when the truck overturned.

Officers theorized the woman either fell asleep at the wheel or was blinded by the sun. The rest of the party was asleep in the rear of the truck.

The body of Mrs. Boles was sent to Brister Funeral Home of Meridian, Tex.

LaSalle Parish recorded its first traffic fatality of the year at 4 a.m. Saturday when Rayner was killed when his pickup truck went out of control and crashed.

He was an assistant supply officer at the V.A. Hospital in Pineville.

Rayner's son, Gary, 14, a passenger in the truck, was injured seriously.

Investigating officers said the truck went out of control on La. Hwy. 28, four miles north of the Rapides-LaSalle line, turned over and skidded 300 feet. Rayner was thrown from the cab.

A triple funeral for Mr. and Mrs. Mason and the infant will be at 10 a.m. Monday at New Hope Pentecostal Church near Sicily Island with the Revs. Shelton Sharbono and W. R. Cripps officiating.

Burial will be at New Pine Cemetery near Sicily Island by Young's Funeral Home of Ferriday. The bodies will remain at the family residence at Sicily Island until time for services.

Mr. and Mrs. Mason are survived by four sons, Kenny, James E. and Clarence Mason, all of Sicily Island, and Charles Mason of New Orleans, and four daughters, the Misses Daisy, Dorothy, Claudine and Barbara Mason, all of Sicily Island; and two grandchildren.

Mr. Mason is also survived by his mother, Mrs. Rosie Mason of Enterprise; two brothers, Henry Mason of Picayune, Miss., and Elzie Mason of Enterprise; two sisters, Mrs. Maude Sampson of Picayune and Mrs. Ella Passman of Sicily Island.

Mrs. Mason is also survived by her father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. John Juneau of Sicily Island; two brothers, J. E. Juneau of Sicily Island and Micum Juneau of Ferriday; and a sister, Mrs. Lillie Mae Mason of Picayune.

French Deter U.S. Airplane Over A-Plant

PARIS (AP) — French and American authorities Saturday night investigated reports that an American plane had been intercepted by a French fighter in the probhibited area above the French atomic plant of Pierrelatte.

U.S. Air Force officials said information available was that the RF101, called by Communist governments a "spy plane," on a training mission from the Ramstein Air Force Base in West Germany, had not been "intercepted," but had merely been "identified" by a French patrol.

The incident, according to U.S. Air Force officials here, occurred in midafternoon Friday. They said the plane returned to its base normally.

The American officials asserted the plane had been in the general area of the Rhone Valley south of Lyon, but they said information available Saturday night was that the U.S. plane had not entered the prohibited zone around Pierrelatte.

Greek Riots Erupt Again; Scores Hurt

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Fresh rioting erupted in crisis torn Greece on Saturday night as the new government fought to quell disorder in this Atlantic alliance nation. Hundreds of demonstrators supporting ousted Premier George Papandreou fought with sticks and stones against helmeted, club swinging police in the streets of Salonika, Greece's second largest city.

Ambulances rushed scores of injured away from the clashes, which broke out when demonstrators, chanting "democracy" and waving placards with Papandreou's name, refused police commands to disperse.

Wants Demonstration

Even as Premier George Athanasiadis Novas braced his day-old Cabinet for the struggle, Papandreou gave the green light for what he called "peaceful popular demonstrations."

Pro-Papandreou and antigovernment rallies, held in several Greek cities in defiance of an official ban on outdoor demonstrations, erupted into violence Friday night. More than 100 persons were injured in downtown Athens as stone-throwing youths lit bonfires and police used tear gas.

With this in the background, Papandreou's words — however, carefully phrased — added to the tension. Soon after, a government spokesman said:

"All necessary measures have been taken to face any disturbances."

The political battle was not only shaping up on the streets, but also in Parliament and around King Constantine, 25, the monarch who ousted Papandreou, 77, in a surprise move Thursday night.

Athanasiadis Novas must go before Parliament for a confidence vote within two weeks. If he fails to win it, Constantine can try once more to get somebody to form a government. Then he may have to call elections.

The pro-Papandreou forces were leaving the way open for the king to retreat, not blaming him directly for the troubles. They said he had been ill-advised. But there were "Down with the king" slogans scribbled on walls in many parts of Greece, a country that once sent Constantine's grandfather and uncle into exile.

Only a week ago Greeks were drinking toasts to the royal family; Constantine's wife, Queen Anne-Marie, gave birth to a daughter, Princess Alexia.

The big question in Parliament was the allegiance of 170 deputies of Papandreou's Center Union party. So far 15 of them, including Athanasiadis Novas, have bolted Papandreou. These 15 make up the new government.

Andreas Papandreou, son of the former premier and his spokesman, told a news conference the 15 had been automatically expelled from the party and the other 155 remained loyal to his father. Andreas is a former economics professor at the University of California. He had American citizenship but renounced it to serve in the Greek Parliament.

Ecuador Junta Moves To Quell Restless Nation

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — Ecuador's nine-man Cabinet resigned Saturday to give the ruling military junta a free hand in naming new ministers more acceptable to the government's political opposition.

The resignations appeared to be an attempt by the junta to end the wave of disorders in Quito and the port city of Guayaquil through some gesture of compromise.

The junta's secretary-general, Hernan Donoso, said the ministers "expressed their willingness to resign so the military junta government can freely choose" replacements in about a week.

Business, student and labor leaders have been demanding the appointment of a civilian Cabinet to prepare for a constitutional assembly in three months. They also have asked for a general amnesty for jailed antigovernment demonstrators, the return of political exiles and an end to press restrictions.

The government meantime lifted a curfew in Guayaquil but martial law remained in effect.

Reports from Ecuador's second-largest city, said at least two students, a 12-year-old boy and a policeman were killed and more than 100 persons arrested in the past few days of disorders in Guayaquil.

B52s Called In Again To Harass Viet Cong

No 'Canals' Seen In Mars Pictures

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Two more of Mariner 4's closeups of Mars were released Saturday and the latest showed markings reminiscent of those on the moon.

The second and third photos, like the first, displayed broad, bright areas that probably are deserts. There was no sign of "canals" some astronomers say they have seen; no evidence of any form of life.

But the third and closest shot showed what obviously are bumps or depressions. They strongly resemble some of the shallow craters depicted in close-ups of the moon by Ranger spacecraft.

To Withhold Photos

Dr. William H. Pickering, director of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which built and guided Mariner, told a news conference that no more of an expected total of up to 21 pictures will be released "for a matter of weeks."

During this period, he said, engineers and computers will vastly improve the quality of the first three shots, and others yet to be relayed to earth as Mariner heads into orbit around the sun.

Pickering called the transmission of the photos across 134 million miles of space "a magnificent success" and a fitting climax to the United States' $200-million Mars exploration program — a prestigious first exceeding Soviet deep space efforts.

Here is a description of the pictures released Saturday:

No. 3 — The best so far. High contrast. Shows details as small as two miles across. Running down the left side of the frame is a series of markings, at least one of which could be a small crater, similar to those found on the moon. South of the crater is what looks like a long, shallow depression, or valley. The picture covers an area 175 miles by 310 miles, was taken from an altitude of 9,500 miles.

No. 2 — This photo, covering an area 186 miles by 550 miles, lies just north of the area covered by frame No. 3 and midway between the deserts Elysium and Amazonis. No major surface markings are visible in this frame, which overlaps into the area covered by the first picture.

Picture No. 1, released Thursday was man's first close-up photograph of another planet.

It shows a chunk of the edge of Mars and beyond that the dark void of space. It apparently is of a desert area known as Phlegra. It shows some smudges and surface markings. Details are not quite as sharp as in the two later photos, because it was taken from an altitude of 10,500 miles, at the start of Mariner 4's 25-minute north-to-south camera run last Wednesday night.

The first three pictures presumably could have shown evidence of life on Mars — had the evidence been in the form of objects two or more miles across.

They showed very few surface markings, and none of these seemed to indicate life. This strengthened belief that Mariner's shots are not likely to answer the ancient question of whether life actually does exist on the planet most like earth — and that further probes are needed.

Area Showers Possible Today

Thundershowers affecting about 20 per cent of the Twin Cities area have been predicted through Monday mainly during the afternoons and early evenings.

Warm temperatures are slated again today, with the high expected to be 90 to 96 and the low tonight, 70 to 75, following Saturday's extremes of 96 and 69 degrees.

No rain was measured at Selman Field Saturday according to FAA, but light rains were reported in other sections of the Monroe-West Monroe area.

Winds today should be west to southwesterly at five to 15 miles an hour.

Big Planes Bombard At Mang Yang Pass

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — B52 jet bombers of the U.S. Strategic Air Command blasted suspected Viet Cong positions at Mang Yang Pass Saturday in support of Vietnamese troops campaigning to clear a central highlands supply route.

A U.S. spokesman announced between 25 and 30 of the big planes from Guam dumped 500 tons of bombs in the joint effort to free convoys on Route 19 of Red harassment. The planes struck in clear weather.

The spokesman said this was the first time the eight engine B52s have ever been used in support of a ground operation, a tactical job ordinarily assigned to smaller craft.

Troops Converge

"We wanted to get a real good pattern on the target," he said.

As many as 5,000 Vietnamese troops were reported converging on the pass, 240 miles north east of Saigon. It is a bottleneck for traffic between the port of Qui Nhon and Pleiku, an inland center of resistance to Viet Cong efforts to take over the highlands.

The raid was the fourth staged in a month by the B52s from their base on Guam, 2,200 miles away. The three earlier strikes were saturation bombings of suspected Viet Cong holdings 25 to 35 miles north of Saigon in the D Zone jungle.

In Saigon, the U. S. Military Assistance Command supported, in conference with Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, a recommendation of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military government for an increase in American forces in Viet Nam.

"The figures are in the same ball park," U. S. Embassy spokesman Barry Zorthian told newsmen who asked about the extent of the recommended buildup.

Zorthian declined to comment on a Vietnamese press report that the Saigon regime asked McNamara Friday for 100,000 more U. S. combat troops. The American announcement on that request dealt only with "force levels."

The spokesman said Defense Department announcements have indicated about 83,000 U. S. servicemen are in Viet Nam or will be on the way. Current discussions concern additional forces.

Among the forces in Viet Nam, a U. S. Marine unit came under mortar and machine gun fire during an operation to clear an area southwest of the DaNang base, itself 380 miles northeast of Saigon. A spokesman said the Marines suffered light casualties. Viet Cong losses, if any, were not determined.

About 60 miles to the south, Viet Cong forces attacked three small Vietnamese government posts around Son Ha, a district town inland from the port of Quang Ngai. The spokesman said one post was overrun with undertermined casualties, but the others held.

Air operations within South Viet Nam included a bombing and strafing attack by four U.S. Air Force F1002 on a guerrilla encampment near Cholon, the big Chinese enclave that makes up part of the capital. The official description of the site was "15 miles southwest of Saigon Airport."

A briefing officer said a forward air controller reported 30 buildings and 10 guns were destroyed. Intelligence sources estimated a large number of Viet Cong were killed by the rain of rockets, cannon shells and 750 pound bombs. Specific casualty figures were lacking.

U.S. May Put More Planes On Guam Site

WASHINGTON (AP) — More B52 bombers may be sent to Guam if the use of the strategic-mission planes for tactical warfare in South Viet Nam continues at the present level or increases.

This outlook grew Saturday with the fourth mission of B52s to hit suspected Viet Cong targets within a month.

The latest mission, flown by up to 30 of the big planes, carrying 500 tons of conventional "iron" bombs, was described by U.S. military briefers as the first time B52s have been used in direct, coordinated support of a ground-force attack on a guerrilla area.

Could Set Pattern

If the operation proves successful, it presumably will be the pattern for other and perhaps more frequent strikes.

Should a swift confrontation occur and a general war flash up, the Guam component of the nuclear retaliation system could be out of the picture for vital hours.

The Strategic Air Command has an ample supply of B52s in its missile-bomber system. About 700 of the B52s are in operating squadrons or in inventory as spares.

Mrs. Garelick Dies; Rites Set

Mrs. Rosa Lee Garelick, 67, of 1512 Spencer Ave., Monroe, wife of a prominent certified public accountant here, died in a local hospital Saturday after a long illness.

Mrs. Garelick was the wife of Jacob S. Garelick, president of the Garelick, Bradley and Heller accounting firm here.

She was a native of Oxford, Miss., and had resided here since 1926. She was a member of the B'Nai Israel Temple.

Funeral will be at 10 a.m. today at Mulhearn Funeral Home with Rabbi Sylvin Wolff officiating. The body will be sent to Chicago, Ill., to the Weinstein Funeral Home for burial at Shalom Memorial Park at Talatine, Ill.

Other survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Maryanna Lynch of Woodland Hills, Calif., and Mrs. Bennie Gassin of Highland Park, Ill.; a brother, Herbert Abramson of Brinkley, Ark.; and a sister, Miss Gertrude Abramson of Log Angeles, Calif.

Photos Of Children Win Contest Prizes

Children predominated as subjects in the prize winning photos selected in the sixth week of the Monroe Morning World and News-Star sponsored local phase of the Newspaper National Snapshot Awards contest.

Amateur photographers and their winning black and white photos were:

1 — L. A. Henderson, 700 Hilton St., Monroe, with a refreshing scene showing a mountain stream flowing down from snow covered areas.

2 — Carroll R. Rountree, 2411 North 9th St., West Monroe, photo of cute baby peering out from blanket. It is captioned, "Hey! Mommie I'm Awake."

3 — Madge Kelly, 4002 Old Sterlington Road, Monroe, little girl holding medicine dropper up to mouth of puppy which she is holding in her lap.

Weekly prizes are first place $10, second $7.50, third $5, and fourth $2.50. At the end of the local competition which will run through the week of July 25, four top photos will be selected for grand awards of $12.50 each. These will be entered in the national phase of the contest where five paid vacation trips and 100 cash awards of $100 each are being offered as prizes.

Deadline for entries in this week's round of the contest is Thursday noon. Winners will be announced in the Sunday World. Entries should be addressed to Photo Contest Editor, Monroe News-Star-World, Monroe, La.

Each print should have the following information printed on back: Name and mail address of photographer, if negative is available, and if releases are available on any recognizable persons in the picture. Negatives should not be sent in, but kept until requested if they are to be entered in the national competition.

Contest rules which are published frequently should be followed in submitting entries.

Peking, Moscow Officials Arrive For Red Talks

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Teng Hsiao-p'ing, secretary-general of the Chinese Communist party, arrived here Saturday to represent the two principal powers in the Moscow-Peking feud at the congress of the Romanian Communist party. The congress opens Monday.

The presence of the two leaders in the Romanian capitol, together with Communist delegates from all parts of the world, raised speculation about high-level contacts to deal with the ideological rift in the Communist camp.

There were no immediate indications, however, that Brezhnev and Teng had any plans for meeting each other except on formal occasions during the five-day congress.

Both were given elaborate welcomes by members of the Romanian government and party hierarchy who obviously used the opportunity to emphasize their neutral role in the dispute.

Brezhnev and his delegation arrived Saturday morning by plane from Moscow and were greeted by Romanian President Chivu Stoica, Premier Ion Gheorghe Maurer and party chief Nicolae Ceausescu.

The same set of officials turned out to welcome the Chinese who flew in later.

An impressive array of East European leaders is expected, suggesting that a high-level meeting will be held.

Romanian sources said Polish party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka, East Germany's Walter Ulbricht and Premier Todor Zhivkov of Bulgaria also will attend the congress.

The Communist Chinese were certain to send a high-powered delegation. There was no immediate word, however, about its composition. Romania has steered a neutral course between Moscow and Peking in their ideological feud.

The congress will discuss the draft on a new Romanian constitution and a new party statute, both stressing Romania's economic and political independence of Moscow within the East European camp.

Brezhnev apparently has resigned himself to Romania's independent role, first announced in 1962 when Romania balked at then Premier Khrushchev's plan for economic integration of Eastern Europe.

Under the constitution, Romania will be elevated from a peoples republic to a Socialist republic and the party, hitherto called Socialist Workers party, will formally adopt the name Communist party.

SPOTLIGHTING THE AREA

Short Tours

With Jimmy Hatten

Welcome back, vacationing traveler. Now that you've seen the sights far and wide, how about taking a few short "weekend vacations" in your own North Louisiana?

Sure, you've seen it all before, or have you? Have you ever really, through the eyes of an "outsider" made it a point to linger at:

Lake D'Arbonne at Farmville, as pretty a lake as you'll see, a real fun spot for boaters and fishermen.

The old courthouse at St. Joseph, the design of which makes it seem as though it were from another land.

Dutch Gardens at Newellton, which has gained widespread recognition for its beautiful plantlife and its Old World setting.

The magnificent wilds of lower Catahoula Parish, where the great moss-covered oaks have not even an equal in South Louisiana.

The 2,000-year-old mystic Indian Mounds at Poverty Point, just outside Epps.

Beautiful Gum Springs just outside Winnfield, and nearby Carey Salt Mine, where workers make their living hundreds of feet underground amid gigantic pillars of salt.

Driskell Mountain in Bienville Parish, highest point in Louisiana, and a world away from the prairie - like flatlands of South Louisiana.

Two of the cleanest cities in Louisiana, by vote of judges, Columbia and Ruston.

How long has it been since you've seen Synope Plantation near Columbia, Chemin-A-Haute State Park near Bastrop, Grant's Canal at Lake Providence, the route of Grant's march through East Carroll, Madison and Tensas Parishes, the towering pines of Winn, the giant mailbox on U.S. 65 in Tensas, the one Billy Sol Estes crawled into shortly before he went to prison?

How long has it been, returning traveler, since you've seen all the sights of North Louisiana? Or have you ever seen them all? Take a look, you might have a pleasant surprise in store.

Colorado Vetoes Amendment On Succession

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Colorado Saturday became the first state to turn down the proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution on presidential succession.

The action came when a State Senate resolution to ratify the amendment failed to receive the two-thirds majority required for passage.

Nineteen senators favored the measure and 12 opposed it, but 24 votes were required for passage.

Voting for the proposal were all 13 Democrats present and six Republicans. Four legislators were absent.

The amendment, recently passed by Congress and submitted to the states, provides for selection by the president of a new vice president when that office becomes vacant and sets up a procedure under which a president can be removed from office temporarily for disability.

The provisions of the amendment drew some criticism on the grounds a president would have too much difficulty regaining the office to which he was elected after recovering from a disability.

The action came during a special session of the Colorado Legislature.

To become effective 38 of the 50 states must approve the amendment. Already approving it are Wisconsin, Nebraska and Oklahoma.

Citizens Council Offers Opinions On Race Trouble

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The South Louisiana Citizens Council Saturday reviewed what it believed to be the cause and cure of Bogalusa's racial troubles.

Jackson G. Ricau, president of the council, wrote to Gov. John J. McKeithen that the wrong people have been among the mediators, and outside agitators have "made certain that their spurious demands are never satisfied."

"We saw the storm warnings go up when James Farmer (national director) of the Congress of Racial Equqality came down to Bogalusa to agitate for the communist - Negro revolution," the letter to the governor said.

"Then Victor Bussie, labor leader, Camille Gravelle, who got into hot water as national Democratic committeeman for his integration tactics a few years ago, and state Sen. Michael OKeefe, integrationists all, were sent to Bogalusa to 'mediate' on the race issues."

"Perhaps now," the Citizens Council letter went on, "you will consider how the race problem can be solved in Bogalusa —or in any other trouble spot in the state."

Ricau's letter added that the first requirement is "to keep James Farmer and other outside agitators out of the state of Louisiana.

"You will then be performing your duty as chief executive of a sovereign state of the United States of America, and in so doing you will be protecting the state's white citizens as well as the colored citizens who want no part of James Farmer or other out-of-state agitators whose job is to keep the communist-Negro revolution going by making certain that their spurious demands are never satisfied."

Auto Firms Face Tire Quizzing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Automobile manufacturers will get a chance next month to answer accusations in a Senate hearing that they have been putting unsafe, substandard tires on their heavy cars.

The Senate Commerce Committee headed by Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., announced Saturday the invitations will go out as soon as a definite date, probably in the first week of August, has been set.

The automakers also have been subjected to critical quizzing in an investigation by a Senate Government Operations subcommittee investigating the rising toll of deaths on the highways.

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., presiding over this inquiry, plans to question Arjay Miller, Ford Motor Co. president, when the hearings resume Tuesday.

Magnuson's hearings will center on a bill introduced by Sen. Gaylor Nelson, D-Wis., and others, to authorize the secretary of commerce to establish uniform safety and grading standards for tires, including those placed on new cars as original equipment.

Paul Rand Dixon, Federal Trade Commission chairman, testified recently that tires placed on many new heavy sedans and station wagons are built to support a load of only three average-size passengers without luggage while the car is standing still.

Nelson, who subsequently wrote the manufacturers asking them to reply, said recently he is far from satisfied with their answers to the testimony. He said the letters amounted to a contention that the tires, as he put it, could be "overinflated" to carry capacity loads safely and that instruction manuals issued to buyers inform them of this.

Nelson contends that overinflation itself is dangerous and can lead to blowouts at high speed.

Dixon testified there is practically no way now for a car owner to know whether the tires he gets with a new car or buys subsequently are safe. He said one reputable company's top-grade tires may be less safe than the "third line" tires of another, and that even the tire dealers don't know which is which.

Senator Urges Speeding Pace Of Space Efforts

WASHINGTON (AP) — A quickening of the planned pace of U.S. space efforts was urged Saturday by Sen. Clifton P. Anderson, D-N.M.

Successful launching Friday of the 28,969-pound scientific space station by the Soviet Union was rated as "another substantial advance," by the senator.

Anderson, chairman of the Senate Space Committee, said the powerful Soviet booster means "that the Russian efforts in this field are continuous and successful."

"We may have to quicken some of our methods and programs if we are not left behind," the senator said in an interview.

Two Caldwell Youths Injured

COLUMBIA (Special) — Two Caldwell Parish teenagers were seriously injured late Friday night in a pickup truck mishap about three miles east of Grayson on the Grayson-Holum Road.

David Tarver, 18, driver of the truck, was given first aid treatment at the Caldwell Parish Hospital here, then taken to a Monroe hospital where he was reported to be suffering from a broken right leg and internal injuries.

Burton, 16, was admitted to Caldwell Parish Hospital where he was treated for lacerations and bruises on the head and was reported to be suffering from back injuries.

The accident occurred about 1 a.m. Saturday, the Caldwell Parish Sheriff's office said, when the Tarver youth lost control of his truck causing the vehicle to leave the highway, hitting several trees before coming to a halt.

Viet Ground War Wouldn't Help U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Almost inexorably, events in South Viet Nam appear to be pulling the United States into the kind of Asian ground war that many U.S. military men have felt could be fought only at great disadvantage.

This is happening because the South Vietnamese army has been unable to stem the growing power of the Communists who, some sources say, now exercise varying degree of control over about 80 per cent of the country.

The use of American air power in Viet Nam has not been enough, and now U.S. authorities are facing the unpleasant prospect that U.S. ground troops in greater numbers may have to be thrown into the breach.

President Johnson has been speaking recently in a way calculated to steel the nation for what may be a dramatic increase in U.S. involvement and possible mobilization of some National Guardsmen and reservists.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's mission to Viet Nam almost certainly will result in a boost in the 75,000 American servicemen now in Viet Nam or due there soon.

Total U.S. troop commitment could double before the end of the year. Nobody will hazard a guess as to how big the involvement will become. There have been estimates that 300,000 U.S. fighting men will be needed to prevent loss of South Viet Nam to the Communists.

This would put the Viet Nam war at about the level of the Korean War of the 1950s when a peak of 275,000 American soldiers and Marines and 47,000 airmen fought the North Koreans and Red Chinese.

But this would be an entirely different kind of war.

In Korea, there was a front and the enemy was met in conventional battle formation.

In Viet Nam, there is no front. The war has been likened to a cancer running through the entire country.

It is a mass of relatively small actions in which the enemy takes advantage of jungle cover to hit where he has local superiority in numbers, then fades back into the jungle.

The hit-and-run tactics generally used by the Viet Cong reduce the effectiveness of artillery, except where the Communists fight to overrun towns or military posts. But even there, the Reds strike usually at night, with surprise, and pull back after inflicting casualties.

U.S. airpower reportedly has caused the Viet Cong morale problems of their own.

But even the heavy weight of B52 intercontinental bombers dropping hundreds of tons of high explosives hasn't brought any appreciable change.

Soldiers and arms continue to infiltrate from North Viet Nam, despite heavy and almost daily air attacks on their routes.

The Communists have cut Viet Nam's roads and its single rail line so that the only way the South Vietnamese can move is by heavily protected and often ambushed — convoys.

U.S. military professionals recognize the challenges American forces woudl face in dealing with a guerrilla foe operating out of a jungle habitat.

While confident of the fighting quality, training and equipment of U.S. soldiers and Marines, these professionals have developed a deep respect for the tenacity and military competence of the enemy. They know he will be tough to beat.

Local Students Gain Honors At LSU In Spring

BATON ROUGE — Three Monroe students have been cited for top academic achievement at Louisiana State University during the spring semester.

Dr. Bernard F. Sliger, Dean of Academic Affairs, said 417 upperclass students on the Baton Rouge campus are on the Dean's List for making averages of 2.5 or better. A perfect grade at LSU is 3.0.

The list, which does not include students in the junior division, includes 73 students who made perfect grades last semester.

The three and their colleges are Susan Ferguson, Agriculture, and Lea Stamper Thompson and Nancy F. Wilson, Arts and Sciences.

Monroe Negro Drowns In River

The body of a Negro man who drowned in the Ouachita River Friday following a ferry accident at Duty, just northwest of Enterprise in Catahoula Parish, has been identified as that of Johnny Charles Looney, about 44, of Monroe.

The truck Looney was driving, loaded with brick, plunged into the river after the chains broke at the end of the ferry. He had ben attempting to back the truck onto the Duty ferry.

The accident occurred about 11 a.m., and the body was found about 8:30 p.m.

Looney was employed by Thursman Brick Company at 1300 Sterlington Road.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Miller Funeral Home of Monroe.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Martha Divers of Monroe.

Cardinal Critical

TORONTO (AP) — James Cardinal McGuigan, 70, archbishop of Toronto, suffered a heart attack at his home early Saturday and is in critical condition, his physician, Dr. Edward Brooks, said.

Whites Wash Off Pickets

BOGALUSA, La. (AP)—Civil rights workers paraded and picketed Saturday despite a barrage of fruit and eggs and a shower of soap suds.

About 200 biracial demonstrators marched on City Hall where they held a brief prayer service. Onlookers yelled and blew horns and pelted them with ripe tomatoes and eggs.

William H. Park, a white civil rights worker from Bogalusa, was arrested on charges of disturbing the peace by using obscene language, interfering with and failure to identify himself to a police officer. A young Negro girl also was arrested. Her name was withheld.

Earlier, about half a dozen pickets appeared at a shopping center at the same time as some storekeepers were washing their windows and sidewalks. Some of the pickets were dampened by the storekeepers.

Five white men wearing red and white regalia of the Ku Klux Klan walked through the city inviting people to attend a K rally Saturday night near Crossroads, Miss., a community about 10 miles from here. The five, all from Natchez, Miss., handed out cards which read: "The only reason you are white today is because your ancestors believed and practiced segregation."

The Klan rally was announced earlier this week at a meeting of backers of the National States Rights party, an anti-integration group.

John Doar, on a peacemaking mission in this mill town of 23,000 population, staged another round of talks with Negro and white leaders. Doar, who heads the Civil Rights Division of the Justice Department, came to Bogalusa two days ago after Mayor Jesse Cutrer wired the White House for help in melting down the racial tension of this southeast Louisiana community, 60 miles north of New Orleans.

Friday's civil rights march was turned back when clashes occurred, and 13 persons were arrested.

Gov. John J. McKeithen has met with white and Negro state leaders, and he called on them to make recommendations in restoring harmony. The governor also expressed apprehension over the possibility of the racial flame in Bogalusa flaring into other communities.

Jackson G. Ricau, president of the South Louisiana Citizens Council, wrote the governor that James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, "is a known troublemaker." Farmer's appearance here about a week ago launched a series of demonstrations.

Ricau called on the governor "to keep James Farmer and other outside agitators out of the State of Louisiana."

Earlier, McKeithen had said his office must have the backing of both white and Negro leaders in the state to offset forces trying to upset racial peace in Louisiana. McKeithen has been critical of outside civil rights supporters working in Bogalusa and Jonesboro. He also branded those sympathetic with the Klan as troublemakers.

A. Z. Young, the president of the Bogalusa Voters League, told a rally that picketing would be stepped up. He said he didn't want another march turned around.

Young said, "We are not going to send Negro blood down Columbia Street (the main thoroughfare) itself."

He told a newsman his group would do everything possible to prevent what he termed "a civil war." He added he wasn't pushing violence, "but I am saying, stand up and don't let these people run over you."

Doar refused to comment on progress of his talks with city officials and Negro leaders.

He was on the scene when angry whites waded into a picket line at a shopping center near City Hall on Friday and beat three biracial pickets to the ground.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge Herbert W. Christenberry enjoined the city in a sweeping injunction earlier from allowing violence to occur where pickets carried out their constitutional right to protest.

Area Teacher Gets Training As Librarian

BATON ROUGE (Special) — John T. Owen, a faculty member of the Waterproof Public School System, is participating in a program of library training at Louisiana State University this summer.

The nine-week Institute for Elementary School Librarianship, one of the first in the nation, is training 30 school teachers from 10 states to be elementary school librarians. Conducted by the LSU Library School in cooperation with the U.S. Office of Education, the institute is financed by a $45,000 grant authorized under the National Defense Education Act.

In most 12-year schools, libraries with trained librarians serve both the secondary and elementary grades. In elementary schools, the librarians are often regular teachers who have been assigned library duty and who have no special training, said Miss Norris McClellan, LSU professor of library science and director of the institute.

Owen has taught and served as part-time librarian at Waterproof High School for the past 11 years.

Couple Charged In Son's Death

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP) — A Navy couple was charged Saturday with murder in the beating death of their youngest child, 27-month-old Richard Hill.

Lauderdale County Chief Deputy Alton Allen said Airman 2nd Class Garvin R. Hill and his wife, Ida, were charged with "wilful murder" in the death of the infant son. The couple has three other children. They were ordered to a foster home by a county judge.

Sobbing, "I didn't do it," Mrs. Hill was led to the county jail with her husband, an 11-year veteran of Navy service.

Deputy Allen said the child was admitted to a Navy infirmary Friday with bruises of the face, neck and body. He said the child was dead when he arrived to investigate the case.

Allen said the father admitted beating the child after complaining of a discipline problem. The officer quoted the father as saying "the child would not eat."

Recuperating

Friends concerned about Miss Terri Rose Boyte, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everette Boyte of 1011 Evergreen, West Monroe, may visit the child in "about another week" in Room 325 at St. Francis Hospital. Her mother said the child had eye surgery this week after an accident in their home and that Terri is in satisfactory condition.

Popular

The word on the West Monroe Chamber of Commerce's upcoming Better Telephone Usage Clinic is that it may be so popular a second run will have to be scheduled.

Notices and reservation forms were mailed out Tuesday and the first return mail brought 49 favorable responses, officials report. Scheduled for 7 p.m., July 27, the clinic may have to be repeated for a second session on another date.

The idea of the clinic is to provide instruction for secretaries and others who frequently use business phones on avoiding practices that create unfavorable impressions.

Unique Sign

"Welcome to Skunk Hollow" is the lettering on the newest sign in the policemen's lounge in West Monroe.

Actually the sign is a unique guest register, with spaces provided for visitors who pop in for a cup of coffee or conversation to leave a signed record of their visit.

Dominating the format of the sign is a large pasted-on picture of a skunk.

Tradition

Two local young women are carrying on the military tradition of their families by enlisting in the Navy WAVES. Miss Carmen Terese Candiloro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Candiloro of 301 Fairway Dr., Monroe, and Miss Claire Elaine McGee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Parker Flynn McGee of 1815 McGuire St., Monroe have reported to the U. S. Naval Training Center for Women at Bainbridge, Md., before going to their first assignment. Both girls have brothers serving in the armed forces.

Ride Monorail

Recent riders at the New York World's Fair of the famous monorail were Mr. and Mrs. Claude A. Luttrell and Glenn, of 1204 Hinkle Dr., West Monroe.

The monorail operates over a 4,000-foot closed loop track, suspended 40 feet in the air, around the fair's lake area.

MARINER WINS

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) — The independent Helsingin Sanomat said Saturday that with the success of Mariner-4 "The United States is the undisputed winner in this round of the space race."

Fire Near Delhi Destroys Home

DELHI (Special) — A fire of undetermined origin destroyed the large frame home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Baker about six miles south of here at 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

Delhi firemen said no one was home when the fire broke out and that Baker was in an adjoining field working at the time. An unidentified neighbor called in the alarm which was answered by two Delhi and two Franklin Parish units.

Firemen said the home was completely engulfed with flames when they arrived at the scene.

Estimated cost of damages was not available.

CORE, NAACP Set Ultimatum In Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Gov. John McKeithen and Mayor W. W. Dumas Friday were given an ultimatum of acting on a list of integration demands within a week or facing demonstrations, picketing and lawsuits.

Making the demands were the Louisiana Congress of Racial Equality and the East Baton Rouge chapter of the National Association for Colored People.

A spokesman for the governor said McKeithen had not yet seen the ultimatum from CORE and the NAACP and would have no comment at this time.

Mayor Dumas said he was ready to meet with the two organizations "if they want to come down and meet with me and the biracial committee."

The letter by CORE to the governor urged him "to clean up your own house before trying to settle things in Bogalusa and other places."

This was an apparent reference to the governor's visits to Bogalusa and Jonesboro in an attempt to arbitrate racial troubles.

The groups demands on Mayor Dumas included:

— Improvement of the effectiveness of the city-parish biracial committee.

— Reopening of the city facilities closed to avoid racial integration.

Dumas said if the two groups are serious about wanting community progress "we will be glad to meet with them, but if they just want to create problems in our community to raise funds for any specific organization, I'm against it."

Dumas said he would probably answer the demands in writing Monday.

The demands made of McKeithen included:

— Hire Negroes at the state capitol above ""the broom and mop level

— Desegregate the capitol barber shop and remove "Jim Crow." signs over restrooms in the Louisiana motor vehicle building.

— Appoint Negroes to more than 22 boards and commissions in state government.

Johnson Departs For Camp David To Rest, Relax

THURMONT, Md. (AP) — President Johnson arrived late Saturday afternoon at Camp David, the presidential retreat in the Catoctin Mountains, where he plans a relaxing weekend.

Those accompanying the President on the 27-minute helicopter flight from the White House lawn included Mrs. Johnson, evangelist Billy Graham and author John Steinbeck and their wives.

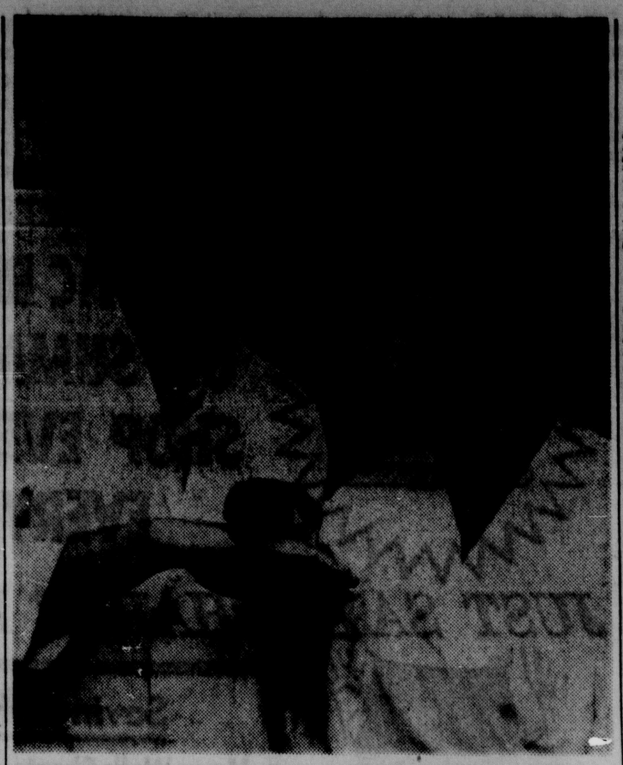
Two presidential assistants, Marvin Watson and Horace Busby, and their wives also were in the presidential party.

Johnson is expected to return to the White House tonight or early Monday.

The President expects to get in both some rest and work.

Johnson was busy at the White House Saturday, getting off a formal request to Congress, among other things, for a bill to set up a national teacher corps to help children in poverty areas in cities and rural districts and help Negro teachers who have been displaced.

White House press secretary Bill D. Moyers said the President spent several hours with members of his staff Saturday morning and then went to his office. He said he talked with Jack Valenti particularly about the pending immigration bill to wipe out the old national origins quota system. He also talked with Marvin Watson about some appointments for this week, with Horace Busby about funeral plans for Adlai E. Stevenson, and got in some work on forthcoming ambassadorial appointments.



LINA SUSAN CARLSON of Monroe (left) and Marcella Alpha of Morgan City take a moment from their research projects at Louisiana State University to play with a hamster named George. The coeds are participating in a specially designed summer program of undergraduate research in zoology at LSU.

Students Participate In LSU Research

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Lina Susan Carlson of Monroe is one of six undergraduate students chosen to pursue fullscale research in zoology at Louisiana State University this summer.

Normally, research is restricted to graduate students. The research participation project in zoology is designed to acquaint undergraduates at LSU and other universities with current methods, techniques and aims of research.

Directed by Dr. George C. Kent, LSU professor of zoology, the program is supported by a grant from the National Science Foundation.

Miss Carlson, who attends LSU in regular sessions, is doing research on the golden hamster under Dr. George Kent, LSU professor of zoology.

"As in past years, the students will be junior partners in their particular phase of the research," Dr. Kent said.

"They have their own research cubicle and are being given the same assistance in initial phases as beginning graduate students. The undergraduates are expected to become increasingly self-reliant after they have mastered techniques and have developed an approved experimental design."

Dr. Kent pointed out that in the past, excellent relations developed between undergraduate participants and the graduate group.

"These graduates have accepted on equal terms the younger students who participate in their social activities, casual discussions and informal conferences," he added.

The undergraduate researchers are attending the weekly departmental colloquiums and auditing one graduate seminar in a field related to their research.

LSU resources available to the young students include a large, modern department of Zoology and Physiology, a library with over one million volumes, one of the most complete collections of birds in the United States, greenhouses and air conditioned animal facilities.

Top High School Debaters Named At Area College

RUSTON (Special) — Exhibition debates were given by the top 16 student participants at the close of the sixth annual Louisiana Tech Debate Camp here Friday afternoon.

After hearing debates for eight days, the camp staff selected the leading high school debaters as follows:

Gaynell Gallo, Cheryl Hein and Shelly Schroeder of the Academy of Holy Angels, New Orleans; David Waddel and David Middleton of Woodlawn in Shreveport; Kathy Cerise, Vivian Babin, Janelle Dupont and Sheila Stein of Mt. Carmel, New Orleans; Pam Akins of LaGrange, Lake Charles.

Jim Dowling, Ruston; Bob Conrad of Jesuit, New Orleans; Kathleen Stakelum and Janis Suchand of Archbishop Blenk, New Orleans; Dinny Jensen and Ellen Holder of Broodmoor, Baton Rouge.

A record enrollment of 91 students of 20 high schools of Louisiana took part in the two-week program, according to Dr. E. R. Minchew, head of the Tech speech department, which sponsored the camp.

The purpose of the camp each year is to give experience, information and guidance to pupils who expect to debate the national high school question, Dr. Minchew said. The subject this year is "Resolved, That the federal government should adopt a program of compulsory arbitration in labor-management relations in basic industry."

Ships Called In For Viet Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Maritime Administration said Saturday it is pulling 15 commercial cargo ships out of the reserve fleet to carry cargoes to South Viet Nam.

It is being done "as fast as we can get them out," a spokesman said.

They include 14 Victory ships of 10,000-ton cargo space now at James River, Va., Hudson River, N.Y.; Beaumont, Tex., Mobile, Ala.; Suisin Bay, Calif., and Olympia, Wash.

The 15th is a C2, the Delaware, currently in operation under charter at San Francisco, assigned to the Bulk Transport Line.

HHH Pushing 2 Top Bills

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey is attempting to weld an urban-rural coalition that could bring congressional passage of an omnibus farm bill and elimination of state authority to ban union shop contracts.

These are two key measures of a half-dozen on which President Johnson has made it clear he wants action before Congress quits, possibly by Labor Day. Other bills on this "must" list include revision of the immigration law, aid for higher education, creation of an urban development cabinet department and doubling of the antipoverty outlays.

Humphrey has been talking like a Dutch uncle to new Democratic members of the House in a series of recent meetings. He has told them if they want to win again in the 1966 elections, they had better take home some accomplishments this fall.

He has told big-city members bluntly they won't get repeal of the Taft-Hartley law provision permitting states to prohibit the union shop—a top objective of organized labor—if they don't pitch in to help their rural colleagues.

Members from the country districts already have been to the well twice, producing the necessary votes for House passage of rent subsidies in the housing bill and for creation of a new urban affairs department.

They are now being told they will get the farm bill—aimed at improving farm income, reducing government-held surpluses and at cutting government costs—if they will cooperate on the union shop issue.

In an effort to make certain that everybody stays in line, the vice president has organized teams to canvass the members. Each state has a captain who makes periodic reports to him.

The Humphrey effort, which has the solid backing of Johnson, goes beyond the matter of domestic programs. He has told the 61 new Democrats from marginal districts that they had better seal themselves solidly to Johnson because they are going to stand or fall largely on the President's record.

For that reason he has asked them not to try to appear as experts on how the war in Viet Nam should be run. They aren't required to say anything, if they can't say something in support of the President's course, he has argued.

The vice president's associates have been scanning publications for editorials supporting the President's position. They have sent many of these along to House members urging them to put them in the Congressional Record, thus putting them on record as backing the President.

In return, the new Democrats have received help from Humphrey's staff in organizing their offices. They have been provided with mailing lists and arrangements have been made for television-radio appearances.

Beyond that, the Democratic National Committee has been chipping in to buy airplane tickets so the members can return to their districts frequently.

Despite all of these efforts, Humphrey is reported to feel that it would be something near a major miracle if the Democrats could save next year the seats of 75 per cent of the members they elected in Republican and marginal districts in Johnson's landslide last year.

Parties Allowed

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—President Sukarno has issued a decree allowing Indonesian political parties to operate in the West Irian province, formerly Dutch West New Guinea, official sources reported Saturday.

Political activities were banned there shortly after the United Nations interim administration handed it over to Indonesia on May 1, 1963.

The decree came into effect as of June 23.

New Contract For El Dorado Refinery Signed

EL DORADO, Ark. (Special) — A new three-year contract between the International Union of Operating Engineers and Monsanto Chemical Company for the El Dorado Lion Refinery was signed late Friday night.

Ed Batchelor, president of local 381, and Max Moody, manager of the refinery, announced Saturday the contract is effective immediately.

The previous contract was to have expired July 26.

The agreement includes a wage adjustment of 22 cents an hour, spaced over the life of the contract, with increases of 7 cents now, 7 cents next year and 8 cents the third year. It also provides an added holiday (Good Friday) and an improved vacation plan.

About 300 workers are involved.

Knott Is Named To Fair Staff

SHREVEPORT (Special) — David J. Knott of Shreveport has been named to the administrative staff of the Louisiana State Fair, it was announced by Joe Monsour, general manager.

Formerly associated with the livestock and poultry industry in Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas, Knott's principal duties will be to coordinate livestock activities at the Fair.

His appointment was effective July 1, and he already is engaged in planning for livestock exhibits, sales and auctions at the 1965 fair, which is scheduled October 22-31.

Shrine Club Rodeo Opens Wednesday

Plans are still progressing for the sixth annual Northeast Louisiana Shrine Club Rodeo scheduled at the West Monroe Riding Club Arena on the Harrel Road Wednesday, July 21 through Saturday, July 24, according to Bobby Albritton, president of the West Monroe Riding Club.

Albritton said Libby Horn, 20-year-old pop, folk and western singer of Oklahoma, will appear at the rodeo shows. Miss Horn, now appearing with Eddie Arnold at a Crockett, Tex., rodeo, has appeared on television with Bob Hope, Eddie Arnold, Ed Sullivan and the Smothers Brothers, Albritton said.

Miss Horn will arrive in the Twin Cities today and will be on hand at the rodeo shows which begin at 8 each night, Wednesday through Saturday. She is a senior at Southern Methodist University where she is majoring in music education.

Several specialty acts to be presented during the nightly rodeo performances include a dog and monkey act and a liberty horse act, Albritton said.

Producer of the rodeo this year will be Bill Kahla of Stowell, Tex., well-known as a rodeo producer in southern and western Texas. Kahla has produced the Texas A. & M. rodeos for several years.

Announcer of the show will be Tom Hadley of Kerrvillle, Tex., who is "tops in his field as a professional announcer," Albritton said.

The riding club has received promises of several top contestants.

Open House is being held today at the club area to allow the public an opportunity to view the stock and the grounds. Albritton said new bleachers have been installed for the rodeo.

In conjunction with the rodeo, Leslie Hamm, president of the Northeast Louisiana Shrine Club, said "We wish to thank the public and the businessmen of the Northeast Louisiana area for their cooperation in this year's promotion of the rodeo." Hamm also said the Monroe and West Monroe police departments have cautioned the public to be on guard during the parade to prevent possible accidents.

A rodeo parade has been scheduled for 2 p.m. Wednesday to begin on Commerce Street, West Monroe, and to extend across the U.S. Hwy. 80 bridge, turning right on Walnut and down DeSiard.

For the parade, Shriners plan to have several units from neighboring towns and some from Shreveport, Hamm said. The Civil Air Patrol Cadets will march, according to Major Louis Leporati, commandant of cadets.

A square dance in the street will be staged Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in downtown West Monroe, on the corner of Trenton and Wood Streets. Jack Hollingsworth and his band of western music makers and the Cross Trailer Square Dancers will perform.

Albritton has invited the public to drop by the rodeo headquarters at 200 Trenton St., to see the trophy saddles on display there. Tickets are on sale at the headquarters.

Miss Linda Smith is the West Monroe Riding Club's entry in the Miss Northeast Louisiana Shrine Club Rodeo contest slated the final night of the rodeo. Entrants from nine area towns will vie for the queen't title.

Rep. Waggonner To Make Major Formosa Speech

WASHINGTON (Special) — Rep. Joe D. Waggonner Jr., of Plain Dealing leaves for Formosa today for a personal interview with Nationalist Chinese Premier Chiang Kai-Shek and a major address to anti-communist representatives from 27 "Captive Nations."

Waggonner is the third member of Congress in the 20-year history of the Captive Nation refugee groups to be asked to participate in the annual meeting dedicated to restoring the independence of countries which have fallen under communist domination.

The Louisianan said he plans to assure the meeting of several thousand delegates of American intention to pursue the war in South Viet Nam until victory is achieved.

He also will tell them of U.S. determination to prevent the entry of Red China into the United Nations and generally to work for freedom for the red-dominated countries.

The speech, scheduled for Saturday at the Formosan capital of Taipei, is part of the celebration of Captive Nations Week, on observance led by the National Captive Nations Committee of Washington, D.C.

Waggonner will fly first to Tokyo, then proceed to Formosa Wednesday. He plans to return to Washington, July 26.

Since entering Congress in 1961, Waggonner has been a frequent speaker on the House floor on subjects relating to the threat of world communism and has consistently urged aggressive steps to combat red expansion.

He said he was particularly interested in the opportunity of meeting Chiang Kai-Shek to discuss problems created by communist infiltration in southeast Asia and the danger created by Red Chinese development of an atomic device.

Winners Named In Events Held At Playgrounds

Attendance at Monroe playgrounds during the past week totaled 1,770 youngsters, according to a Monroe Recreation Department report issued Saturday.

Highlights of the week at the various playground included turtle races, a hobo party and a box hockey tournament. Special activities on the agenda for the upcoming week will be a second box hockey tournament and a track meet.

Playgrounds are open Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and all children are invited to participate in the round of activities.

Winners of the turtle races this week were Peter Masters as Speedy and Ronnie Haynes as Snappy, both at Barkdull-Faulk.

Hobo party winners around the city were Jeff Alderman, Frank Jungina, Frank Sweet, LaQuita Smith, Anne McKay, Allen McKay, Jim McKay, Elaine Roper, Kathy Wallace, Lee Smith, Debbie Zeagler, Marty Zeagler, Randy Haynes, Ronnie Haynes, Ted Haynes, Debbie Sinclare, Connie Malta, Ronnie Malta and Sandra Malta, all at Barkdull-Faulk; Mack Bailey, Barbara Allen, Cliff Sowders, Connie Bailey, Mike Sowders and Paula Hamel, all at Sherrouse; Becky McGlothlin at Clara Hall; Kathy McCleery, Georgia Tucker; and Patricia McDonald at Lincoln playground.

Box Hockey Tournament winners were James LeBlanc at Lexington; Mark Bailey, Bobby Gibbs and Mack Bailey, Sherrouse; Melany Cooper and Timmy Hargiss at Clara Hall; James Hilton, Lemar Ford, Nathan Robinson, Olester Daniels, Geneva Washington and Pamela Lavendar at Henrietta Johnson playground; and Levi Williams and Ban Johnson at Lincoln.

Land Where The Citrus Blooms

Cold winds of the Northland blew and the snow fell. Outside skies were gray and a German poet peered out his window. He wrote, "Do you know of the land where the citrus blooms?" His nostalgic poem will forever be Italy.

Rome is Italy — the fruit vendor's stall, little Fiat cars and tiny motorbikes rushing here and there, beautiful churches, and couples strolling along treelined avenues. Rome is history which comes breathtakingly to life at every corner. It is the colorful ice cream cart on nearly every street, busses and trams bulging with humanity, and sparkling fountains in the center of every district. Rome is the Forum as the sun sinks low and reflects late golden rays on ancient sculpture which becomes golden and radiant. It is the magical Fountain of Trevi where wishes are made; and the bridges across eternal Tiber. It is hills above the city where, in the afternoon, one stands, looks, and there is everything just as the storybooks and motion pictures said it was.

Rome, at the start, is the Central Station. From there, one proceeds to the hotel on a small, busy street. Often, the hotel is only a few blocks from the station, but these few blocks are a tale often told. Only the best Chinese merchants are a match for the cab drivers who help make the few short blocks memorable experiences. Besides the interesting trip hurtling through seemingly impassable streets, there is the bargain which must be made concerning the fare. Roman cab drivers expect passengers to bargain with them concerning the price. Indeed drivers express deep disappointment, even chagrin, if the first and highest tariff is willingly paid. It is a kind of wonderful game and is always played to the utmost. There is sometimes the waving of excited arms and shouts of anguish but in the end, all is well, and there are happy cries of "have a good time in Rome." The tiny Fiat cab lurches off and rushes in search of more bargain hunters.

Quiet Today

Rome is the Colosseum where in earlier times crowds beheld cruel and terrible scenes. Today, it is quiet and an arena only of memories. In the morning, there are flower vendors near the Piazza at the Spanish Steps, and along fashionable Via Veneta, Romans and visitors sip coffee and apertifs at sidewalk tables under rustling leaves. La Dolce Vita, the sweet life, is everywhere and nowhere more evident than in Italian kitchens. Foods are superb and as interesting as the people. Whether visitors enjoy a full noon meal at a large restaurant or something at a sidewalk cafe, eating is serious business and one should make the most of it. Fruits are unbelievable and fabulous. It is difficult to forget figs larger than tennis balls, and the pears can quite often be meals in themselves.

Italians are convinced that it's good to be alive, and to make certain they stay alive, close everything at the heat of noon until the sun goes down and things get cooler. Busy, noisy streets become, in a few minutes, deserted avenues of calm and quiet. Everyone is inside enjoying the noon meal after which will come a well deserved rest, for this meal requies no little energy. Late in the afternoon, everything returns to life. The big iron shutters are clanged open at American Express, and Rome is busy again.

For visitors, this is the good time. It is a time to walk and see the city or to rest beside a fountain. Rome is a haven of art, sculpture, music, and magnificence on a scale almost unbelievable. It is the pious city, and from all over the world come pilgrims, priests, monks, and nuns to worship and to perhaps receive an audience with the Pope. Late in the afternoon, there is the Forum where the present dissolves into antiquity. One can almost see and hear Roman orators of the Old Empire speaking in the Senate while citizens discuss the day's business. Mosaics laid in those times catch the fading light of today and cast beautiful and many colored hues in the beginning evening. High on Capitoline Hill, trees sway in the soft breeze and night falls on the city.

Rome, the fun city, glorious in art, music, and crowded with a people timeless and exciting, is the center of Italy, a land where indeed the citrus must always bloom.

Solons Get Teacher Corps Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson asked Congress on Saturday for legislation to carry out his proposal for a national corps of teachers who would serve in slums and areas of rural poverty.

He coupled with it two other requests: a program of fellowships to prepare students for teaching careers and help experienced teachers improve their qualifications, and for aid to colleges and universities to provide better education for teachers.

His request for the legislation, made in letters to the presiding officers of the House and Senate, followed closely proposals he outlined in a speech to the National Education Association in New York City on July 2.

And it preceded the convening of a White House conference on education, to be held next Tuesday and Wednesday, at which some 650 leaders in education, business, labor and government will discuss the problems of education.

Johnson asked Congress for $60 million for the program in the fiscal year which started July 1. No figure was set for the two succeeding years of the program.

This is in addition to funds in the $1-billion Education Assistance Act, part of which would be used for paying members of the teachers corps.

A White House spokesman estimated that the corps might number about 6,000 teachers and that the fellowship program might reach 3,000 potential teachers in the first year.

Although federal funds would be used to pay members of the teachers corps, the White House stressed that the money would go to local school boards and that corps members would not be federal employes. Pay scales would be in line with those employed by local school districts.

"Members of the corps — experienced teachers and students who plan to make teaching a career — would go together to the city slums and to rural areas of poverty to offer what these troubled regions need most: light and learning; help — and hope," Johnson said in a statement.

How much of our NOBLE HERITAGE is Catholic?

Certain self-appointed critics have called the Catholic Church alien, undemocratic and out of step with American tradition and ideals.

They argue that the traditions and ideals of the United States are largely of non-Catholic origin. And they are especially vehement in their criticism of Catholics on such issues as the separation of church and state.

Catholics ask their non-Catholic neighbors to remember these historical facts:

America was discovered by a Catholic. Most of those who explored its vast wilderness and charted its oceans, rivers, lakes and mountains were Catholics. Catholic missionaries were preaching Christ's gospel and saying Mass from Canada to the Philippines nearly a hundred years before the Pilgrim Fathers landed at Plymouth Rock.

And as far as religious freedom and separation of church and state are concerned, the first of the 13 original colonies to grant religious liberty was Maryland, settled largely by Catholics and ruled by the Catholic Lord Baltimore.

These self-styled critics like to claim that American liberty was won by a non-Catholic colonial army and sealed by a non-Catholic colonial congress. And Catholics surely have no wish to challenge the magnificent contributions of our non-Catholic forefathers.

But neither should these historical facts be overlooked:

Irish volunteers, most of them Catholics, served in the Colonial Army in numbers greatly out of proportion to the relatively small Catholic population. One of the most ardent champions of the cause of liberty was the great Catholic patriot Charles Carroll, wealthiest man in all the colonies and a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Catholic John Barry, often called "Father of the U.S. Navy," was the only officer given the title of Commodore by the Continental Congress. And no distortion of history can erase the fact that the principal nations which came to aid our fight for freedom were Catholic France, Spain and Poland... that the victory was won with the help of such foreign heroes as Rochambeau, DeGrasse, Kosciusko and Pulaski — all Catholics.

If you would like to read the exciting tale of the part played by Catholics in defending and promoting America's noble heritage in peace and war — write today for our new pocketsize pamphlet which will be sent free upon your request. Write today for Pamphlet KC-67. Nobody will call on you.

Second Quarter Gains Better Than Expected

By RICHARD F. WHALEN
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's economy sprung a pleasant surprise on many economists and did better in the second quarter of the year than they had guessed it would.

Some government officials described the advance as "bullish" during the week and said it's likely that the pace of economic growth will speed up a bit in the months to come. Others, though, still look for a slight fall-off.

The gross national product — sum of all goods and services produced — in the April-May-June period rose by $9.2 billion, not nearly so big as the $14.2 billion gain in the first quarter, but still better than many predictions, some as low as $6 billion.

There were two factors that had led to gloomy forecasts for the second quarter:

1. Automobile buying was expected to drop off after the phenomenal first quarter, when there was much "catch-up" buying following the auto strikes late last year.

2. Buying for business inventories was expected to decline, particularly steel purchases. In the first quarter steel users built up inventories against a possible strike May 1, which didn't occur.

Neither factor had as drastic an effect as had been feared.

Auto buying continued strong. Steel purchases continued at a high rate as users kept up inventories against the Sept. 1 strike threat and apparently in response to heavy demand for their products.

The second-quarter advance — the 17th straight — lifted the gross national product to a record annual rate of $658 billion, compared to $622.6 billion for 1964 as a whole.

President Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers reported the figures to him on Thursday and generally expressed optimism for the future.

The report said that manufacturing industries have "reached an historic turning point."

"An extended period of slow growth of factory output, of declining job opportunities and of relatively low investment in factories has come to an end," the report said.

The rapid rise in the gross national product has been the main reason for the surge in jobs.

The Labor Department said Tuesday that nonfarm employment gained strongly in June, with all major industry divisions advancing.

There were 60,807,000 employes on nonfarm payrolls, up 750,000 from the May total.

Manufacturing jobs climbed to 18,068,000, highest since the wartime peak of November 1943, when the figure was 18,074,000.

"We are within a whisper of the highest level that manufacturing employment has ever attained in the United States," said a department official.

Steel production was declining slightly, probably reflecting the first signs of easing demand since users began building strike-hedge inventories at the turn of the year.

Production for the previous week was reported down for the third straight week. However, the decline was only 1 per cent and output was still 14 per cent above the same week last summer.

Auto sales in the first 10 days of July fell about 11 per cent from the selling rate in all June, a decline considered about normal for July.

But, as with the steel figures, auto sales were ahead of the year-ago figures. Sales of 197,670 cars were up 11 per cent and were a record for the July 1-10 period.

Chevrolet and Ford sales were each down 7 per cent. Chrysler, Oldsmobile, Pontiac, Dodge and Cadillac reported their best July 1-10 sales record in history.

International Business Machines Corp., the nation's 13th-biggest company measured by sales or revenues, reported that revenues and earnings in the second quarter set records for any three-month period.

Earnings were $117 million or $3.32 a share on revenues of $869 million. The previous three-month high was the first quarter.

Westinghouse Electric Corp. sales and earnings also set records for the second quarter. Earnings of $26.5 million of 71 cents a share topped the year-ago period by 57 per cent. Sales were $606.6 million.

P. Lorillard Co., which makes Kent and Old Gold cigarettes, elected Manuel Yellen, executive vice president, as its new chairman. He also replaces Morgan J. Cramer as chief executive.

Ramer became chairman of the company's international division.

Stocks Post Advances As Trading Ebbs

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market last week managed to produce the third of a string of weekly advances as the pace of trading simmered down considerably.

Actually, the week was ahead only by virtue of a strong session on Wednesday. Changes on average were trifling on the other days.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose .43 to 880.43.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 1.2 to 324.9.

Wall Street seemed to have as good reasons as ever for selling stocks again. For one thing, President Johnson told his news conference on Tuesday that U.S. forces will soon be engaging in more active combat in Viet Nam and that "new and serious decisions" on the war may soon be necessary.

The next day it mounted a respectable rally on fairly good volume. "It appears that the market is getting used to the war news," said one analyst.

The market had the benefit of the starting wave of favorable second quarter earnings reports. On the other hand, weekly steel production was off for the third straight week. New car sales showed a mixed pattern.

Volume for the week was 19,025,424 shares compared with 15,618,870 for the four-day trading week preceding (cut short by the Independence Day holiday).

Some analysts said that the market might be slowly building a base for the "traditional summer rally" while others thought that stocks were groping along, possibly getting ready to decline and "test" the interim lows made about three weeks ago.

Bond prices were mixed to higher this week. U.S. Treasury bonds showed little change. Corporate bonds were higher on balance.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange came to $41.2 million par value, more active than the $37.5 million a week ago but below the $44.5 million turnover of the same week a year ago.

Building Permits Total $129,510 For Past Week

Building permits issued in the Monroe office of Dale B. Martha, coordinator of building projects, totaled $129,510 for the week ending July 16, authorizing construction of commercial buildings to cost $36,900 and residential buildings to cost $92,610.

The 18 permits issued were for the following.

To erect a one-story brick veneer residence, Dr. Richard Vines, Belle Terre Street; Dale R. Bedgood, 1903 Oakmont Dr.; J. W. Harper, 2405 Katherine Dr.; Jim Bradford, 2406 Katherine Dr.; and Mid-South Homes, Inc., 224 Oregon Trail.

To remodel a one-story frame residence, Joyce Anna Williams, 400 Shotwell; Mrs. Eva Clark, 408 S. 1st St.; Gerald Taylor, 1302 Glenmar; Howard Thomas, 3805 Dunlop; Thomas M. Hayes Jr., 108 Courtney; W. A. Fitzgerald, 503 Plum St.; Steve Powell, 407 Erin; Lonnie Jackson, 303 S. 12th St.; Richard Robinson, 306 Cedar St.

To remodel a one-story frame business building, KoKinos Purity Ice Cream Co., Inc., 1900-1910 Forsythe Ave.; to alter a one-story frame parts and supply building, United Manufacturing Supply Co., 320 N. 4th St.; to erect a one-story prefabricated drive-inn restaurant, Totu's System, Inc., 3005 Louisville Ave.; and to erect a one-story metal storage building, Twin City Store Fixture, F Street, rear existing building, Selman Field.

MEANY CHAIRMAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — AFL-CIO President George Meany, has accepted the post of honorary chairman of the National Captive Nations Committee.

The acceptance came as President Johnson proclaimed the week of July 18-24 as captive nations week and called on all Americans to "give renewed devotion to the just aspirations of all people for national independence and human liberty."

Business In Brief

YOUNG PRESIDENTS

Clark G. Boyce, President of Louisiana Machinery Company, Inc., Monroe, has been elected to membership in the Young Presidents' Organization YPO), an international group of young men (and seven women) who have become presidents of sizeable companies before reaching the age of 40.

The Young President's Organization has over 1900 members in 40 chapters in the United States, Canada, Europe and Japan, with other members throughout the free world. Members learn from each other at over 300 Chapter meetings each year. Activities also include seminars at leading graduate business schools and special conferences throughout the world. An annual week-long "University for Presidents" features discussions with leaders in fields such as management and finance, business ethics, psychology, and education, government and world affairs.

CLARK BOYCE

The companies of members employ from 25 to 70,000 persons and have annual sales ranging from the minimum of $1 million to more than $300 million.

AWARDED SERVICE PINS

Six employees of Louisiana Power & Light Company in the Twin Cities area recently were awarded their Company service pins.

They are: A. O. McNabb, mechanic in substation maintenance in Northern Division Engineering, 25-year pin; Lester M. Johnson, lineman in Northern Division Construction, Eugene A. Kelso, clerk in Northern Division Stores, and Henry A. Kelso, Jr., head mechanic in Northern Division Transportation and Buildings, all 15-year pins; and Jeff T. Carter, member of the West Monroe district service department, and Mrs. Lois S. Grafton, typist in Northern Division Sales, both five-year pins.

LEADERS CONFERENCE

District Supervisor D. M. Toon and Agent J. J. Danna of the Monroe branch office will be among approximately 1800 representatives and wives from all areas of the U. S. attending the 1965 Leaders Conference of the American National Insurance Co. in Las Vegas, July 21-24.

The local representatives are among the outstanding producers in the company's Combination Agencies Division the past year, W. W. Cherry, senior vice president and division director, reported.

ATTENDS SEMINAR

Dr. Edward S. Blackmon, West Monroe optometrist, attended the recent postgraduate glaucoma detection seminar at Southern College of Optometry, Memphis, Tenn., Dr. Geo. Alan Scott, seminar director announced.

Dr. Scott stressed the importance of early detection of glaucoma as this disease may result in blindness if not given prompt attention.

GETS PROMOTION

HOUSTON, Tex. (Special)—F. R. Lewellin, of El Dorado, Arkansas, an employee of Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation since 1954, has been promoted to western division superintendent, petroleum products pipeline division, according to an announcement by S. L. Creech, general superintendent of products pipeline operations.

In his new position, Lewellin, formerly district foreman at El Dorado, has assumed responsibility for the supervision of operations in petroleum products pipelining on all of Texas Eastern's system west of the Mississippi River. He is to be stationed at Beaumont, Texas.

Grain Futures Trading Active For Past Week

CHICAGO (AP) — Trade in the grain futures market was fairly active most of the time last week, and it kept prices shifting broadly and sometimes rapidly but they closed generally with little net change.

The varying pattern was by the day rather than by the hour or, as in the case of old crop soybeans by the minute.

A good deal of the activity was toward balancing the commitments in the expiring deliveries. The most effect, by far, was in old crop soybeans where prices swung over a range of 5 cents or so each day, finally closing weak.

In other contracts, weather and condition of the growing crops were the guiding influences. Wheat began to resume its long vacated role as a major commodity on the Board of Trade as volume climbed rapidly with speculators inclined toward at least a mildly bullish outlook over the long range.

Soybeans closed ⅛-4½ cents a bushel lower than a week ago, July $2.83¼-83; new standard grade wheat ⅝ higher to ¼ lower, July $1.43¼-⅜; corn ⅝ higher to ½ lower, July $1.29½-⅝; oats unchanged to ⅞ lower, July 66⅜-½ cents; rye 1¾-3⅜ higher, July $1.14.

Drilling At Wildcat Sets Depth Record

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Shell Oil Co. and Placid Oil Co. drilled below 20,900 feet Saturday in their Greene County wildcat, establishing a new depth record for the state.

The old record of 20,450 feet was held by an abandoned wildcat in Stone County that tested hydrogen sulphide gas before being abandoned as uncommercial in 1953.

The Shell-Placid venture is to be drilled to 21,000 feet with operators now releasing scant information about progress.

In Perry County, testing operations continued at what may be the states' deepest producer. Phillips Petroleum Co. tested gas with a high hydrogen sulphide content in its wildcat northeast of Wiggins. Operators are expressing problems in attempting to produce the well due to the reported high sulphur content of the gas which apparently plugs perforations after short flow periods. The perforated intervals is at 19,768-77 feet.

In Simpson County, State Exploration Co. has run electrical log to 14,500 feet in its wildcat with reports several shows of undetermined commercial worth have been logged. Operators are releasing very little information on the well with reports casing may be set to evaluate the commercial worth of the shows encountered. The wildcat is near Saratoga.

Shell Oil Co. continues to test its Smith County wildcat without releasing information on the tests. It is reported a zone at 16,400 feet in the Smackover lime is flowing and swabbing at the rate between 300 and 400 barrels of oil per day with a high water content. The venture is northwest of the Bay Springs Oil Field.

Also in Smith County, Shell, Pan American and Larco are drilling below 11,000 feet in their wildcat south of the Bienville Forest Field. The venture is to go to 15,600 feet.

In Jasper County, Shell Oil Co. is drilling below 12,600 feet in its wildcat northeast of the Bay Springs field.

At Bay Springs, six drilling rigs are running. Skelly Oil Co. is below 10,600 feet in its Gallman No. 1, and below 7,900 feet in its Hall No. 1. The Sims No. 1 is below 11,400 feet. Shell and Pan American are below 11,700 feet in the Alexander No. 1, and below 10,000 feet in the Sims No. 1. Operators third test, the Blakeney No. 1, is below 9,600 feet.

Monroe Police Probing Fishing Equipment Theft

Monroe police Saturday were investigating the theft of $150 in fishing equipment.

M. W. Boyd of 3109 S. Grand St., reported to police that the gear was stolen from a boat parked in his driveway. Boyd discovered the loss at 4 a.m. Saturday when preparing for a fishing trip.

In other action, E. S. Roark reported a guitar stolen from his retail store at 703 Jackson St. Roark told police that the instrument, valued at $50, was taken from the store Thursday or Friday during business hours.

Monroe police booked two for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages. They were Edward R. Evans, 19, of Bastrop, apprehended at South Third and Stone Avenue at 3:45 p.m. Saturday, and Ludvig Molvig, 43, of Bethlehem, Pa., apprehended on North Tenth at 10:52 p.m. Friday.

Monroe officers also booked three for disturbing the peace and carrying a concealed weapon. They were Wilson Degeyter Jr., 20, of 4200 S. Grand St., Monroe, James Pinkey, 41, of 303 Congo St., Monroe, and Lamar Comb, 21, of 100 N. 11th St., Monroe. Degeyter was also charged with resisting arrest.

Booked for speeding and carrying a concealed weapon was Link Lengyou, 28, of No. 9 Toney's Alley, Monroe.

West Monroe officers booked Earl Hubanks, 17, of 613 N. 6th St., West Monroe, with aggravated assault and simple battery Saturday.

Also charged in Monroe for DWI was Felix D. Thornton, 25, of Mansfield. He was apprehended at Calypso and Jackson Streets at 4:17 p.m. Saturday.

Frank Lively, 21, of 2900 S. Grand St., Monroe, was booked with simple battery. He was apprehended in the 2400 block of South Grand at 2:40 p.m.

BEATTY IMPROVED

VENTURA, Calif. (UPI) — Clyde Beatty, one of the world's foremost animal trainers, was reported "somewhat improved" Saturday at Memorial Community Hospital where he is being treated for cancer of the esophagus.

However, attendants said the 62-year-old former film star and circus owner remained in serious condition. He entered the hospital July 6.

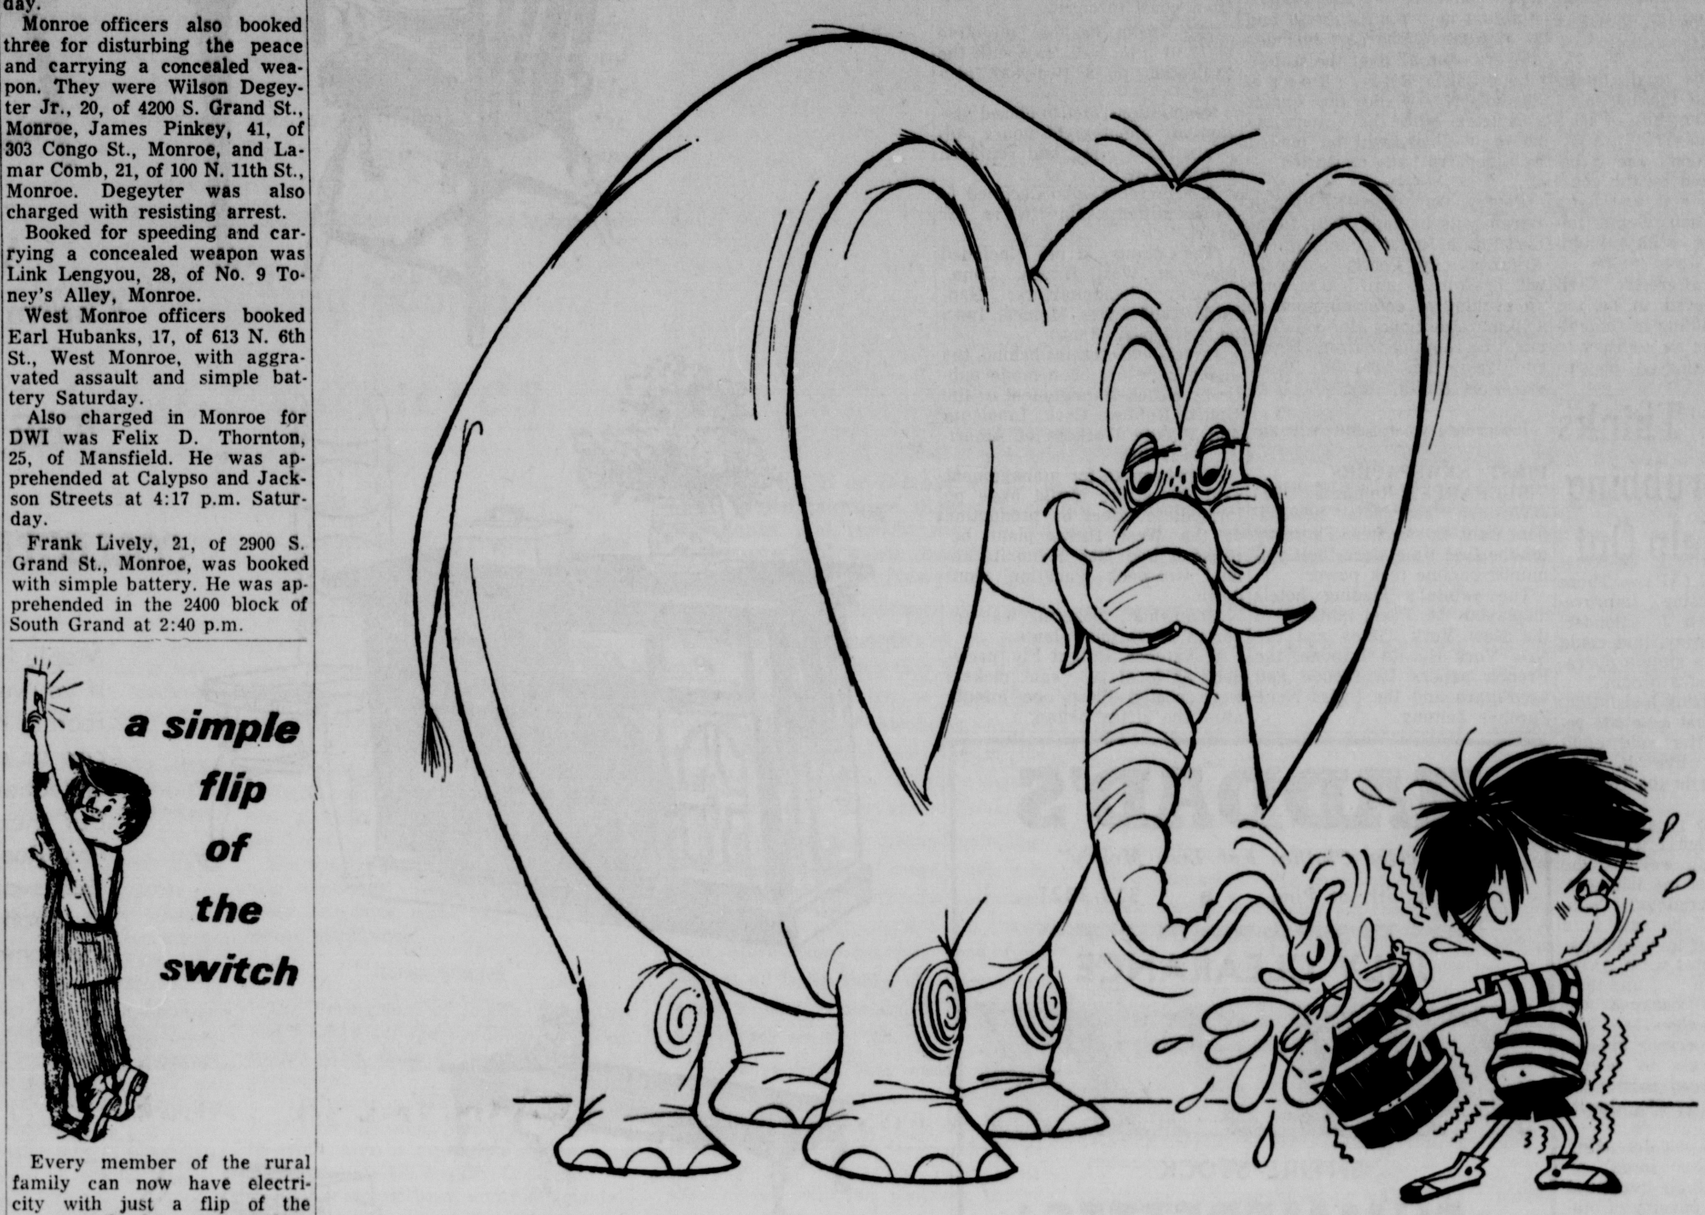
Military Order Elects Officers

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Lt. Col. E. V. Fasce of Baton Rouge Saturday night was elected Louisiana departmental commander of the Military Order of the World Wars at the the group's organizing convention.

Delegates adopted a resolution commending President Johnson for his "firm and forceful stand in opposing Communist warmongering in Viet Nam and elsewhere."

Other officers are Lt. Col. Marshall T. Cappel of Alexandria, senior vice commander; Maj. William L. Lumpkin of Lake Charles, junior vice commanders, and Lt. Col. William N. McRoberts of Baton Rouge, adjutant.

About 80 delegates from Louisiana chapters attended the meeting. Chapters are located in Baton Rouge, New Orleans, Shreveport, Lafayette, Bunkie, Lake Charles, Monroe and Alexandria.



a simple flip of the switch

Every member of the rural family can now have electricity with just a flip of the switch, thanks to member-owned Electric Cooperatives.

Often taken-for-granted, electricity means many things. To the child, it means light and warmth—TV. Mother enjoys the efficiency and comfort of electric living. Dad operates a more productive farm. To the towns it means more business prosperity.

Low-cost power didn't come easy. It is the result of forward-thinking people on the governing Boards of the Electric Cooperatives working together for a better life with rural electricity.

First Negro Pupil

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi State University is expected to end an 87-year-old practice Monday by registering Richard Holmes of Starkville as its first Negro student.

Holmes, 21, a sophomore, will register along with other students for the final summer quarter of classes.

School officials said Saturday he would be treated as any other student becoming registered for the first time at MSU.

Forfeit Bonds

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Two Negroes failed to appear in court, records showed Saturday, and forfeited bonds Friday stemming from an altercation in front of the Freedom Democratic Party headquarters.

They were Sillie Davis, 17, and Ezekiel Ford, 31, both of Jackson, who were arrested Wednesday when David fired a pistol in front of the FDP building.

Police said Ford and a group of civil rights demonstrators were pelting David with bottles.

David is connected with a Negro newspaper which has been criticized by the FDP for its policies.

Traffic Fatality

LAUREL, Miss. (AP) — Mrs. Edna Faye Blackledge, 38, of Waynesboro, was killed near here Friday and four Alabama students were injured in a two-car crash.

The students were Wilbur Parnell, 21, of Tibbie, Ala.; Patricia Ann Hendry, 20, of Millry, Ala.; and twins Joe and Bill Lomax of Chathom, Ala.

Parnell was hospitalized in critical condition at University Hospital in Jackson.

Miss Hendry was in serious condition at a Laurel hospital and the twins were treated for non-serious injuries.

Officers said Mrs. Blackledge apparently lost control of her car and skidded into the path of the other car, carrying the students home for the weekend.

They attended the University of Southern Mississippi.

Pigeons, Here And There

By ROBERT SIMONTON
World Staff Writer

Venice, Italy is a city known for its many islands, many canals, and many pigeons.

These pigeons flutter by the hundreds through the square in front of the great San Marco Cathedral. Feeding these birds, taking pictures of them massed along the tile, and allowing them to land on your arms and your head is an important part of Venice. In fact, they say if you haven't seen the San Marco pigeons, you haven't seen Venice.

Monroe has pigeons, too. Feeding them and coddling them are not much in style. There have been complaints that they are taking over, particularly in the downtown area. Well, perhaps not to that extent, but they can be a nuisance in more ways than one. The question is — do we conjure up ways to get rid of them or do we let them alone and hope they add enough atmosphere to make up for their nasty little habits?

Ever notice the small, quaint little building on the northeast corner of the Ouachita Parish Court House square?

Many people don't see it because it's dwarfed by the court house. Others see it and don't pay much attention. Some imagine it to be a utility building or shed.

Built shortly after the Civil War, it is believed to be the oldest public building in Ouachita Parish. It was an addition to the original building on the site which collapsed in 1910. It was restored in 1919 and is now the Fort Miro D.A.R. Chapter House.

Included among the seven young musicians announced recently as winners of the 1965 National Federation of Music Clubs Awards was Miss Anne Elizabeth Epperson, 19., of Baton Rouge. She was winner in the piano division.

The entire state can be proud of this young lady. She was in competition with 48 other entrants from all over the nation, and other winners were from such widely scattered states as Oklahoma, Wisconsin, Florida and South Carolina.

Her scholarship award amounts to $1,000, of which $250 is given yearly for four years.

The delightful comedy, "George and Margaret," will be presented by the Louisiana Tech Theatre Players as their summer production in the Speech Building at 8 p.m. July 26 and 27 at Ruston. The cast includes players from all over the state—Choudrant, Baton Rouge, Shreveport — and the quaint character with the impossible name of Beer, will be played by Cleopatra Long of Ruston.

Poetry Day Fort Smith-Van Buren will be held Oct. 16 at Fort Smith Junior College in the Arkansas city. Poetry symposia will be from 2 until 5 p.m. and an evening of entertainment at 8 p.m. Additional information may be obtained from South and West, Inc., 2601 So. Phoenix, Fort Smith, Ark.

Ice cream wasn't much in ancient times, although weak water ices were known in the Roman Empire. The courts of Europe couldn't figure out a way to keep it frozen. In the late 19th Century it really came into its own — because mechanical refrigeration was invented. Today, ice cream is like so many other things — it comes in all kinds of sizes, shapes, colors, tastes, with fruits, nuts, whipped cream, and a multitude of exotic names. But, to a kid it's all the same — and who is happier than a kid with an ice cream cone in summer time?

FIRST NEWSPAPERS

BUCHAREST, Romania (UPI) —Western "bourgeois" newspapers went on sale here Saturday for the first time since the Communist regime took power.

The capital's leading hotels displayed the Paris editions of the New York Times and the New York Herald Tribune, the French papers Le Monde and Le Figaro and the Swiss Neue Zurcher Zeitung.

Strike Touches Plant At Natchez

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Negotiations resumed Saturday in an effort to end a strike involving some 3,000 employes in four Armstrong Rubber Co. factories from coast to coast.

The strike became effective at 12:01 a.m. Saturday with the expiration of a two-year contract.

Negotiations met in closed session for about eight hours, adjoining at 1 a.m., and returned at 9:30 a.m.

A negotiator, who declined to be identified, said "we're far apart."

The plants struck included those at West Haven, Conn., company headquarters; Hanford, Calif.; Des Moines, Iowa and Natchez, Miss.

Issues and details behind the strike have not been made public by either management or the United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, AFL-CIO.

A spokesman for management said the strike would have no immediate effect on production at the West Haven plant because it had just begun its annual two-week vacation shutdown.

Meanwhile, picketing was reported at various plants.

At Natchez, Robert Fly, president of local 303, said pickets were posted there one minute after the strike began.

Ellender Thinks Little Scrubbing Would Help Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are some housing improvements, Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., said Saturday, that could be made "by the simple operation of a mop and a broom."

Discussing housing legislation, Ellender noted that a Senate report on the matter said eight million families live in substandard housing in the country today.

"I cannot help recalling that the house in which I was born and grew up, as well as the homes of many of my listeners, would be considered very 'substandard' today," he said in a talk for broadcast in Louisiana.

"Yet those homes were warm and dry and clean . . . and they were that way because we worked at it ourselves.

"Today, some persons appear before the Congress to testify that they are forced to live in unsanitary and unsafe dwellings.

"Although I am not defending the so-called 'slum lords' or those who make their livelihood by exploiting the poverty of others, I cannot help pointing out that instead of coming to Washington to appear before Congress, much good work and many improvements could be made by the simple operation of a mop and a broom."

Ellender said that over the years "we have done much to encourage the idea that if individuals do not fulfill their responsibilities to themselves, their families and neighbors or someone else will step in and take over the job for them."

"Perhaps," he added, "we are now moving too far in that direction."

WORTH SAVING

THE OFFICE or factory drunk is getting new and sympathetic attention from industry and labor unions. The photo montage illustrates a big problem for industry, the problem drinker. The cost in absenteeism, accidents and inefficiency is estimated at $2 billion a year. But rehabilitation costs comparatively little, and more and more companies are treating alcoholism as a disease from which many problem employees can be saved. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Many of the nation's largest industries have programs aimed at helping workers who are in the clutches of alcoholism to overcome their problem, instead of dismissing them. Of the good worker who becomes an alcoholic, one industrial doctor said, 'He is worth saving.' This program was developed in face of the mounting annual cost of alcoholism to industry through absenteeism, accidents and inefficiency.

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Anybody who knows a drunk knows how hard he works — at drinking.

If the problem drinker worked half as hard to stay sober as he does to get liquor, he'd have no problem. So he rates high in persistence.

The alcoholic, when he is sober, is often among the best workers a company can have. He may feel a compulsion, a craving, to excel.

And — "The cost of rehabilitating the average alcoholic is no more than the cost of an office typewriter," says the National Industrial Conference Board in its study, "The Alcoholic Worker."

So, considering the heavy investment a company often has in an employe with a drinking problem, it makes good sense to help him off the liquor and onto the wagon.

Firm's Experience

That's the experience of the gaint Du Pont Company, which has headquarters here and plants all over.

Du Pont 20 years ago was the first big company to do something about the problem — there now are around 200 interested firms following a big burst of activity in the last four years — and Du Pont has become something of a model. It figures its rehabilitation success rate at around 65 per cent.

First, of course, the company has to spot the alcoholic. Dr. C. A. D'Alonzo, assistant medical director at Du Pont, told an interviewer:

"The easiest way to tell when a man is an alcoholic is to notice when he stops bragging about how much he can drink and starts lying about how little he is drinking."

A Du Pont booklet for its employes reports that another likely sign is frequent absenteeism that begins on Monday. "Alcoholism," it says, "is the only disease that consistently starts over the weekend."

Bad breath may be a simple tip off. Dr. Milton A. Maxwell, in a study distributed by the Center of Alcohol Studies at Rutgers University, wrote:

"The most significant, observable signs of drinking before or during the work day included the aroma of alcoholic beverages on the breath, the aroma of breath 'purifiers' or 'covers', the avoidance of supervisors or associates, and striking mood changes during the day.

Observable Signs

"The most common observable physical or behavioral signs were red or bleary eyes, flushed face, hand tremors, increased nervousness, greater irritability, more spasmodic workpace, procrastination, and neglecting tasks formerly attended to. To this could be added noticeable deterioration in work performance."

Another study in which Maxwell joined concluded:

"Over all, the problem drinkers in this study were absent 2.5 times as many days, cost three times as much in sickness payments, and had 3.6 times as many accidents as the matched controls."

The matched controls were those workers in a group similar to the drinkers except for one important difference: they did not drink.

Is alcoholism prevalent in industry?

"A management which says it has no problem drinkers doesn't know what it is talking about," says Dr. J. L. Norris, medical director of the Kodak Park division of the Eastman Kodak Company.

James S. Kemper Jr., of the Kemper insurance group, adds that an employer who says he has no problem drinkers on his payroll is deluding himself as much as an alcoholic who says he has no problem with alcohol.

"The most expensive way to handle an alcoholic employe is to fire or ignore him, and the most profitable and effective way to handle him is to help him recover," Kemper says.

Costly Hangover

A few years back the annual cost of alcoholism to industry was roughly figured at $1 billion in absenteeism, accidents and inefficiency — which gave rise to the convenient phrase: "Billion dollar hangover."

Now the estimates have hit $2 billion, with a larger population, larger working force and, naturally, more people who drink. "And that's probably a conservative figure," says Lewis F. Presnall of the National Council on Alcoholism.

Labor as well as management has an interest in the problem, the National Industrial Conference Board said, and it is better if both attack it together.

"If either goes it alone, the other is apt to get suspicious," the board reported in "The Alcoholic Worker."

Leo Perlis, director of AFL-CIO community services, put it this way: "The union itself has a singular responsibility to help all its members by helping its alcoholic members."

Union counsellors are trained to recognize alcoholism in members and to refer them to where they can find help.

The federal and state governments are also concerned about alcoholism and there has been some talk of a White House conference.

Harm Studied

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has spent millions of dollars underwriting study of the harm done by alcoholism.

To get down to the specifics of the Du Pont plan that other industries may want to adopt, here is an outline drawn from material supplied by Dr. D'Alonzo:

"It is a simple plan, and fundamentally one to teach all employes to recognize alcoholism and, when discovered, to bring it into the open rather than to sweep it under the carpet.

"One would not conceivably want to conceal a fellow employe who had syphilis or diabetes. Why then would he want to conceal a fellow employe who has the disease alcoholism?

"The alcoholic worker is given every opportunity to lick his problem and he is fired only if he is unwilling to overcome it after due consideration of time and effort.

"We attempt to ferret out the cases and to bring them to the fore. They are all given a satisfactory time to rectify the situation after orientation by the doctors as to our concepts of the problem as a disease; then they have a discussion with our advisor on alcoholism, or some member of Alcoholics Anonymous, usually another employe of the same sex and often in the same department, and finally they are supervised.

"In the absence of medical complications, it is rare that more than two weeks away from work are necessary, and then only for institutional treatment. More often, no lost time from work at all is desirable. Experience has taught us that alcoholics do better with surveillance on the job.

"We have found that close cooperation with the program of Alcoholics Anonymous has given us by far our best results. We have also learned from experience that, when our psychiatrists work closely with this program, the results are further enhanced.

Worth Saving

"The controlled alcoholic is a good employe and he is good for other employes. He is, in brief, worth saving. Our program is effective. There is nothing complicated about it. No large outlay of funds is necessary."

Members of Alcoholics Anonymous, being recovered alcoholics themselves, know all the excuses for drinking and all the cunning tricks of problem drinkers. They have gained a high reputation for tireless, person to person work in helping fellow alcoholics sober up and stay sober. The members are a cross section of the population, for alcoholism reaches everywhere.

Still, AA can reach only a fraction of the nation's alcoholics.

At the Center of Alcohol Studies at Rutgers University, Dr. Selden B. Bacon, director, said: "AA has been enormously successful with some alcoholics, no one knows how many. It really began to expand in the 1940s and it has been perfectly wonderful. But there have been maybe as many as four or five million alcoholics at a given moment, and AA has perhaps taken over 5 per cent — even so, more than any other group."

Dr. Bacon sees alcohol as one of America's preeminent concerns.

"Money, sex and alcohol," he told an interviewer, "have been the greatest subjects of excitement in America's history of the last 100 years.

"What else has had the emotional wallop of alcohol? We changed the Constitution twice on the subject. We passed prohibition and we unpassed it. Constitutionally, the only thing to exceed it in interest was slavery."

Dr. Bacon is deeply interested in what may be learned from a current, years long study of the drinking habits and customs of all segments of a community of about 30,000.

The community may not be identified. However, it can be said it is an autonomous sort of city, not a bedroom suburb for a metropolis.

The center began its survey of the community in 1963 and ever since has been asking questions about how drinking is looked upon, and how it is handled, among the various groups, by age and other standards. One line of inquiry: who abstains and why?

Central Idea

The central idea, Dr. Bacon said, is to observe what has been done and then come back in, say 1972-74, and see what the results were. Subjects include the role of the family, the church, the school, the police, the courts, the places that sell alcoholic beverages and what they charge.

"For 125 to 130 years we have been fooling around on the basis of whimsey and bias," Dr. Bacon said. "What we need is information. We have changed tactics. Do these changes work?"

Dr. Bacon is a professorial type who goes in for such phrases as "the total context." He is also a down to earth citizen who dismisses some ideas about drunkenness and alcohol as "hooey."

For example, he said his Aunt Nellie might think a man who drinks a beer is on his way to ruin.

In some cases, though, Aunt Nellie might have a point. There's an old bar room saying to the effect that, "One drink is all right, two drinks are twice too many, and three drinks aren't half enough."

Some Prefer Coach Travel

THE HORSE - AND - BUGGY age still fascinates Sidney Latham of Dallas, Texas. He has a collection of about 25 carriages, which he hitches up to horses and drives around the area. Latham is president of the Carriage Association of America, with a membership of about 100 collectors in the United States and Canada. Here Latham shows off his hug - me - tight buggy. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

By TOM JOHNSON

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Sidney Latham heads an elite group who say the only way to travel — for fun — is in a carriage behind a span of spirited horses.

"Cars will never give me the exhilaration I get when I take the reins of a four in hand," he says. "There's just no comparison."

Latham collects buggies and carriages. He also is president of the Carriage Association of America, which has about 100 members in the United States and Canada.

"This road coach," he said as he flicked a speck of dust off a majestic, 9-foot-high vehicle, "was actually a rich man's toy."

The retired lawyer pointed out that "it has an ice chest for food and wine in the hind boot and even a commode inside."

"It was built by the Healey Co. in New York in 1900. It weighs 2,800 pounds. It cost about 3,000 turn of the century dollars when new.

Roomy

"When the aristocrat who owned it went to the races at Saratoga, it had room for 18 passengers, including four servants and two grooms."

Latham has about 25 carriages, buggies and gigs.

"I grew up in the tail end of the horse and buggy era," he said, "and I've always felt more at home around carriages and horses than automobiles."

He was born in the East Texas town of Longview in 1907.

Latham's collection includes these types:

Park drag, wagonnette break, park gate gig, hansom cab, hug-me-tight buggy, surrey, victoria, vis-a-vis, landau, side bar buggy (doctor's buggy), basket phaeton and hearse.

He said, carriage etiquette reflected the social mores of American classes late in the 19th century.

Driving Customs

"The male owner of the private road coach," he explained, "was the only person who drove the vehicle. But that same owner probably also owned a victoria. He would never drive the victoria, since custom demanded that a hired coachman take the reins."

Also, passengers always rode on top. The servants rode inside.

"This practice started in England with the carriage revival of 1865," he said. "It was more sporting to ride outside."

"The practice was picked up along the Eastern Seaboard in the United States, and spread westward."

Latham said there was also a strict procedure for going to the races in a road coach:

"The vehicle would be driven to a special area near the fence rail. The passengers — friends of the owner, and riding on top with him — would never get off the vehicle. Servants who had ridden inside would open up the hind boot and serve a grand meal on sterling silver and crystal china to those on top who watched the races from their elevated track side seats."

Latham said a special terminology was associated with carriages and gigs. To misuse a term was to commit a social blunder.

Some examples:

The fight was the off side, the left the rear side; a four in hand was a team of horses (four), each controlled separately by the driver; driving a coach was tooling; lights were lamps or lanterns; upholstery was trim; a seat was for two people, and a surrey was a two seater for four people; hitching up was putting to; window shades were shutters; a lap robe was a plush; and a cart had two wheels, a wagon four.

Latham, who says he is a "frustrated carpenter who ended up a lawyer," has a wood and leather working shop at his stables near Garland, north of Dallas. He has spent as much as a year putting a weather beaten carriage back into first class shape.

The road coach is his prize possession. It had come from Newport, R.I.

Latham opened up the hind boot and pointed out the cherry wood finish and purpole broadcloth work inside. Penciled on the interior was the inscription: "J. L. P. Gravel, March 29, 1900."

"He was the man who did the finishing woodwork on this coach," Latham said. "His signature is the mark of a craftsman of his day. You don't see work like this anymore."

'Behind Bogalusa'

The long, hot and sometimes bloody racial disorders at Bogalusa need careful and objective study by the reputable Negro leaders of Louisiana as a whole; and by worthy white leadership too. This applies also to Jonesboro, where racial demonstrations have been started again after a long period of quiet.

Bogalusa is not "another Selma" (Alabama) of last spring. Nor is it another "Montgomery" or "Birmingham" of past years; nor is there any resemblance in the inception of racial troubles at Bogalusa to the anarchistic racial violence in various northern cities over the past two years.

At Jonesboro the Negroes demand such things as better mail service, strictly a problem of the federal post office department.

In Bogalusa the chief Negro demand is greater Negro employment in a papermill and in some stores. Neither the city, parish nor state government can grant any such demand.

The federal civil rights act of 1964 covers Negro employment rights. Its provisions on non-discriminatory employment went into effect at the start of this month. The Negroes have the full backing of federal statute, the federal government, and the federal courts to remedy any violations of that law by white employers. But the Negroes turn, instead, to demonstrations at Bogalusa which become bloody and are accompanied by murder or reckless shooting of whites and Negroes by each other.

There is no issue at either Bogalusa or Jonesboro of school desegregation or voting rights or anything else of importance that can be solved by action of local government, parish or state government.

The only Negro demand in Bogalusa that comes under jurisdiction of the city government is that a closed public park be opened. It is closed to everybody — whites and Negroes. Opening the park, law enforcement authorities are convinced, would turn the area into a public racial battleground, probably including shooting.

Reports to the office of Governor McKeithen indicate that Louisiana is getting a fairly favorable national press as to Bogalusa; at least not an inimical press. Louisiana is the first southern state to get such a break; even the TV networks at times present Louisiana's side. This has come through outside recognition of the sincerity and determination of the governor to deal fairly and squarely with all sides in racial disturbances — and often there are several sides.

Further, the governor has created a favorable image of Louisiana — as to racial disturbances — in the White House, in the office of the attorney general of the United States, and with the vice president of the United States — who probably is the only top federal government official completely trusted by Negro leadership.

All of this is something that Louisiana Negro leadership — including leaders at local levels in various cities — should consider gravely. There is no "right" now granted to Negroes that cannot be obtained without endless demonstrations of the type to incite violent bloodshed. Yet Louisiana Congress of Racial Equality Core officials are quoted in newspapers in other parts of the nation as saying that if they leave Bogalusa they will concentrate on other parts of Louisiana.

That is why Governor McKeithen called a dozen or so Negro leaders of prominence and respect among whites as well as within their own race — including the presidents of Louisiana's Negro colleges and universities-to his office a few days ago. He urged them to recognize that the racial situation at Bogalusa and elsewhere in Louisiana is being incited by both white people from outside the state and Negroes from outside the state, and that the only solution rests in strong leadership, Negro and white leadership inside the state.

To the violence agitators at Bogalusa, the governor has called for "A plague on both your houses" and has referred to these people — Negro and white — as "rabble and trash." He is right, but to understand his remarks fully it is necessary to understand that there are four elements of citizenry involved in the Bogalusa situation.

1. The Negro demonstrators are led by two local Negroes of long police - arrest records, one described as an ex - convict. They head the Bogalusa Voters League but they cannot control their followers, the latter turning to out-of-state Negroes when the BVL officials agreed with Governor McKeithen to a 30 - day truce. The out - of - staters include Louis Lomax, a California Negro Author, noted as an orator. In a speech to the BVL he said he had "$15,000 (from outside Louisiana) to finance more demonstrations." The BVL rank and file jumped at the bait and voted to carry on in the streets. The other outside leader is James Farmer, head of CORE, who went to Bogalusa to further the Negro agitation before and after blood began to flow. Lomax recently appeared on a national television network program and there gave praise to Fidel Castro. He is known as a "loner" — not a member of any Negro rights group. But agitating wherever he can.

2. There is the reputable Negro population of Bogalusa which is not supporting or joining the BVL. Not one Negro school teacher or Negro minister has joined the demonstrations or joined the BVL, or the gun - carrying Negro "Deacons of Defense" organization.

3. There is the vast majority of white population of Bogalusa which apparently wants the Negroes to have a fair and square deal and which takes no part in the activities of the white agitators and demonstrators.

4. There is a group of white agitators, described as including Ku Klux Klansmen, or people of a type comparable to klansmen. They were led in the recent demonstrations by a man from Georgia known as a klan attorney, and by a white self - styled "preacher" from California who, when asked on national television to state his vocation, replied; "I travel around arousing the rabble."

Thus, the reputable Negro citizenry and the reputable white citizenry are under what amounts to attack and seige and suppression from rabble - type Negro and white groups, each of the latter led in past demonstrations by persons from outside of Louisiana.

Louisiana, according to a news dispatch from Bogalusa by Nicholas Von Hoffman of the Chicago Daily News Syndicate, and published in a number of non - southern newspapers from coast to coast, has been allotted to CORE for the current summer. This means that CORE is to have the dominant leadership in any and all racial disorders in this state. But, Mr. Von Hoffman points out that there is dissension within CORE as to what its activities should be in Louisiana.

Mr. Hoffman says that a large portion of the Louisiana staff of CORE has lost faith in massive demonstrations, such as Selma, and wants to concentrate on teaching Negroes their rights and how to obtain them — teaching quietly and privately through schools, and thus develop a strong Negro community working in behalf of not only their rights, but Louisiana's total welfare. These leaders publicly concede that the Bogalusa situation is hurting the state and the Negro cause.

They concede also that demonstrations such as those at Bogalusa must become bloody or the Negro groups cannot raise money in the North to carry on in the South. However, Mike Lesser, CORE'S Louisiana field secretary is quoted by Mr. Von Hoffman in this way: "My personal feeling about Bogalusa is that we are really attempting to make the best of a bad situation. To bail ourselves out the best way we can while we experiment and search for new programs and methods elsewhere in the state."

All-Asian Settlement Aim

'Stick Or Carrot' Plan Is Secret

THE BUILD-UP of U. S. combat forces in South Viet Nam to 150,000 by fall constitutes the first step in a still-secret program to seek an all-Asian settlement through a series of controlled military and political maneuvers.

This strategy, under preparation by President Johnson's principal policy - makers for months, is aimed at forcing a major military confrontation with Communist China by meeting head - on the Communists' escalation of the Viet Nam conflict.

Known as the "stick and carrot" approach, the new policy calls for:

"Extension of "controlled" bombing into Red China, with destruction of Peiping' "embryonic nuclear plants" as a major objective.

Offering China a multi - billion dollar development program in exchange for an end to Peiping's aggression in Southeast Asia.

WHILE DETAILS are still being worked out by McGeorge Bundy, the President's chief foreign policy adviser, the overall design of this controversial program is now being made known to key foreign diplomats, including the Soviet leaders.

According to a National Security Council paper being circulated in highest government quarters, Roving Ambassador Averell Harriman's mission to Moscow was to brief Russian officials on U. S. intentions to force an Asian confrontation.

What arrangement Harriman may be trying to work out with the Soviet to eliminate the danger of a nuclear - armed Communist China isn't known, although the paper indicated this subject would be discussed.

Harriman raised this explosive question in 1963, while negotiating the nuclear test ban treaty. While no public announcement was made after Harriman's return, President Kennedy ordered the preparation of "contingency plans" for what was called "the nuclear sterilization of the Chicoms." However, these plans were never implemented, and were shelved after President Kennedy's death.

ORDER OF BATTLE — The "contingency plans" have been revived by Bundy and made an integral part of the administration's new China strategy, according to White House insiders.

While execution of these plans rests with President Johnson, Jonathan Moore, special assistant to William Bundy, assistant secretary of state for the Far East, is telling members of Congress. "The U. S. will not hesitate to bomb the embryonic nuclear plants if Peking sends troops into North Viet Nam."

He reports that, most important in this new strategy, "We are willing to commit more than we believe the Communists are willing to take."

Moore's legislative briefings parallel closely CIA Director Raborn's private warnings to the lawmakers that the No. 1 U. S. enemy in Southeast Asia is Communist China and not Russia, despite the latter's shipment of bombers and ground-to-air missile to North Viet Nam.

Raborn stressed that Peiping is keeping pressure on Hanoi to step up the war in South Viet Nam, promising "volunteers" to match the growing U. S. commitment.

Intervention by the Red Chinese, both Raborn and Moore indicated, would trigger the bombing of the atomic installations, including China's gaseous - diffusion plant. This uranium - producing reactor is near Lanchow on the Yellow River in north central China.

THE CARROT — In his recent meeting with Ambassador Dobrynin, Secretary Rusk revealed segments of the new strategy that are known only to a handful of administration officials.

Algeria Situation Is Not Disclosed

DESPITE THE supposedly rich resources of intelligence available to it, this administration has yet to shed any real light on what has been happening in Algeria since the sudden overthrow of Ben Bella on June 19.

So many different versions of the nature of the new regime, run by a tough Communist-trained and equipped military man, have been circulated that it is reasonable to conclude that Washington was not only caught flat - footed by the coup but is still empty-headed in terms of the coup's aftermath.

Only a few hard facts have emerged. Ben Bella was trying to play a middleman's course between the Soviets and Red Chinese, particularly in trying to get Asian Communists to agree to Soviet participation in the now - canceled Afro-Asian Conference which was to be held in Algeria. The new regime seems to take the Red Chinese side on that point — despite the fact that recurring violence in Algiers forced cancellation of the conference.

THE MOST DAMAGING aftermath of the coup may be in the deep errors to which this nation well could commit itself through wishful thinking. Already there is considerable press speculation — much of it transparently the result of trial balloons floating from the State Department — that the new regime, though Communist armed, is not really Communist dedicated. It is, instead, a regime of native socialists.

Precisely this sort of humbug led this nation to support Ben Bella. A measure of that support, incidentally, is the fact that American aid shipments were feeding an estimated two-thirds of the total population of Algeria at the time of the coup.

When Ben Bella took over in Algeria it was reported that, he too, was just a native socialist, a fairly moderate one at that. The New York Times in particular painted him in such tones, just as they once portrayed Castro simply as an agarian reformer.

When the coup came, however, even the most starry-eyed innocents had come to realize that Ben Bella was something else altogether.

His nation bristled with Communist weapons. His official communiques overflowed with pro - Communist statements. In particular, he had virtually become an African branch office of Fidel Castro's Communist revolution. Nevertheless, American aid still poured in.

IT IS THIS SORT of never-changing, long - range commitment to error that could be perpetuated now in regard to the "new" Algeria.

Our policy should not be based upon the sort of wishful thinking or outright mistaken information that brought us to Ben Bella's support. If the new regime is to be chalked up as significantly different, or as more helpful to us than to communism in North Africa, we should demand the easily visible signs of such a change.

An announcement that no Afro-Asian conference, including one from Peking, would ever be welcome in Algeria as long as Red China supports aggression in Viet Nam would be a dramatic example. Lesser examples could be as convincing. Any apparent move to shift from Communist orientation to Western alliance would be welcome. So far there has been no such sign.

The best anyone has been able to come up with, in terms of concrete evidence, is that the new regime has been denounced by the Communist press in France and Italy, but this suggests nothing more than that the new regime leans toward Peking rather than Moscow. It doesn't indicate that it is leaning toward any Western capital.

It is probably asking far too much of this administration to use all available economic and political means to move the "new" Algeria in our direction or at least away from communism. But at the very least we can hope that a lesson is learned from the "old" Algeria.

Vacations Often Improperly Spent

I CAN'T SIT by, silent and unfeeling, as I consider the millions of man-hours wasted and unfruitfully expended on what pass for vacations.

Looking up the definition of "vacation" in the Thorndike Barnhard Comprehensive Desk Dictionary, I find this concise description: "time of rest and freedom from work."

For many, freedom from regular work, maybe; but far from a time of rest. Too often have patients returned from vacation with the common complaint: "I wish I had it to do all over again. I was too active. I didn't plan my vacation. I didn't have the fun and relaxation I'd hoped for. I'm more tired now than when I went away."

A few pointers may help prevent you from becoming one of the many who return disgruntled and dissatisfied.

Six Rules

1. Plan. Plan. Plan. Vacation taken on a sudden impulse may occasionally turn out to be a good one, but there is greater chance for failure.

2. Did you get seasick on your last vacation? Then don't chance it again with the hope this time will be different. Plan for plane travel to reach your destination. And give up the idea of taking another cruise.

3. IF YOU ARE planning a European trip, don't try to appraise its success by the number of countries you will have visited. Better to hole in for two weeks in England or Italy, than use that short time for visiting a half-dozen countries.

4. Same is true for travel in the U.S.A. If you have only a few weeks for vacation it is senseless to push the speedometer day after day to reach California or Florida, and have only a few days remaining for relaxation at your destination.

5. Suppose you have more time. You can ruin a vacation in many days as easily as you can in few days. Remember the dictionary definition: "Time to rest." Playing 36 holes of golf a day isn't rest. Trying to pull in big fish every day isn't rest. Playing hard singles every day isn't rest. Moderation is the keyword.

Get A Real Change

6. Vacation really means "change." Do on your vacation what you don't ordinarily do at home. Many will disagree with what I say now. However, many patients who have tried it, say it's good advice.

Views Of Our Readers

Letter To President

Rayville, La.
15 July, 1965.

To the Editor:

Here is a letter I am mailing to the President, will be glad for you to put into your letters from readers column as I hope it will have some consideration throughout the country as a matter of much importance to us all.

T. S. Gunby.
Rayville, La.
15 July 1965.

President of the United States
Lyndon B. Johnson,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Mr. President.

A rare opportunity has been given you. The opportunity to appoint an ambassador to the United Nations, an ambassador of your own choosing without having to exonerate past appointments or to pay off past obligations.

An opportunity to appoint an ambassador from the United States of America to represent the United States of America, not the United Nations not international socialism nor the institute of foreign relations nor aspirations of budding nations not Red China nor anti-American secretariats nor shouldering financial responsibility for the United Nations and its projects nor appeasing Russia in violating its financial responsibility. In other words an ambassador who speaks and listens in the U. N. as a forum but whose feelings and actions are that the United States of America means more to him, to you and to us, yes and to the world than does the United Nations.

Above all the opportunity to appoint an ambassador who will under no circumstances nor conditions permit repeal of the Connally Amendment to adherence to the World Court, permit the turn over of United States military forces to the United Nations nor surrender one bit of the sovereignty of the United States of America to the United Nations.

It is hoped that you will use this opportunity to discharge your responsibility to the people of the United States of America.

Respectfully,
THOMAS S. GUNBY

Appreciation

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

The Methodist Ministers of the Monroe District have requested me to write you and express our appreciation for printing Mrs. Mary Wineinger's letter last Sunday, concerning Methodism, its doctrine and policy.

We are grateful to you for permitting this view to be expressed in your column.

May God's richest blessings be with you all.

Secretary Monroe District Ministers, The Methodist Church

Convention Site

To the Editor:

(The following letter was addressed to Mr. W. Davis Cotton, President, Louisiana State Bar Association and a copy to this newspaper for publication)

New Orleans, La.

Dear Mr. Cotton:

As a member of the Bar of the State of Louisiana, I think it is high time that the Bar Association, as an integral part of the professional citizenry of this State, take some steps to practice what we preach about tourism and conventions.

While everything possible is being done by government and civic leaders to attract tourists and conventions to our State and nationwide advertising programs are being planned, we, the members of the Louisiana Bar, continue to conduct our conventions and spend our convention dollars in Mississippi. This does not speak very well for the leaders of the Bar who plan these conventions.

It seems that it would be incumbent upon the officers and Board of Governors of the Louisiana Bar to explain to the Legislature, which is appropriating money for a tourist commission, and to the citizenry of New Orleans, Baton Rouge, Lafayette, Lake Charles, Alexandria, Shreveport and Monroe why you do not think it worthwhile to meet in these home communities and discuss our problems and plan our programs instead of trekking to some out of State site where the citizenry is no more interested in our judiciary and our practice of law than the man in the moon — except for the dollars that are spent there.

Here's hoping that as President of the Louisiana State Bar Association you will be able to take some steps to remedy this situation.

JAMES P. SCREEN

Last Letter

Chatham, La.

To the Editor:

Since this is probably the last letter that I shall write to you you may rejoice.

You claim to have a Forum for your readers, but you have been acting like stingy and narrow-minded folks.

You beg your readers to be courteous and brief and to the point, but you have gotten to the place now where you need some one to remind you to be the same way. You have been real positive on some issues, but on others you take the left, right and the middle and you just go in circles. You can take two thirds of two columns and what you say could be said in fifty words or less. Unless you improve some and improve your editorial page as a whole you may be minus some readers.

You may say that the space offered for your reader's views is a real courtesy and act of kindness, but some of your readers are better informed on some subjects than you and some of your first class reporters and writers.

If you expect us to be a certain way and abide by some set rules then maybe you had better use them too. Don't say, 'But I am the editor and it is my paper etc.,' because it is the people's paper and you are the people's editor or you are nothing.

REV. CECIL H. VENABLE

Section 14B

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Thank you very much for using my letter in the editorial "How Do They Hurt?" I appreciate your consideration. I still disagree with you very strongly but in the words of another:

"I may not agree with what you say — but I'd defend to the death your right to say it!"

May this country always be one where we have freedom.

Now may I ask you a question? If Section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Law stands, and management bosses gain more and more power — how is the worker going to benefit? A concentration of power in the hands of a few always corrupts.

Thank you again.

Arab Unity-- Is It Dream?

By WEBB McKINLEY

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — One Sunday in June, officials high and low in the Middle East talked of Arab unity, the Arab dream. No one said a word against it.

On the same day, these events took place and these charges were made:

The Arab Republicans in the Yemen, backed by 50,000 Egyptian troops, fought another battle with the Arab Royalists, backed by Saudi Arabia. The Cairo press cried "victory."

Government troops in the north of Iraq probed deeper into Kurdish positions, seeking to end a guerrilla war.

Oil rich Kuwait accused socialist Syria of blackmail.

Pro Nasser newspapers printed an alleged British plan to invade Lebanon. Lebanese nationalists claimed this was psychological warfare, and told a spokesman for President Gamal Adbel Nasser of Egypt to shut up.

Newspapers and the radio in Damascus boasted that Syria was the only Arab country to hang two U. S. spies and to refuse U. S. aid. Iraq said Syria was siding with Israel against the Arabs.

One Communist paper in Beirut defended Nasser. Another Communist paper in Beirut attacked him.

And in Jordan, with hardly a smile, Premier Wasfi Tell told reporters things were really more unified in the Arab world than they looked, that indeed he hoped they would become more so, and that Jordan wasn't taking sides. It was a hot morning, and he mopped his brow when he said it.

This is the condition of the Arab Middle East in the early summer of 1965, the year Nasser has called the one of decision in the Arab struggle with Israel.

Less than 18 months after the presidents and kings, in an extraordinary Arab summit meeting in Cairo, had signed a document ending all disputes, unity remained only a dream.

The January, 1964, summit conference marked a great moment in the historical and actual Arab urge to create a cooperative, neutral and eventually unified Arab world.

Arab leaders in the past had attacked each other viciously but on January 17, they pledged to "clear the Arab atmosphere, stop all campaigns of information organs, and solidify relations among the sister Arab states."

Their aim was unity, and most specifically unity against Israel, the Jewish state they were vowing then, as always, to wipe out.

The Arab sights were narrowed most particularly of all on the Israeli irrigation project which eventually will take each year 320 million cubic meters of Jordan River water from Lake Tiberias.

Against this "imminent Zionist threat," the Arabs agreed to mobilize their resources and divert the headwaters of the Jordan for their own use. Their first heady estimate was that it would cost only an initial $17.5 million — a figure Western experts believe more than ten times too low.

In May, 1964 the Arabs decided to form a Palestinian army to fight Israel. Last September, at a second summit in Alexandria, the leaders created the Palestine Liberation Organization and pledged a secret sum, believed to be about $28 million, to support it and its military wing.

Saudi Arabia and Egypt further buried their rivalry by ageeing to bring a gradual end to their confrontation in Yemen.

The Arab world, that noisy, frustrated, contentious and wistful world, was in a rare moment of its history when all was brotherhood. Or almost. That was only nine months ago. What happened between September and June to cause such dissary?

First, things were not as brotherly (the Arabs actually use the word sisterly in this sense) as they seemed. The Baath Socialist government of Syria was lonesome and unhappy, jealous and fearful of Nasser's Arab leadership, and beset by plots.

Second, Westerners viewed with skepticism, and still do, any real accord between Prince Feisal who had replaced his brother, King Saud Ibn Abdul Aziz, as ruler of Saudi Arabia and the revolutionary Nasser. Instead of withdrawing his troops from Yemen, Nasser gradually increased them.

Work to divert the Jordan tribuaries went ahead, but hesitantly. Lebanon had no taste for it and would not allow other Arab troops to be stationed on its soil to defend its end of the project. Syria started digging a 53 mile tunnel to divert the Banias River, only 500 yards from the Israeli border.

A unified Arab command was formed, and the Arab states pledged to contribute 15,000 men as a nucleus for the force; but the men for it did not materialize.

All this was just beneath the surface, but in March and April the tensions blew sky high. Nasser, who probably had known about it for a long time, suddenly exploded with wrath against West Germany for secretly supplying arms to Israel.

Amidst a hullabaloo, he sought to lead the Arab states into breaking relations with West Germany if the Germans established diplomatic relations with Israel.

The first cracks appeared in Arab solidarity. Libya, Tunisia and Morocco would not go along. Several other states were privately dismayed by Nasser's way of doing things, although they regretfully made the formal break.

In the meantime, Tunisia's President Habib Bourguiba had said the unsayable. He suggested in a speech that the Arabs had gotten nowhere in 17 years of trying to regain Palestine and that they might recognize Israel in her frontiers fixed by the 1947 United Nations resolutions, if the Israelis would agree to repatriate the Palestine refugees. To that end, he proposed negotiations.

What he said was not very new — Nasser had gone almost as far — but the Arabs reacted violently. Newspapers called Bourguiba a madman, a Judas and a tool of U.S. imperialism.

Twin Cities Week In Review

Poverty Picture Dominates Scene

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

There is apparently no longer any safety in extremes of time and space. Washington, D. C., for example, is some 900 miles away, but a deed done there a year ago was a dominant influence in last week's Twin City news.

The Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, which gave birth to a "War on Poverty," is the case in point.

TYLER

Local efforts to form the Ouachita Parish Economic Development Association for participation in President Johnson's anti - poverty program suffered at least two severe jolts.

West Monroe aldermen refused unanimously Tuesday to go along with the Monroe City Council and the Ouachita Parish Police Jury in endorsing that formation. Then, on Wednesday, Brewer Godfrey of Monroe, acting chairman of the formative attempt, resigned because of the division among governmental leadership.

From there, event piled on event and the future is at best uncertain.

Louisiana's Economic Opportunity Director Champ Baker said the West Monroe demurrer need not be fatal, yet a meeting scheduled Friday to choose association leaders was postponed.

Meanwhile, Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard voiced what appeared to be the consensus of a large part of officialdom when he said, in effect, that anti-poverty would take root in some fashion. His words appeared prophetic when it was disclosed late in the week that a charter had been filed Monday by a group of Negroes to form a non - profit corporation — the Ouachita Multi - Purpose Community Action Program — to administer anti - poverty activities.

Presumably, the matter rested uneasily at that point at week's end, though the aldermen did avouch in another branch of the controversy that no prior commitment was made to endorse the association. Four of them said they had no formal knowledge of the issue, while the fifth, who attended meetings at which the association was contemplated, said no commitment was made other than to present the matter to the full aldermen's board.

The upshot of the developments seemed unclear, but unofficial reports said the police jurors might reconsider their endorsement at their meeting tomorrow.

Weather Winds Rise

If the winds of debate swirled about the eye of anti - poverty, it was the wind of Twin City weather that was rising as the week arrived. A thunderstorm, with the emphasis on storm, struck with tornadic intensity late Saturday and early last Sunday, riding the edge of 70 m.p.h. wind gusts that wrought major damage to 17 light planes at Selman Field. One of the crafts, manhandled and mauled by the blasts, wound up deposited on a building roof, while others, even those in hangars, sustained rough treatment as well. Lights went on the fritz at Selman, compelling the use of portable beams for operation of the runways. Telephone lines were down in areas, along with countless limbs blown from trees, the trees themselves falling in some cases. Over an inch of rain fell in a single 20-minute interlude. Brisk winds and locally drenching rains revisisted the Twin Cities Thursday and Friday, though in hardly such force, causing more residential flash-flooding in isolated instances and hazardous driving conditions.

Symbolically speaking, there was other static electricity on the man - made front during the week, and there were halcyon days too. Scanned quickly, we have reference to:

The West Monroe Chamber of Commerce's denunciation Monday of a proposed federal cotton bill being plumped by Rep. Harold Cooley in the House of Representatives, and its equally strong endorsement of a Senate measure helmed by Louisiana's senior Sen. Allen Ellender.

The suspension of surface waste disposal from drilling operations in the D'Arbonne-Tupawek area north of West Monroe, the result of a Louisiana Department of Conservation hearing Thursday in Monroe. About 75 residents had complained of salt water from gas wells in the area.

News in the second category included the announcement by Sen. Jamar Adcock of Monroe that a state office building is being planned for the Twin Cities. Location as yet is indeterminate, though discussions have commenced. The building would be expected to economize on the private leasing of state office space, by drawing state operations under a single roof locally, owned by the state.

A victory dinner Tuesday was employed by the Monroe Chamber of Commerce to spotlight the successful raising of funds among downtown businessmen and property - owners for an 18 - month modernization survey. Scope of the survey will comprise virtually every aspect and adjunct of downtown Monroe's economic life, ending in recommendations for improvements that could make the town a model of modern city planning.

Also to the good were announcements by Parish Assessor Bert Coverdale on assessment increases racked up over the past year by area political subdivisions. Monroe's assessment jumped by over $3.6, for example, while West Monroe spurted $329,740. Non - municipal Ouachita Parish saw an assessment rise of more than $2.1 million. The total gain was $6.1 million, to a new high of $145.6 million.

Busy, Busy, Busy

July 11 - 17 was another of those hyperactive periods that have occurred with startling reguarity in recent months and which challenge a writer of hypo - ability to encase them in two brief columns of type. Unimaginative as it is, itemization, under such circumstances, becomes the sole recourse. There follows, then, a listing of stories that need to be touched, in no matter how cursory a fashion:

Another Monroe landmark was pushed along the road to oblivion Tuesday when the city council awarded a $3,418 contract for demolition of the old post office building, across from city hall. Paint peeling, floors bowed but unbowed, the structure has a worthy history of service, not only as an early post office, but as former headquarters of the parish health unit and, most recently, as the home of the Ouachita Valley Museum.

United Givers Fund President J. H. Scogin announced the goal of the organization's 1966 campaign for 13 parish agencies as $284,934, an increase over 1965 collections of $29,934.

A $1.9 billion public works authorization, approved by a U. S. Senate committee in Washington, included $520,000 for a concrete floodwall on the Ouachita River at Monroe.

Parking along DeSiard Street from Monroe's Ninth Street to the eastern city limits was banned Tuesday for stripe-painting, preparatory to the previously - delayed permament ban starting Aug. 1.

Monroe Finance Commissioner H. W. McSherry said the city's sewage treatment plant should be operational by mid-August.

Overall employment in Ouachita Parish dropped slightly below the previous month's figure, to 31,250, but still represented the greatest number of jobholders for any June theretofore.

The Monroe First Baptist Church started its Family Life Institute Friday, with the program due to run through today, featuring Dr. John Drakeford of Forth Worth, Tex.

The West Monroe Civitans Tuesday installed Clyde Greer as new president, while Friday the North Louisiana Archeological Society did the same to Manning Durham, who replaced Louis Whitfield.

And finally, in this segment of our weekly time capsule, a trilogy of developments at or pertaining to Northeast Louisiana State College.

Federal benevolence manifested itself Tuesday in grants totalling $881,449 for college work - study programs at 14 Louisiana colleges and universities. Northeast was scheduled to receive $65,121 for distribution as pay for part - time employment to students of low-income families in the fall semester.

Bids were opened on a third campus cafeteria, part of a $3 million construction program. Apparent low on the dining hall came to $286,617, while the apparent low on fixed kitchen equipment was $80,584.

A summer geography workshop at the college Thursday and Friday, co-sponsored with the State Education Department, drew some 140 teachers and administrators to the campus.

Wee Hour Scribbling

Thus we come in the unbelivably wee hours of the morning to that corner of our scribbling traditionally reserved for recaps best described as different in one way or another.

Certainly out of the ordinary was the visit last week with Dr. and Mrs. Clifton Tennison of West Monroe of three Portuguese nationals — the Rev. Jose Goncalves of Porto, and the Rev. and Mrs. Daniel Machado of Lisbon. The Tennisons (Dr. Tennison is pastor of his city's First Baptist Church) visited Portugal last year. Their visitors, in this country for the meeting of the Baptist World Alliance, recently concluded in Miami, Fla., were struck by America's material abundance.

The World's Week In Focus

Mariner 4 Scans Planet

By John Cale

SCIENCE TOOK THE spotlight during the week with the relatively close up pictures of Mars transmitted to Earth by way of equipment on the Mariner 4 space satellite.

We feel the premature question in the minds of many persons attending a news conference with scientists who were studying early early pictures: is there any evidence of life on Mars? — detracted from the real accomplishment.

How did this question manage to stand out in the list of the Mariner 4's achievements? This is a major mystery, but no one had gone so far as to hint that pictures taken at a distance of 10,500 miles from the plant would reveal signs of life.

Perhaps it's an indication of scientific honesty to hold news conferences with a group of weary scientists. But the policy overlooks entirely the space race with the Russians in which we are involved.

As a result, we have understated a major accomplishment. In fact, the pictures received from Mariner 4 were better than those the Russians claim to have taken of the moon's surface.

HERE WAS a controlled flight of 228 days' duration, skimming Mars last Wednesday and returning signals over 134 million miles. A successful correction was applied after the Mariner 4 was two months or so away from launching. Photo equipment was turned on last week by remote control from Earth — no small feat in itself when we consider time and distance.

At this writing pictures of Mars' surface along the Mariner's designated or "programmed" route are still arriving. Certainly, none of these will reveal much in the way of evidence of life on that planet — not at a 10,500-mile altitude.

But we feel we had best acclaim what is a major thrust in space rather than place undue stress on those mysteries the space shot was not designed to investigate.

Diplomatic Front

THE DEATH OF the U. S. Ambassador to the United Nations, Adlai E. Stevenson, was one of the more sobering events of the week. Mr. Stevenson died unexpectedly Wednesday while walking outside the U. S. Embassy in London. Twice defeated in campaigns for the presidency — in 1952 and 1956 — the late ambassador had assumed his post at the U. N. during the Kennedy administration.

STEVENSON

Controversy, nothing new to Mr. Stevenson in life, continued to follow after him in death. Broadcast correspondent David Schoenbrun had quoted him as saying in Paris earlier in the week that he regarded President Johnson's decisions in the Dominican Republic as a "blunder." Schoenbrun said also Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, stopping over in Paris en route to Moscow, was present when Mr. Stevenson made the comment.

Following the U. N. ambassador's death in London, Harriman told reporters in Moscow that he had not heard Stevenson make such a remark.

IN WASHINGTON, President Johnson's press secretary, Bill Moyers, said: "I think the President feels it's a disservice to the memory of any public official of Ambassador Stevenson's character and ability to quote him after he is dead and cannot answer."

"He does not believe it," Moyers added, regarding Johnson's view of the statement attributed to Stevenson.

Schoenbrun, nevertheless, stood by his story.

Personnel Changes

THE RESIGNATION of General Maxwell Taylor as Ambassador to South Viet Nam and the resumption of the post by Henry Cabot Lodge came about as a scheduled event of the previous week.

But the parade of changing faces was not to stop there. At Johnson City, Texas, over last weekend, the President waded through a number of resignations and appointments.

In the process, he lost the director of the U.S. Information Agency and named a new secretary of the Air Force.

The top - ranking Negro in the executive branch of the government, Carl T. Rowan, stepped out as director of the U. S. Information Agency to resume a career in journalism.

Rowan was one of Johnson's first major appointees and, presidential aides said, the first to leave. He was sworn in as head of the USIA, which spreads information on America through foreign lands, on February 28, 1964.

THE PRESIDENT ALSO announced the resignation of Eugene M. Zuckert, who has been secretary of the Air Force for 4½ years.

The announcement gave no reason for Zuckert's resignation.

The White House said Johnson told Zuckert in a letter: "You have served in our present office longer than any previous secretary of the Air Force. Both the Air Force and the nation are premanently indebted to you for the singular achievement of your years in this critical and demanding position." There was no word on Zuckert's plans for the future.

The new secretary will be Dr. Harold Brown, the Defense Department's driector of defense research and engineering.

IN THE TREASURY Department, James A. Reed has resigned as assistant secretary and the job will go to William True Davis Jr., now U.S. ambassador to Switzerland.

Factional Friction

POLITICAL WEATHER watchers read signs into a magazine release last week of portions of a book on the Kennedy White House days. Historian Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr. brought forth a wave of comment by releasing for publication in Life magazine portions of his forthcoming book, "A Thousand Days: John F. Kennedy in the White House."

The matter listed by the author as he led up to the appointment of Senator Lyndon Johnson as the late President's running mate in 1960 provoked thoughts and emotions over the country.

KENNEDY'S OWN staff was supposedly "shocked" by the appointment. And liberal labor leaders said they "doubted whether they could hold their own people in line if Johnson were chosen.

Particularly revealing was the scene of Robert Kennedy's offering Johnson the vice-presidential spot on the 1960 Democratic ticket:

"He wants you to be vice president if you want to be vice president."

But, according to Schlesinger, the presidential candidate's brother was obviously unhappy about it.

WHEN IT WAS all over, Robert Kennedy was heard to comment, "My God, this wouldn't have happened except that we were all too tired last night," the author related.

In the face of criticism from sections of the country and in certain areas of the Democratic framework regarding President Johnson's conduct of Asian and Latin American actions, the timing of Schlesinger's book release is significant.

THIS COULD indicate a more deeply rooted split in the Democratic Party than the Goldwater society of free thinking has effected in GOP ranks.

Federal Judgeship

SOME OBSERVERS TOOK note of the strong application of power in another entry into the news last week of the federal Attorney General.

Katzenbach voiced unqualified support for former Mississippi Governor James P. Coleman's nomination to a federal judgeship. The 5th Circuit Court of Appeals would handle federal appeals court cases — including civil rights — for most of Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and the Panama Canal Zone.

In testimony to a Senate Judiciary subcommittee, the Attorney General, who came personally to the campus of the University of Mississippi during rioting there, said:

"It is easy for Northerners to note some of Governor Coleman's statements on segregation and to leap to the conclusion that he should not, therefore, be appointed to a federal judgeship.

"To support segregation in Mississippi during James P. Coleman's political career was merely a commonplace political platitude; to support moderation, to exalt law and order and to counsel obedience to court decisions — these must be regarded as deliberate acts of conscience and devotion to principal."

More Troops

DEFENSE SECRETARY McNamara, who last December threatened to write off the Army reserves, said last week new U. S. troop increases in South Viet Nam would make it necessary to consider calling up military reserves, extending tours of duty and enlarging draft calls.

The troop strength in South Viet Nam reached above the 50,000-man mark early in the week as the first thousand men of the "Big Red One" First Division landed at Cam Ranh Bay, 180 miles northeast of Saigon.

The landings brought the total of U. S. troops in Viet Nam to 71,000.

The brigade commander, Colonel James Simmons, said the first mission of his troops will be to protect the U. S. Army's 35th Engineer group, which is working on harbor improvements at the huge bay.

"Later, when we get our feet on the ground, we'll get out there and find the Viet Cong." he said.

THERE HAS BEEN little Viet Cong action in the area of the bay in recent months, but a big Communist buildup has been reported in the hills and mountains inland from it. U. S. sources said Communist strength may be as much as a regiment.

Governor Rebuilds

LOUISIANA GOVERNOR John J. McKeithen gave personal attention to troubled Bogalusa last week but returned to Baton Rouge without setting the stage for racial peace.

As a result, both Bogalusa city and demonstration leaders turned to Washington. Governor McKeithen had called Wednesday for a 30-day cooling off period. But pickets were called out that same day to march near the Crown Zellerbach paper mill as demonstration leaders met with officials to discuss alleged job discrimination.

MAYOR JESSE H. Cutrer Jr., sent a telegram asking President Johnson to "use your influence to assist this helpless city that is being unfairly attacked."

A. Z. Young, president of the Bogalusa Civic and Voters League, said the league has asked for an appointment with the President in Washington during the coming week.

The six month old civil rights drive has as its goals desegregation of public facilities and "equal opportunity." The drive has been marked by frequent violence.

McKEITHEN SAID his meeting was prompted by news reports of a "massive drive" planned by civil rights forces and "Bogalusa is just the stopping place."

"What we can accomplish, I don't know," the governor said. "But I am convinced there must be some alternative to marches, murders, shootings and cuttings we have witnessed in Bogalusa."

LATER IN THE WEEK, President Johnson dispatched a Justice Department aide to Bogalusa.

White House Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers said Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach has directed John Doar, who is in charge of the civil rights division, to go to Bogalusa "to meet and discuss the situation with all parties." Moyers said the President "feels this is a local dispute and is going to have to be solved locally by the people concerned."

DOAR

The White House said the chief executive referred the telegrams to the justice department "because the department handles civil rights matters."

WHITE HOUSE special counsel Lee White has been working with Katzenbach and Leroy Collins, former director of the Community Relations Service, to try to solve the dispute.

The 'Flap House': Focal Point In Any Crisis

THE DIRECTOR of the State Department's Washington Operation Center, Lewis Hoffacker, in the cable room, where messages from overseas posts are received on a round - the - clock basis. Three five - man teams keep a 24 - hour watch at the center, ready for instant warning to Secretary of State Dean Rusk should a crisis threaten. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

By ENDRE MARTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — At 3:30 one morning, the telephone rang at the bedside of Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

The man who called was the watch officer in charge of the night shift at the State Department's operation center. He informed Rusk about a military revolt against Gen. Nguyen Khanh, then South Viet Nam's military commander.

The watch officer, who has to make the delicate decision whether to wake up Rusk, is the head of a five-man team which mans the center on the 7th floor of the State Department. Three such teams operate around the clock, and one member of each is from the Pentagon, either a colonel or a lieutenant colonel.

"Speed is our bible," said Lewis Hoffacker, director of the "Flap House," as the center is sometimes called. Others like to speak about the State Department's "Rumpus Room."

After the Bay of Pigs disaster President John F. Kennedy ordered this new instrument set up for use at a time of crisis — and there have been an untold number of crises since then, in Viet Nam, in the Cong, in Berlin and, more recently, in the Dominican Republic.

Hoffacker himself is everything but secretive. The 32-year-old career diplomat established his fame as a consul in Elisabethville in the Congo in 1961, when he risked his life saving two U.N. observers attacked by secessionists.

The center, Hoffacker explains, serves a twofold purpose:

Firstly, it keeps watch on emerging or potential crises.

Second, when a crisis develops, it assembles everyone in the administration working on the crisis situation, forming what is generally termed a "task force." The center shelters the group as long as the crisis lasts, feeds it with every bit of information on the situation, and protects its members from distractions.

The center is not a policy-making organ, but provides a well-oiled mechanism to help the policy makers particularly in situations when speed is of utmost importance.

Normally only important messages come to the center, but in a crisis, when a task force is quartered in the center, all messages related to the crisis are channelled to the force.

A "flash" message from an overseas post is simultaneously transmitted to the situation room of the White House, the military command center of the Pentagon, and the Central Intelligence Agency. Vice versa, whenever the Defense Department or the intelligence community receives an urgent message from its sources, that is automatically relayed to the operation center.

In addition to machines virtually flooding the center with decoded messages from abroad other machines provide Hoffacker and his staff with news reports.

All this material is used by the center to write a top-secret summary which is on Rusk's desk early every morning. Every shift includes an editor, an official responsible for this summary.

There are three extra telephones on Hoffacker's desk: a white one, connecting him with the White House, a yellow one to the CIA, and a blue one to the Pentagon. In addition to these direct lines there are several "secure phones" in the center which "scramble" conversations, making eavesdropping impossible.

There are also pneumatic tubes to Rusk's office and other important bureaus at the State Department to speed urgent messages.

In one room there is a screen on which incoming messages and replies can be projected. Rusk and Undersecretary George W. Ball use this screen to "converse" with American envoys abroad, an especially convenient and secure way of conversation in crisis situations when the State Department is not satisfied with receiving messages but has questions to ask and expects immediate replies.

In case of a real crisis which is expected to last longer than a few hours or days, everyone who has to deal with it moves to the center, bringing with him all the background material needed — and probably does not leave it before the crisis is over. These men form the task force.

The advantages are obvious, Hoffacker explains. All experts, selected usually from a number of offices, including agencies outside the State Department, are concentrated in one place, meaning:

—That they get the latest messages immediately and simultaneously;

—That they are together and can exchange views without having first to locate one another;

—That they are in a "secure" place, divorced from their regular duties, where nobody can bother them and where they can let their documents be strewn around on the desks, and —Where they can concentrate on the main problem, without being disturbed by incoming telephone calls or visitors.

By BRIAN SULLIVAN

BOSTON (AP) — The gifted child may seem to live in a world apart, but he does not.

"He has the same kind of joys, sorrows and problems as anyone else."

The speaker is Dr. Merrill Kenneth Wolf. He is 33 now, a short man with a beard, who lives quietly in suburban Newton Center. He is an instructor in anatomy at Harvard Medical School, and occasionally appears as a concert pianist in the Boston area. His wife, a teacher of English, is completing work on an advanced degree. They have no children.

"I've subsided," says Dr. Wolf, "into doing an honest day's work for an honest day's pay. I'm just a bricklayer in the temple of science."

But when he speaks of the problems of the gifted child, Dr. Wolf knows whereof he speaks. He has traveled the road now being taken, for example, by Michael Grost of Lansing, Mich. Mike Grost, now 11, has just completed his freshman year at Michigan State University.

Dr. Wolf, born in Cleveland, Ohio, was 10 when he entered Western Reserve University to major in chemistry and mathematics. Two years later his interests turned toward music and he transferred to Yale, to study under the famed composer, Paul Hindemith. He was graduated at 14.

"When I matriculated," says Dr. Wolf, "I was even more of a three-headed calf than the Grost Boy."

Dr. Wolf says the gifted child is the focus of an "unbalanced" public interest. He regrets the "sensational attitude" that views these children as vastly different from other children.

"They're really not exceptional," he argues. "It's only the unfortunate few who get this kind of publicity. And they're not out of the common run of humanity."

Dr. Wolf recalls that his teachers "put up with a lot of breaches of manners. They made a lot of allowances for me for immature behavior. I was doing advanced academic work, but I was a little boy emotionally."

He adds, grinning: "I reached puberty rather early and I became a rather repulsive teenager, instead of a rather repulsive moppet."

Dr. Wolf's relative obscurity pleases him, for he had a share of public attention and what he considers misguided advice.

He started talking at four months, and kept up the pace. But when he was growing up in the 1930s, he says, the educational theory was that all children "'should go marching through school together in lockstep. If you're taught the alphabet ahead of time, you know, you'll get flat feet, lockjaw, halitosis."

So, when his parents sought advice, Dr. Wolf says, they were told to take him out of school.

" 'He'll slow down,' " the experts said, fitting him into the mold. 'Why,' they said, 'he should be out playing baseball!' " The last word was a shout.

One serious injury to a finger, he says, and "you're out of action for the rest of your days as a keyboard player. Baseball. It's something like saluting the flag."

He chose the piano to the bat and, after graduation from Yale, began a series of concerts, sometimes playing his own compositions. "Conservative modern," he guesses.

At 21, he entered Western Reserve Medical School, according to plan.

"In medical school," he explains, "no matter how advanced the child, you're dealing with your fellow human beings. There are other issues involved besides intellect."

What was it like being in college so young? Didn't he miss a lot?

"I don't know," he says quickly, "I didn't do it the other way."

Washington -- Off Tourist Beat

By BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aside from being the capital of the United States, Washington is a sort of national looking glass.

The reflection is not wholly flattering.

President Johnson said in a message to Congress:

"The nation's capital should be a city in which every American can take justifiable pride. For the District of Columbia is more than a city — it is the seat of our federal government and the home of our most meaningful shrines."

First and foremost, Washington is a city of politicians and bureaucrats, most of whom don't live in it. The politicians are concerned mainly with the problem of national affairs or of their own states. That leaves Washington pretty much to the bureaucrats. The end result is an administrative jungle.

Washington is a city with all the problems of other cities plus some peculiarly its own, including the absence of elected spokesmen. Washingtonians can't vote on local matters.

There is the Washington of tourists — nine million will traipse through the place this year. Among them will be 600,000 school children, taking in the sights. Mostly they will see only the clean, safe Washington, stretching for about two-and-a-half miles along Constitution and Pennsylvania avenues.

Then there is the other Washington — the Washington where crime has increased 137 per cent since 1958; where two policemen, breaking up a fight and attempting an arrest, are surrounded and kicked by a mob of 200; where a woman is stabbed while praying in a church two blocks from the Capitol.

It is the Washington where an estimated 2,000 tear gas pens are sold monthly. To combat the increase in crime, President Johnson has asked Congress for an emergency appropriation of $1.8 million.

There is the Washington of the National Gallery of Art, one of the world's truly great museums; of the small but elegant Phillips Gallery, with its sparkling Renoirs and a breathtaking El Greco.

There is the Washington where Congress spent $129 million of the nation's taxes building and equipping an office building for 169 members of the House of Representatives.

Congress allows the city's welfare department $55 a month rent for a family of 13 and gives a needy family of four $2.56 a day for food.

Congress has decided that the presence of an employable man in a Washington house disqualifies the whole family for public assistance. It has been unmoved by critics who point out that the man-in-the-house rule sometimes leads fathers to abandon families.

For years Washington has had a first rate zoo, but no aquarium. Now Congress has appropriated $10 million for a fish house. At the same time, the privately run children's hospital disclosed it was nearing bankruptcy because it was treating the sick children of the poor at below cost.

The hospital reported that to hospitalize a sick child cost $47 a day. The city allows $37.

People outside this area rarely read about the world which daily confronts Marguerite Selden.

Mrs. Selden is principal of Harrison Elementary School. It has 591 pupils, 150 of whom need some sort of welfare help regularly. She has seen the day, Mrs. Selden says, when some of her students came to school so hungry they were nauseated.

"We seldom have a day," she said, "that we don't have a parent come in seeking help — the welfare check has been held up for some reason or another. The rent is due. The children need clothes to come to school."

Mrs. Selden is custodian of a dwindling fund, which once was $200, the gifts of individuals who had heard of the children's plight. A cubbyhole in the school basement is a sorting room for gifts of clothes and food.

One of the sorters is Bertha Marie Robinson. Mrs. Robinson, who is on relief, and her five children sleep in one room of four-room apartment which they share with Mrs. Robinson's mother, two sisters and the latter's five children.

Some of Mrs. Selden's pupils have been too sick to attend classes, but they have dragged themselves to school at lunch time. The free school lunch is their only meal.

One of Mrs. Selden's pupils was killed by a truck in March. He was racing home to share his free sandwich with a younger brother.

The school system provides free meals for about 10,000 school children — hot meals in the schools which have cafeterias; sandwiches, fruit juice, milk and a dessert in those which don't.

Washington is squeezed into 69 square miles, surrounded by Virginia and Maryland. Fifty-four per cent of all the land within the District of Columbia is exempt from taxation. This land is occupied by federal buildings, parks, roads, schools and charitable or educational foundations.

The city has 470,300 Negro residents, 337,300 white. The public schools contain 125,016 Negro pupils, 17,673 white.

While most visitors know in general how the federal government works, it is doubtful that many realize that Washington's form of government is nearly 2,500 years old.

Any Athenian from the 5th century B.C. would recognize Washington's form of government immediately. It is an oligarchy. But where Athens had only 30 rulers, Washington has thousands, the chief being President Johnson.

Congress is, for all practical purposes, Washington's City Council but no member of the council was elected from the city. Congress has to approve the city's budget and it even determines the city's taxes. The only tax with which the city's appointed fathers can tinker without consulting Congress is that on real estate.

A three-man Board of Commissioners, picked by the President, is responsible for the city's operations. Below them are 40 boards, 13 committees, 5 commissions, 2 agencies, 1 authority and 29 citizens' advisory committees.

Since each major federal agency puts up money from time to time for District projects, they, too, have a voice in local affairs.

As if this weren't enough, Washington is involved in 13 regional planning commissions of one sort or another.

For three years, at least, Virginia and its county of Arlington, the District of Columbia, its planning commissions, the Federal Bureau of Public Roads and the National Park Service have been trying to reach a decision on whether to build another bridge across the Potomac and, if so, where.

The National Capital Planning Commission has been dawdling so long over plans for the city in the year 1985 that the Housing and Home Finance Agency has threatened to revoke Washington's eligibility for housing and urban renewal funds.

Washington's present master plan is dated 1950. It forecast a 1980 population of two million in the metropolitan area — a figure exceeded by 1960.

As in other cities, the prosperous in Washington have moved to the bedroom suburbs of Maryland and Virginia. White middle class residential pockets remain — Georgetown, Cleveland Park and certain sections of the Northwest, for example.

The city has a desperate need for low cost housing. It has built 7,869 such units over the past 25 years and is in the process of completing another 898.

This is not to say Washington hasn't been clearing slums. It has. One 530-acre tract was cleared — and replaced by a private housing project where rents begin at $125 a month and where town houses sell from $25,000 to $46,000.

One result is that the poor have been compressed into slums. The city does not dare enforce the housing or sanitary codes: the poor would have no place to go.

Washington has all the outward aspects of a middle class town in the daytime. It has over a million workers daily, not counting the self-employed and the military.

The median income within the city is $5,993. Even so, 17 per cent of all the employes within the city earn $3,000 or less annually. By federal statistical standards that is poverty.

At last count there were 46,000 persons on the welfare roles at an annual cost of $23 million.

The effort to do something about Washington's problems is fragmented among many agencies, but a new one has been organized to coordinate them.

This is called the United Planning Organization and it was set up, in its own words, to serve as a catalyst. Money has come from a $3.1-million grant from the Ford Foundation. Another $1.4 million has come from the federal government's Office of Educational Opportunity, while the President's Committee on Juvenile Delinquency has contributed $1.5 million.

The UPO is attempting to treat all problems simultaneously — a coordinated program to provide jobs, emergency credit, housing, education, financial advice, legal aid and social advice.

The latter is especially important from a health standpoint. Washington has one of the highest venereal disease rates in the nation — 1,047 cases of gonorrhea per 100,000 population; 245 cases of primary syphilis.

Jobs still rank as the foremost need.

Ruby Wyatt Evans is an employment specialist for UPO. Her clients often are the ones other agencies, public and private, have found to be unemployable. Mrs. Evans is an angry woman.

"These people," she said, sweeping an arm at an anteroom filled with people, "need some sense of independence, some feeling that somebody cares.

"If we haven't done anything else, we are beginning to get some of them out of those dark rooms in back alleys where they have hidden out of shame and a sense of hopelessness."

"The average persons who come in here," Mrs. Evans continued, "is on the verge of a stickup. Ninety-nine per cent are flat broke. They are desperate. They don't believe in institutions any more. They don't want to be analyzed any more in the traditional social worker fashion. They want help now. They want a job. They want something to eat.

"They go to one of those disciplined social workers and they need food. They get no sympathy. She doesn't have food so she gives them a chit for food that is in a warehouse two miles away. They may already have walked two miles to get to her and now they've got to go another two miles and they don't even have carfare.

"So they are offered a job. The job is so far away they need $1.35 a day for transportation. Where are they going to get $1.35 a day? How are they going to eat until payday — if they get the job — when payday is two weeks off?"

Mrs. Evans made the point that charity is one thing, but the people she sees would rather have a job — or she wouldn't be seeing them.

UPO is seeking to arrange for small loans so that people seeking jobs — or having a new job — can be tided over in emergencies — and gain a new sense of independence at the same time.

Residents of other cities have some initiative at their disposal; the poor in other cities at least can vote Washington has had to go hat-in-hand to Congress.

Many people assume that since Washington is a federal city, the cost of operations is borne in large measure by the federal government.

Washington has a general fund — it excludes welfare, health and water — of $265 million, of which only $37.5 million is granted by Congress in lieu of taxes.

Washington cannot issue bonds to meet long-term needs. It can borrow from the U.S. Treasury, however, if Congress approves.

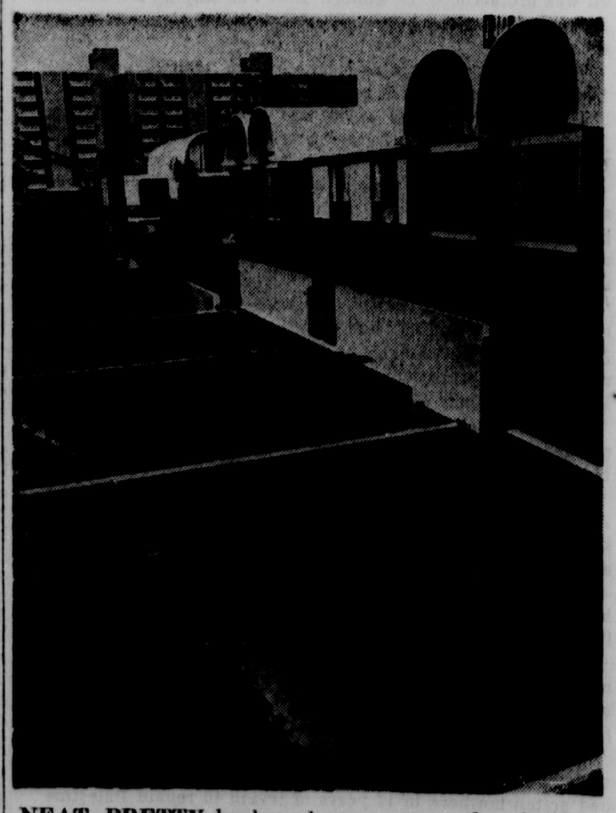
One of the few groups in Washington which makes itself heard before Congress is the Board of Trade. It is conservative and generally opposed to giving residents control of their own destiny, chiefly on the grounds that taxes would go up.

There is another reason voiced in private for the most part: If Washingtonians voted, the city might well be run by Negroes.

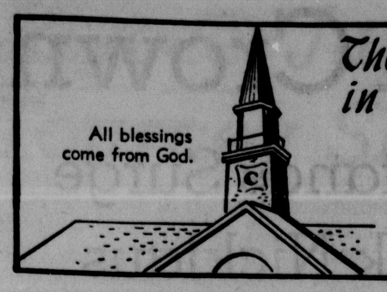
If you live in the suburbs, Washington is a nice place to visit. It has free band concerts and, during the summer, a free Shakespearean festival plus two legitimate theaters and a good civic symphony.

Washington is planning a $30-million Center for Performing Arts. Meanwhile, it makes do with a non-air conditioned sports arena for such things as visiting ballet troupes.

Conversation in Washington rarely turns upon the city's problems. A mere citizen is powerless and knows it.



NEAT, PRETTY backyards are among the pleasant features of "barreltop" houses in Washington's Southwest Development. In the background are new high - rise apartments. Private housing has replaced slums on a 530 - acre tract — and squeezed the former slum residents into the remaining over - crowded slums. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)



There's A Church Home For You in the Twin Cities...

All blessings come from God.

Anyone desiring to know the location of a church of any denomination in the Twin Cities and the time of its Sunday services may call The Morning World at 323-2070, FA 3-3660, FA 3-0501 and ask for the church service directory. We'll be glad to supply you the information.

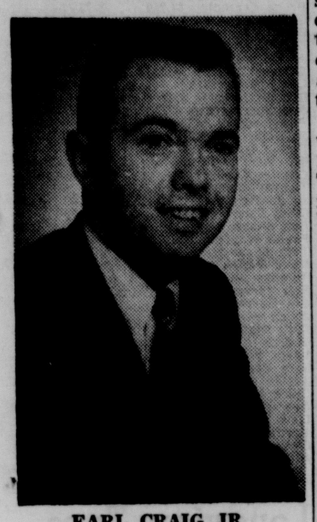
West Monroe Church Plans Daily Revival

The West Monroe Methodist Protestant Church, 232 Lilac St. will open a series of daily revival services today that will continue through Friday, July 30, it was announced by the Rev. Ken Renfrow, pastor, who will serve as music director of the meetings.

Featured evangelist will be the Rev. James Mozingo, of Toxey, Alabama. Meetings will be held nightly at 7:30. The auditorium will be air conditioned and a nursery will be open for children.

Rev. Renfrow gave this background on the denomination:

"The Methodist Protestant Church organized in 1828, is an independent branch of John Wesleyan Methodism. It is holiness in doctrine, democratic in government, conservative in viewpoint. It embraces the Bible as the inspired word of God. the Apostles Creed as the established belief of the church. It opposes liberalism, socialism, communism, and the National Council of Christian Churches, of which it is not a member."



EARL CRAIG JR.

Youths To Lead Revival Meeting In West Monroe

A youth-led revival will start Wednesday at the First Baptist Church of West Monroe, and continue through Sunday, July 25.

Evangelist will be Earl Craig Jr. who is serving as pastor of the First Baptist Church, Ringgold, Texas, and music director will be Ken Mooney, minister of education and director of university student work at Grace Temple Baptist Church, Denton, Texas.

Meetings will be held daily at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

The evangelist is a graduate of Furman University with a B. A., and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary with a B. D. degree. The music director is a graduate of Mississippi College, and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Liverpool Hopes For Pontiff Visit

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — Liverpool hopes Pope Paul VI will come to England in May 1967 for the dedication of its new $7 million Cathedral of Christ the King. If he does, he would be the first reigning pontiff ever to visit this country.

The cathedral, a circular edifice enshrining a central altar, is now in an advanced stage of construction.

This city of nearly a million, with many Irish immigrants aong its shifting population, has long lacked a focal point for Roman Catholic worship. Now its cathedral, surmounted by a crown of 16 pinnacles 290 feet above the ground, is rising from a rocky plateau above the Mersey River docks.

They have been trying to give Liverpool a Catholic cathedral ever since 1853, when a gothic-style building was started. For lack of funds that was abandoned with only the lady chapel finished.

Second Attempt

A second attempt, on the present site, was launched in 1928. The foundation stone was laid in 1933 but World War II stopped work in 1940 with the crypt almost completed. Today the crypt, also used as a parish church, forms part of the foundation of a new and more revolutionary design.

Architect Frederick Gibberd won the design competition in 1960 and building began in 1962. The cathedral is a wigwam form which marks a decisive break with English tradition for long, narrow churches.

Gibberd explains that the trend in liturgy is to associate the congregation ever more closely with the celebrant at mass, that the cathedral must be built to enshrine its high altar, that the priests officiating at that altar must be clearly seen by the people.

He met those requirements by placing the altar in the center of the building and surrounding it on three sides by the congregation. That way 2,000 people will sit within 60 feet of the sanctuary steps.

For structural reasons the circular interior was adjusted to a polygon formed by 16 concrete trusses which hold together the walls, the roof and the tower.

A principal north-south axis through the building is formed by an entrance at one and the Chapel of the Blessed Sacrament at the other. A secondary axis is formed by east and west entrances.

The choir will be on the long axis behind the high altar, where it will not obstruct the view. The organ will be in a gallery over the entrance to the chapel.

Above the central high altar and its canopy a cylindrical space extends into the tapering tower of colored glass and concrete.

Most Significant

"In this way," says Gibberd, "the most significant space is over the most significant religious place."

There will be a parking garage under the nave with elevators to the main entrance.

The design of a circular building of such size posed special problems of horizontal and vertical stresses for Lowe and Rodin, the consulting engineers.

"We were asked to try and design for 500 years," said James N. Lowe, squinting up at the towering mass above him.

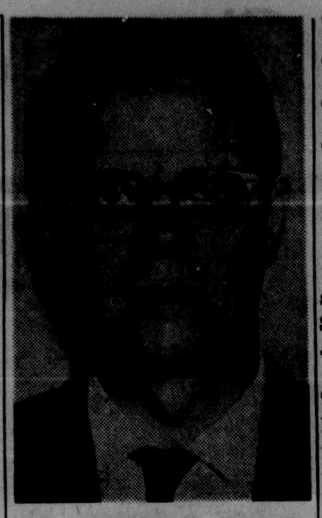
Experiments were made in wind tunnels, ovens and refrigerators to test stresses and the effect of temperature changes. Winds were blown up to hurricane force and the results studied on a scale model of the structure. It stood the strain.

In the 66-foot high lantern on top of the conical roof, there will be 70 tons of inch-thick stained glass imported from France and Germany. The largest panels weigh nearly two tons. Each panel contains about 100 pieces of glass.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. T. J. McKenna, cathedral administrator, and his staff think the Cathedral of Christ The King will be one of the great religious buildings of the age.

Church Music Degree

W. A. Bradshaw, husband of the former Shirley Ann Gulley, Sterlington, will receive the Master of Church Music degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth, Texas, Friday.



DR. WILLIAM K. EASLEY

Dr. Easley Speaker At Church Here

Dr. William K. Easley, head of the chemistry department at Northeast Louisiana State College, will be lay speaker for regular 11 a.m. worship services today at the First Presbyterian Church of Monroe. Dr. Easley is acting moderator of the church and last year served as chairman of its board of deacons.

His message, based on the Sermon on the Mount, will be entitled "Be Not Anxious."

Teaching Activities

A member of First Presbyterian Church since coming to Monroe in 1959, Dr. Easley has been active as a Sunday school teacher. He was prominent in the preparation of the church in 1963 for the new Covenant Life Curriculum and played a major role in the success of the first year of the new Sunday School study program.

He was a member of the board of deacons, 1962-64, and became an elder last January. He has served as acting moderator since March.

Dr. Easley is well known in state and national scientific circles. He has had experience as a professional research chemist and has written extensively for publication in national scientific and professional journals.

Daily Series To Be Opened This Evening

A summer revival will get under way today at Temple Baptist Church, 601 Plum, it was announced by the Rev. W. Leon Ivey, pastor. The meetings will continue through the following Sunday, with the Rev. Mike Gilchrist of Westlake serving as evangelist.

Rev. Gilchrist, who is a full-time evangelist, is well known through the Southern Baptist Convention. He has held revivals in several churches in the Twin Cities area.

He will bring the first message at the evening service today and will continue through the morning services of Sunday, July 25. Services will be held at 10 a.m. daily Monday through Friday and at 7:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Larry Kulcke, minister of music at Good Hope Baptist Church will be in charge of music. He is originally from Temple Church. His mother Mrs. Phillip Kulcke is director of music at Temple Church.

The church nursery will be open for all services and buildings are air conditioned.

Final Sessions Of Family Life Institute Today

Dr. John Drakeford, Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary professor, has announced topics for discussion in services today which will conclude a Family Life Institute which he opened Friday at the First Baptist Church in Monroe.

The subject for the 11 a.m. worship hour will be "The Family: The Laboratory of Life." In the 6:45 p.m. worship hour, the subject will be "The Family Meal — Bickering, Bedlam or Blessing."

During the Sunday School hour, Dr. Drakeford will speak to intermediates and young people on the subject of "The Developing Love Life." At 5:30 p.m., married adults will hear his discussion on the theme: "Compatible or Combatable — Husband and Wife Living Together."

Rev. A. Calaway Evangelist For Southside Series

Revival services at Southside Assembly of God, 600 South 8th St., West Monroe, will open this evening at 7:30 and continue daily at that time, except on Saturdays, through Sunday, August 1.

Evangelist for the services will be the Rev. Albert Calaway from Oskaloosa, Iowa, who is a graudate of Southwestern Assembly of God Bible College.

Old fashioned preaching, music and singing will be featured, according to the Rev. James White, pastor of the church.

Holy Land Tour Slated By Revs. Ramsey, Sellers

A West Monroyan who is pastor of the Utica, Miss., Methodist Protestant Church, Rev. Dwight Ramsey, will leave here by plane Wednesday for a trip to the Holy Land.

Accompanying him will be the Rev. F. E. Sellers, president of the General Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, Monticello, Miss. Rev. Ramsey, a ministerial student at Whitworth College, Brookhaven, Miss., the denomination's school, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Ramsey, 2320 Cypress, West Monroe. He is a graduate of West Monroe High School and was a member of the Methodist Protestant Church in West Monroe before going to Mississippi.

Plans call for the two leaving Selman Field, Wednesday to go to Philadelphia. And from there they will go to Geneva, Switzerland. Next stop will be Rome for two days, Cairo, Egypt and a tour of the Pyramids, and then to Jerusalem. with arrival scheduled for July 27.

They will visit the Jordan area and then later go on tours of Israel, viewing many historic scenes with religious background.

After the visit to Israel they will go to Geneva for six days, August 5 - 11 where the International Council of Christian Churches congress will be in progress.

They are scheduled to return to Monroe around August 14.

Curate Of Grace Church In Japan On Special Work

The Rev. William E. Baldridge, curate at Grace Episcopal Church, is in Japan, participating in work in the Diocese of Tohoku for the remainder of July and two weeks in August.

The Rev. Baldridge left Monroe Wednesday, arriving at the Tokyo Airport Thursday, and traveling by train to Fukushima for services today. While in Japan, he is the guest of the Rev. and Mrs. William F. Draper, former member of the clergy in the Diocese of Louisiana, now serving as a missionary in Japan.

Base of operations for the Rev. Baldridge will be Sendai, 220 miles north of Tokyo. However, he will visit missions in several cities and towns on the island of Honshu. He will speak on numerous occasions in behalf of a closer Christian fellowship between church members in Japan and the United States, particularly the Diocese of Louisiana.

Pastor Starts Duties With Church Here

The Rev. Tom Hale has assumed the pastorate of the First Southern Methodist Church, 400 Jackson St., Monroe.

The pastor, his wife and son, Thomas Mitchell, came here last week from Mobile, Ala., where he had been associated with the National Broadcasting Company, the Ford Philpot Crusades and a television program called "The Story."

The Monroe pastorate is Rev. Hale's third since he entered the ministry in 1958. The church here, holding meetings temporarily in Enaut Hall, 400 Jackson, is a year old, and officials said they "are proud of securing a full-time pastor at this early date."

From Kentucky

Rev. Hale is from Wilmore Kentucky. He attended Asbury College, Olivet College in Illinois and Gulf Coast College in Panama City, Florida. Mrs. Hale is a graduate of Olivet College in Illinois with a major in organ and choral music. She has taught music in the Florida and Illinois school systems. Before accepting a pastoral position the Hales traveled in the evangelistic field. They have also worked as house parents in homes for exceptional children in Springfield and Columbus, Ohio.

The church conducts a full church program, including Sunday School Classes for all grades, morning worship, Epworth youth League on Sunday Evenings, a soul-winning and personal evangelism class on Sundays at 6:45 p.m., Sunday Evening worship at 7:30 and midweek prayer meeting and Bible study on Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m.

The First Southern Methodist Church represents Wesleyan Doctrine with a strong emphasis on evangelism. It is affiliated with the American Council of Churches and the International Council of Churches, in opposition to the National Council of Churches and the World Council of Churches. Southern Methodist Doctrine is fundamental and conservative.

The Rev. and Mrs. Hale are residing in the Woodlawn Manor Apartments on Shannon Road.

Summer Series Of Meetings At Church In Area

A series of summer meetings which opened Saturday will continue through Sunday, July 25 at the Claiborne Church of Christ on Wallace Dean Road, West Monroe.

Evangelist is Wayne L. Fussell, a native of Oklahoma who now resides in Shreveport. Well known as a public speaker, he has traveled widely and lectured in many states.

Church officials said that "His sermons are direct, interesting and Bibically factual." They said discussions will be about matters of eternal importance. Mr. Fussell, as well as teachers of the church, will be available for private talks.

Congregational singing will precede each sermon and there will be no collections.

Missionaries Will Speak At Quarterly Meet

"At the Name of Jesus Every Knee Should Bow" is the theme of the regular quarterly meeting of the Concord Associational W.M.U. which will be held at the Choudrant Baptist church, Thursday, beginning at 9:30 a.m.

As a special feature, Dr. and Mrs. James M. Young, foreign missionaries from Ruston, will present "The Story of Yemin." Other highlights of the day are Mrs. Bob Golden bringing the devotional and Mrs. Billy Grafton presenting the special music.

The missionary message will be delivered by the Rev. John Gilbert, from the Mission Center in Shreveport.

Trenton W.M.U. Names Speaker

Earl D. Mercer, public relations director for the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home in Monroe, will address two meetings sponsored this week by the Woman's Missionary Union of Trenton Baptist Association.

Mrs. J. E. Muckleroy has announced that the Children's Home official will speak at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the First Baptist Church in West Monroe and during a meeting to begin at 10 a.m. Wednesday at Highland Baptist Church in West Monroe.

Pulpit Guest

Pulpit guest today at New Chapel Hill Baptist Church in West Monroe will be Wade B. East, superintendent of the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home in Monroe. The church is currently without a pastor.

St. Paschal's Catholic Church, 711 North 7th St., West Monroe

Work Of Church Extended In 25 Years Since Founding

St. Paschal's Catholic Church, 711 North 7th St., West Monroe, was organized a quarter of a century ago, and has made many advances since that time.

A booklet issued by the church covering that period sums it up this way:

"The 25 years of St. Paschal's history are not so much marked by the building of structures of board, brick, and cement, but the account of how God's grace has flowed abundantly into the cooperative souls of those who lived in West Monroe. Over the period of 25 years 799 were baptized at St. Paschal's; of this number 214 were converts to the Catholic Faith, whose coming into the church fulfilled just one of the purposes of having a St. Paschal's. God's grace was always available to those who wished to receive it. As a matter of fact, the Franciscan Fathers of the St. Louis Province were sent here 25 years ago to make God's grace more accessible to all. And it is their hope that they will be able to serve you better in the new church."

The new church reference is to the beautiful $200,000 brick church building on which construction work was finished in November, 1964, and which was solemnly blessed and dedicated December 16 of that year by His Excellency Bishop Charles Greco of Alexandria.

Dedication

The present building for St. Paschal's School which is located on Wilson St., next to the church, was dedicated December 3, 1958, and four days later open house was held. The school has grades one through eight. The church at one time had a high school with grades one through 12. but it was closed in 1954.

Many passersby as well as residents of the vicinity of St. Paschal's are familiar with the Angelus which sounds three times a day, 7 a.m., noon, and 6 p.m., as a call to prayer for the community. The calls are sounded by three bells in the church tower.

The movements which brought St. Paschal's Church into being can be traced back to 1939, when at the request of the Most Rev. Daniel F. Desmond, then bishop of Alexandria, the Very Rev. Vincent Schrempp, provincial of the Sacred Heart Province of Franciscans in the United States, sent three Franciscan Priests into this diocese.

Franciscans Arrive

The first Franciscan arrived December 30, 1939 and centered his activities on establishing a parish for the colored people of the City of Monroe. At the summer chapter of the Sacred Heart Province held July 10, 1940, the Rev. Henry Freiburg was assigned to open a new parish in West Monroe, and Rev. Jasper Mauss was assigned as his assistant. Rev. Mauss arrived in Monroe, July 20, 1940, and Rev. Freiburg arrived July 24 of that year. The Franciscans took up temporary residence at St. Francis Hospital.

Before the arrival of the Franciscans, Bishop Desmond obtained a large parcel of property on North 7th St., West Monroe. This land area was about one square block. Later six lots in the present tract were donated by John Spatafora of Monroe. Within a year the remaining four lots had been acquired. A small house on the latest property purchased was moved to another section of the tract and used for several months as a residence for the fathers.

Authority Broadened

The scope of the Franciscans authority was broadened October 28, 1940 when they were given perpetual charge of four and one half parishes, and temporary charge of a fifth. The parishes were Ouachita, west of the Ouachita River, Union, Lincoln Morehouse, Richland, and temporarily Franklin. These parishes covered an area of more than 3,143 miles.

On September 19, 1940 a mass meeting of West Monroe Catholics was held in the auditorium of St. Matthew's School in Monroe, with Rev. Freiburg presiding. Plans for the erection of a new church building and fund raising were discussed. In the first week of the drive $2,000 was collected. Plans for the new building were drawn and the new parish was extended about 50 miles west and north through territory about one per cent Catholic. The population of West Monroe at that time was about four per cent Catholic, according to church officials.

Bishop Desmond blessed the ground and turned the first spade of dirt at the new church site October 26, 1940. Three days later work was started. The frame building was unofficially opened and midnight mass was celebrated on Christmas, 1940. On Sunday, January 19, 1941, the Very Rev. Vincent Schrempp celebrated high mass at 9 a.m. in the new building and at 10 a.m. it was formally dedicated and blessed by Bishop Desmond.

Ground Breaking

Ground was broken for St. Paschal's School May 5, 1941 and the school doors opened and classes started on September 29, 1941 with 38 students in attendance. The building was formally blessed and dedicated on December 14 of that year.

Teachers for the school were supplied by the Franciscan Sisters of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, whose motherhouse is located in St. Louis, Mo. Extending the field of their activities to the missionary territory of northern Louisiana, three Franciscan Sisters arrived from St. Louis to take charge of St. Paschal's School, September 26, 1941. They were quartered in the little four-room house formerly used by the fathers. In the summer of 1943 a two-story addition was made to their convent to accomodate the increasing number of sisters.

A school cafeteria was constructed in 1944.

St. Paschal's sponsored the formation of a new Mission of St. Francis of Assisi on Highway 80, Calhoun. The first mass in the new building on land donated by Mrs. L. F. Rolleigh was celebrated Sunday, July 31, 1955. It was solemnly and officially blessed on September 18 of that year.

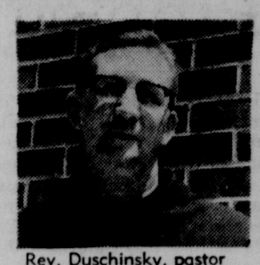
The present pastor and superior, Fr. Vitus Duschinsky, came to St. Paschal's August 12, 1954. His assistant, Fr. Method Wilson, arrived from Sioux City, Iowa on January 5, 1963.

Fr. Vitus was stationed in Cleveland, Ohio for 12 years prior to coming here. He was ordained in June, 1942 at Teutopolis, Ill. A native of Chicago, he studied at St. Joseph's Seminary near Chicago, studied philosophy in Cleveland, and theology in Teutopolis.

The Pastor's Corner

A MESSAGE TO ST. PASCHAL'S PARISHIONERS

Our mission to the world begins at the communion rail of our parish church.



Rev. Duschinsky, pastor St. Paschal's Catholic Church, West Monroe

Every member of St. Paschal's Parish is encouraged to be an apostle in bringing the love and truth of Christ to a world that really "knows Him not".

Millions of Catholics like you are strongly rooted in the teachings of your Catholic faith and its moral principles; you as a parishioner of St. Paschal's have the 'potential' of accomplishing world-shaking results; of bringing Christian principles into every phase of public and private life.

There is now, like never before in the history of man, a dire need for the sanctification of the world. You, as a parishioner, as a soldier of Christ, must be alert to the many ways in which you can make your own personal contribution to this mighty goal — "restoring all things to Christ."

Major Part

Your parish has a big part to play in shaping modern society. As a member of that parish, so have you. Pope Paul VI, while Cardinal Montini, has this to say: "The parish must be, above everything else, a center of religious life and of missionary expansion. The parish, the cell closest to man, and therefore the best adapted to form the personal, family and community life is for these reasons the most indispensable to society."

Your parish is the springboard from which you can go into the world to re-invigorate it and to deliver to it Christ! Every individual parishioner, young and old, man, woman and child must realize that every Catholic has a mission assignment from Christ. You must keep alive that burning sense of mission that God implanted in you at Baptism, Confirmation and through the outpouring of other sacramental graces.

Mission Begins

We Catholics must discover for ourselves that our mission to the world begins at the Communion rail of our parish church. And, as parishioners, as you become more personally involved in carrying Christ from the sanctuary into every phase of life, you will grow in appreciation of the power of your parish to change the world for the better.

Any effort to help members of a parish to "go from it as Christ-bearers — and keep going — into a spiritually starved world is bound to make the parish an even more vital unit in furthering the universal mission of the Church. That's St. Paschal's goal; and as a parishioner of St. Paschal's that must always be your goal!

MY ANSWER

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: If one keeps the Ten Commandments, tries to be kind to everyone, visits church as often as possible, hasn't that person done what is required of him?

P.W.

ANSWER: You are reducing the Christian religion to simpler terms than even its Author did. To the Pharisees, who did the things you mention and and many more. He said: "Except your righteousness exceeds the righteousness of the Scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter the kingdom of heaven." They all kept the Commandments, they all went to church, they all observed the Sabbath, and they all died and were lost.

You see, redemption is not something we do for God, it is something God does for us. We are not sinners because we break the Commandments because we are sinners. Two things stand out in the Bible: our helplessness to save ourselves, and God's willingness to do for us what we are unable to do. They are said simply and clearly in these words: "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life." If we could have done all that was required, it would have been fruitless and pointless for God to send His Son to redeem us. We are saved by faith in Him.

CURT LITTLER, 11, has a big smile for his father, Las Vegas golf pro Gene Littler who won the Canadian Open Golf title in Toronto Saturday. Gene holds his son in one arm and the Seagram Gold Cup in the other. It was Littler's first win on the tour since 1962. (AP Wirephoto)

Littler Wins Canadian Open Crown

Withstands Surge By Jack Nicklaus

TORONTO (AP) — Gene Littler of Las Vegas withstood a late challenge by Jack Nicklaus Saturday and won the Canadian Open Golf Championship with a 72-hole score of 273, seven under par for the tournament.

Littler finished the final round with a four-under-par 66 over the Mississaugua course and ran down a four-foot pressure putt at the 18th to stay one stroke ahead of Jack Nicklaus, Masters champion from Columbus, Ohio.

The victory was Littler's first on the tour since 1962 and gave him $20,000 top prize money from the $100,000 pot, plus the Seagram Gold Cup. It was also a pre-birthday present for himself. He will be 35 Wednesday.

Littler was the last man to hole out. In the threesome ahead of him, Nicklaus' bid for a 12-foot birdie went by the edge of the cup.

Bruce Devlin of Australia who led after the third round with a 205 went four over par with a 74 and finished in a tie at 279 with Charles Sifford of Los Angeles.

Arnold Palmer of Latrobe, Pa., who was tied with Nicklaus at 207 starting the final round, blew to a 76 for a 283.

Joe Campbell, of Perdido Bay, Fla., the first round leader, finished in a tie for third place at 278 with Homero Blancas of Houston, Tex., Rod Funseth of Spokane, Wash., Randy Glover of Florence, S.C., and Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn.

On the last nine Littler sank three birdies and six pars. One of his birdies, a 4, came on the 12th, where Nicklaus gambled with his second shot, attempting to reach the green over a creek. He was short and the ball went into the water. He wound up taking a 6.

Nicklaus figured, however, that the 17th hole was the one that "lost the tournament." It is 323-yard par. Jack drove about 70 feet from the pin, but his chip was poor, leaving him 30 feet short. He took two putts for a par.

Littler, who had rounds of 70, 68, 69 and 66, attributed his showing to his improved putting.

"I haven't had a week of putting like this in four years," he said.

He took only 28 putts in his final round and had eight one-putt greens. He had only one three-putt green in the tourney.

Chicago Beats Los Angeles, 4th Straight

CHICAGO (AP) — Southpaw Tommy John pitched the Chicago White Sox to their fourth straight victory Saturday, a 5-2 decision over the Los Angeles Angels.

John, recording his eighth victory in 11 decisions, limited the Angels to five hits, including a two-run homer by Bobby Knoop in the second inning.

Knoop's blow sent center fielder Ken Berry crashing into the wall. Berry, who was carried off the field on a stretcher, suffered a gash over his left eye which required four stitches.

Chicago took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when starter Rudy May walked the only three men he faced. Aubrey Gatewood retired the next three men, with Pete Ward driving in the run on a sacrifice fly.

Knoop's homer gave the Angels a temporary lead which Floyd Robinson, star of Friday night's victory with a game-winning triple in the 11th inning, erased.

A's Take Third Straight From Minnesota Twins

MINNEAPOLIS — ST. PAUL (AP) — Ed Charles, a pinch hitter for a pinch hitter drove in Rene Lachemann with a ninth-inning sacrifice fly, lifting the Kansas City Athletics to their third straight victory over the American League — leading Minnesota Twins 5-4 Saturday.

Tom Reynolds led off the ninth with a single, but Lachemann forced him at second. AL Worthington then loaded the bases on walks to Mike Hershberger and Johnny Blanchard, and Bill Bryan was sent to bat for pitcher Don Mossi.

But when Bill Pleis replaced Worthington, Charles batted for Bryan and flied deep to Jimmie Hall in center field, driving in Lachemann.

The Athletics rallied from a 4-0 deficit to tie the game on home runs, two by Dick Green and one by Ken Harrelson.

Green and Harrelson touched Twins' starter Dick Stigman for successive homers in leading off the A's seventh inning.

In the eighth, Bert Campaneris is beat out an infield hit and Green followed with his second homer.

Ruston Squads Win In Tourney For Dixie Youth

RUSTON (Special) — Two Ruston Dixie Youth All-Star teams took victories in the Dixie Youth Baseball Tournament being held here.

In the first contest, Ruston East All-Star scored six runs in the fifth inning and rode the one-hit pitching of Greg Hamilton to an 11-0 victory over the Union Parish All-Stars.

Hamilton, who fanned 10, hit a home run along with Tommy Lomax and Bill Seamon. David Trussell had four hits and Steve Martin four.

Gary Booth was the losing Union Parish hurler.

Ruston West used a two-homer by Milo bump in the fourth inning to edge past El-Dorado, Ark., 3-1, in a pitcher's contest.

Ricky Rockett, the losing hurler, fanned 11 and walked none while Daniel Graham, the winning pitcher, whiffed 10 and walked two.

In Monday's games, the two Ruston teams meet at 8:30 while the two losers Saturday night meet at 6:30.

Annual Softball Tourney Slated For Alexandria

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — The annual Alexandria fast pitch softball tournament has been scheduled for the weekend of July 31-August 1, and any team wishing to enter this tournament is requested to mail its entry in as soon as possible.

All entries should be mailed to Jack Wainwright, 103 Shady Avenue, Pineville, La.

The tournament is a double elimination affair, and a host of the top teams from Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi are expected to enter.

Trophies will be awarded to the first and second place teams, as well to all members of the championship team.

Cards Score 4 In 3rd Inning, Edge Mets 4-1

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bill White's homer capped a four-run third inning that carried the St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-1 victory over the New York Mets Saturday. The loss was the sixth in a row for the Mets.

Rookie Ron Swoboda's 16th homer gave the Mets a 1-0 lead in the second off winner Bob Purkey, but the Cards came back in the third, routing loser Larry Miller.

A one-out single by Dick Groat and a walk started the rally, and Curt Flood then wiped out the Mets' lead with a double. White followed with his homer.

Purkey gave way to Don Dennis when Jesse Gonder and Jim Hickman singled in the seventh. Dennis held the Mets the rest of the way.

Longview Tops Ruston In Two

RUSTON (Special) — Longview swept a day-night doubleheader from the T. L. James Contractors for the second time this summer here Saturday.

Longview had earlier defeated the Ruston based team last month.

In the first game, Longveiw used 13 hits to rout the Contractors, 15-3. Jimmy Malone had two hits, three runs-batted-in and a double, Rusty Musser had two hits along with Danny Malone and Joe Blair had three with a double. J. B. Martin and Steve Barham had two hits for Ruston.

In the nightcap, Longview's Ray Rutledge set the Contractors down on six hits to take the victory, 8-4. Mickey Whitis had two hits for the winners. Cecil Barham had two hits with a double for Ruston.

The Contractors host El Dorado, Ark. Monday night.

Yanks Rally In 9th To Edge Solons, 5-4

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Pepitone, back in action after a fine and one-game benching, singled across the winning run as the New York Yankees rallied for four runs in the ninth inning and beat Washington 5-4 Saturday.

The Yanks raked Senator reliever Ron Kline for four straight hits after he took over for starter Buster Narum with two on and one out. Clete Boyer started the uprising with a single off Narum. Then with oue out, Hector Lopez batted for pitcher Gil Blanco and walked. Bobby Richardson and Tony Kubek singled — the fourth hit of the game for each — making it 4-2, and Mickey Mantle tied it with a two-run ground rule double. Pepitone then lined a shot down the first base line for his first hit in 17 times at bat.

Pepitone was fined an undisclosed amount and benched Friday night by Manager Johnny Keane for arriving late at the ball park.

Big Frank Howard hit a two-run homer off Yankee starter Whitey Ford in the first inning, and the Senators eventually built their lead to 4-1.

Louisiana To Have Days At Houston Dome

HOUSTON (Special) — The Houston Astros have designated July 24th and 25th as "Louisiana Days" at the Harris county dome when the Astros meet the All-Star studded Cincinnati Reds in three games in two days at 1:30 and 7:30 Saturday, July 24 and 1:30 Sunday, July 25.

The Astros will pay special tribute to all Louisiana baseball fans through a presentation to Governor John McKeithen and have scheduled special pregame entertainment for Saturday night and Sunday afternoon as an added attraction for Louisiana fans.

Eddy Arnold, the popular singing star who has sold over 37,000,000 records, will perform Saturday, July 24, prior to the Astros vs. Reds night game scheduled for 7:30 p.m. The Arnold show is slated to start at about 7:10 p.m.

Sharkey Bonano and his Kings of Dixieland, who are presently featured at the Roosevelt Hotel in New Orleans, will fly into Houston Sunday, July 25 for a pre-game show starting at 1:00 p.m. Sunday and will also play between innings.

Good seats are still available for the weekend series with the Reds and for the entire nine game homestand that opens Wednesday night, July 21 against the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals. The Cards play again Thursday night before the Reds open a four game series Friday night. The Milwaukee Braves close out the short homestand with night games, July 26-28.

Tickets for all these games are available in advance at the dome 9 a.m. through 5 p.m. daily and at Trans-Texas Airways counters in the Rice and Sheraton-Lincoln Hotels in downtown Houston, and at all TTA offices throughout the Southwest, at three Foley's stores—downtown, Sharpstown and Pasadena—and by mail by sending check or money order to Tickets, Houston Astros, P.O. Box 1691, Houston, Texas 77001.

Franks Signs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Manager Herman Franks signed a new contract as manager of the San Francisco Giants Saturday extending his tenure through the 1966 season.

"We have had this in mind for some time," said Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants, "and we were pleased when Herman agreed to the extension. He has done a fine job for us this far, and I am sure all San Francisco fans agree."

Dodgers Trim Cubs 7-2, Back In First Place

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Jim Gilliam slammed four singles, two of them cashing in stolen bases by Maury Wills, as the Los Angeles Dodgers vaulted back into the National League lead Saturday night by defeating Chicago 7-2.

The victory, coupled with Cincinnati's loss to Philadelphia, gave the Dodgers a one-game lead over the Reds in the National League race.

Lou Johnson, with a two-run homer, helped Dodger left-hander Claude Osteen snap his four-game losing streak and gain his first victory since June 17. Osteen allowed seven hits, including a two-run, third-inning homer by Billy Williams, as he brought his record to 7-10.

Johnson's homer, following a walk by Ron Fairly, put the Dodgers ahead to stay 3-2 in the fourth inning as they pinned the defeat on right-hander Cal Koonce, 7-8.

Wills singled and stole second in the third inning, scoring the Dodgers first run on a single by Gilliam. Wills reached first on a force play in the seventh and scored the fifth Dodger run on another single by Gilliam.

The steals were Wills' 58th and 59th of the season.

Boswell's Injury Lessens Twins' Pennant Hopes

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — The Minnesota Twins' pennant hopes received a jolt Saturday when rookie pitcher Dave Boswell was placed on the disabled list for at least 30 days because the 20-year-old right-hander has infectious mononucleosis.

To replace Boswell on the major league roster, the Twins called up right-handed relief pitcher Dwight Siebler, who had a 9-4 record at Denver in the Pacific Coast League.

In another move to bolster their infield bench, the Twins summoned Frank Quilici from Denver and at the same time made room for him by optioning Bernie Allen to the Bears.

Boswell who had a 6-4 record, became ill a week ago, but at that time it was suspected he had tonsilitis. Boswell pitched his first complete game of the season July 9 when he beat the New York Yankees 8-3.

He did not react to treatment for that, however, and his ailment finally was diagnosed Saturday as mononucleosis. Boswell was hospitzlied.

By Biggest Margin Ever' 10 and 9

Dokka Captures Publinx Title

PITTSBURGH, PA. (AP) — Arne Dokka, 21-year-old business and finance student from Studio City, Calif., crushed 24-year-old Leo Zampedro of Warren, Ohio, 10 and 9, Saturday and won the Publinx Golf Championship by the biggest victory margin in its 40th year history.

Dokka, a native of Norway who reached the semifinals last year, was 6-up after the first 18 holes of the 36-hole match final over the parched par 36-35—71 North Park Golf Course.

He won the 20th, 23rd, 25th, 26th with pars and halved the 27th as the putting and iron play that carried Zampedro past tournament medalist Stan Poposli fell apart.

Zampedro, husky six-foot former football fullback from Colorado State, won only three holes in 27. He made a game try to comeback in the afternoon, chopping against the pin to win the 19th hole with a birdie.

But Dokka's steady play was too much.

The Californian shot a one-under-par 70 in the morning to tie a competitive record for the course, stretched out from 6,518 to 6,781 yards for the tournament.

A brisk, 20 mile an hour wind came up in the afternoon, and there were a few sprinkles of rain. But Dokka played cautiously, always short when he couldn't be on.

"I'll give the National Amateur a try, too," he said. His victory earned him the James D. Standish Cup and an invitation to enter regional qualifying for the prestigious Amateur.

Zampedro was making his first appearance in a major tournament. He finished far back last year in the Ohio State Publinx which like this event is open only to public course players who do not belong to a private club.

Both players had trouble keeping their booming drives on the baked fairways. But Dokka was the more successful, hitting nine to Zampedro's seven.

Zampedro was four over par in the afternoon, shooting a 40. He was 10 over for the day with a 77 in the morning.

Dokka, who didn't say a word through the whole round except to officials of the sanctioning United States Golf Association, sank a short putt for a par but won the hole when the penalty stroke was assessed against Zampedro.

The Ohioan said later that he addressed the ball the same way he addressed all putts, by jiggling his club.

"I just moved it too much," he said.

Dokka played the afternoon round in even par, making him one under for the day. He hit 22 of 27 greens and chipped magnificently on the ones where he was short.

Both players had trouble keeping their booming drives on the baked fairways.

Dokka's victory margin broke the record set by Carl F. Kauffmann in 1928 when he defeated Phil Ogden 8 and 7 at Cobb's Creek in Philadelphia.

Californians have won the tournament 13 times with Charles Ferrara of Los Angeles repeating in and 1933.

Defending champion Billy McDonald of Topeka, Kan., was eliminated in he third round by Jim Schroder of San Francisco. Schroder in turn, was eliminated by Dokka Friday in the semifinals.

Next year's tournament will be held at the Brown Deer Golf Course in Milwaukee.

ARNE DOKKA, 21-year-old student from Studio City, Calif., receives trophy from U.S.G.A. official Robert Dwyer after winning the 40th Amateur Public Links Championship at Pittsburgh's North Park Golf Course Saturday. Dokka defeated Leo Zampedro of Warren, Ohio 10-9 in the 36 hole finals. (AP Wirephoto)

Jaycee Junior Tourney Slated

With a trip to the state tournament in Hammond—and possibly a shot at the national meet in Houston during August—laying on the line, a large number of junior golfers are expected to be on hand at Municipal Course Monday for the 19th annual Jaycee Junior Golf Tournament.

This tournament which is being held all over the nation this week, annually previews some of the country's top future golf stars.

Gene Littler, who yesterday won the Canadian Open championship, won the national crown some years back.

The local meet should be a wide open affair this year after the graduation of such stars as Wayne Peddy and Ray Mulhern because of the age limit. Peddy was last year's Twin City Junior champ while Mulhern finished in the top four and went on to win the state crown, earning a trip to the national tournament.

Although Wayne Peddy won't be back to defend his crown this week, the Peddy name will still have to be reckoned with in the person of Terry Peddy, Wayne's pint-sized younger brother who hits with the biggest — and best — of them.

Also expected to put on a good showing is Jim Williams, recent winner of the Junior Tournament at Bayou DeSiard, and such stalwarts as Stuart and David Causey, Edward Soloman and Harry Smith.

The qualifying round, to consist of 18 holes, will be held Monday and 18 holes of medal play will be conducted Tuesday and Wednesday.

The State tournament is set for July 27-28-29 at Oak Knoll Country Club in Hammond and the national meet will be unreeled in Houston August 8-13.

The top four players from the local tourney will earn a place in the state affair. Besides the all-expense paid trip to Hammond, prizes will be awarded for medalist, longest drive, closest to the hole-in-one, and the top three finishers in each flight.

Golfers may register at Highland Park, Bayou DeSiard or Municipal and should do so by 5 p.m. today. The entry fee is $3.

Peddy Brothers Win In First Round Match

Medalists Wayne and Terry Peddy moved into the second round of the ninth annual Highland Park Country Club's four ball tournament Saturday.

The brothers, who fired a 63 to claim the medalist honors during qualifying, shot just one stroke over that to take a 2-1 victory over Pat and Micky Netherton in the feature match of the Championship Flight.

In other matches in the Championship Flight, Hoyt Highfill and Gene Adams teamed to edge Clayton and Henry Cole, one up and Guy DuPriest and Tony Danna defeated Bob Hardquist and Ray Mulhearn, one up.

Dooley Haddad and Larry Tilley took a 2-1 victory over Don Miller and Ricky Hyland in the other Championship Flight match.

The Peddys will tackle Highfill and Adams in the first round today while DuPriest and Danna going for a win against Haddad and Tilley.

A total of 36 holes will be held today as two rounds are scheduled. The winners of the first match will go against each other for the crown in their respective flights. Six flights plus the Championship Flight are being held.

Monroe To Host Dixie Tourney At Legion Park

The Monroe Dixie Seniors All-Stars will be the host team in the Bi-District Tournament starting Monday at American Legion Stadium.

The first game will start at 7:30 with Monroe taking on the Tri-Parish All-Stars, who are managed by Charles Harris of Wisner.

The Northeast All-Stars drew a bye in the first round and will play the winner of the Monday night game Tuesday at 7:30.

The tournament will continue through Wednesday with Thursday off and the finals slated for Friday.

The winner of the double-elimination tournament will advance to the state tourney beginning the following week in Colfax.

The Monroe All-Stars are managed by Dave McKenzie, with the squad being composed of Jay Eppinette, Roy Holloway, Tom Brown, Kenny Cupples, Skeeter Boyd, Alvin Parker, Skeeter Lasuzzo, Don Corbin, Lance Dreyer, Ken Peters, Billy Vallery, Jerry Howell, Stanley Lewis, Ray Youngblood, Ryan Rogers, Charles Floyd and James Hale as alternate.

Tony Lewis is the tournament director.

Patton Rallies To Win Title In Southern Amateur Meet

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Billy Joe Patton, four shots behind at the start, overtook Downing Gray with a three-under-par 69 Saturday to win the Southern Amateur Golf Championship.

Patton, who admitted he "was driving the ball well," finished with a 72-hole total of 288, even par on the championship No. 2 course of the Pinehurst Country Club which played long because of a driving rain storm early in the afternoon. The rain halted play for about 1½ hours.

Gray, a life insurance salesman from Pensacola, Fla., came in with a 74 for a 289 total. He barely missed an 18-foot putt on the final hole that would have sent the tournament into a playoff.

Patton, 43-year-old lumberman from Morganton, N.C., hit 14 greens and got pars on three of the other four with masterful chips and putts.

"It was one of my most satisfying victories," said Patton, three-time wniner of the North and South Tournament. "As you get older the victories come harder."

Dave Smith of Gastonia, N.C., finished third with a two-under par 70 for 293. One stroke back at 294 was Jack Leis, Jr., of Florence, S.C., who also carded a 70.

Tied for fifth place at 296 was Dave's brother, Charlie Smith of Gastonia, and Ward Wettlaufer, Atlanta, Ga.

Gray, the third-round leader, faltered at the 12th hole when his four iron shot bounded over the green. He chipped strong and two-putted for a bogey five. Patton had pulled even with him with a birdie on the 11th from 18 feet.

Patton, playing in a threesome ahead of Gray, had only one bogey. He birdied Nos. 3, 4 and 9 to turn the front side in 34.

"It's about as good as I can play," said Patton, winner of the Southern Amateur in 1961 in Knoxville, Tenn., when it was on a match play basis. The tournament switched to medal play last year.

West Monroe Dixie Seniors

Motor Supply of the American Legion Amateur League scored four runs in the sixth inning and three in the seventh to rout the West Monroe Dixie Senior All-Stars, 8-1, in an exhibition game at Confederate Park Saturday.

Roger Bell paced the eight hit attack with two hits in four times at bat with two-runs-batted-in. Johnny Williams had two RBIs with one hit in three tries, scoring two runs.

James Taylor led the Dixie Senior All-Stars with a double. Ray Alexander, who relieved Bill Duncan in the fourth inning picked up the win. Tommy Cox was the loser.

State Highway Department went in to a tie for second place with 7-Up by mauling the Outcasts 15-0 Saturday night behind the combined one-hit pitching of Horne and Smith. Priestley, D. Smith, S. Smith, Rigger, Lambert, and Tolar all hit 2-3 for the winners. Tanner was tagged with the loss.

Marichal Wins 15th Of Season Behind 5-Hitter

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco's Juan Marichal posted his 15th victory and eighth shutout of the season Saturday, stopping Houston on five hits in the Giants' 7-0 victory.

Marichal, who has lost seven games, surrendered three singles to Bob Lillis.

Lillis and Rusty Staub, who doubled, combined forces in the eighth inning to put Marichal in his only serious jam, placing men on second and third with one out. But the Giants' right-hander got Joe Morgan to foul out and Lee Maye to ground out, ending the threat.

Dick Farrell, tagged for three runs in the first inning, took the loss. He is 7-3.

Farrell walked Dick Schofield, the Giants' leadoff man. The Alou brothers, Matty and Jesus, then smacked doubles into right field. A throwing error by Gus Triandos on a tap in front of the plate by Jim Hart enabled Jesus Alou to score.

Farrell was forced to leave the game in the third inning when he jammed a finger while covering first base.

The Giants scored an unearned run in the fourth off reliever Dave Giusti and added another earned run in the sixth.

Two more runs came across in the eighth off Jim Owens on a single by Marichal, a double by Schofield and a single by Bob Burda.

Willie Mays did not play for the Giants. He was rested for the eighth time this season. It was the first game the Giants won this year without the center fielder.

Braves Defeat Pittsburgh 6-5 On Wild Pitch

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Felipe Alou raced home with the winning run on Bob Veale's bases-loaded wild pitch in the ninth inning, giving Milwaukee a 6-5 triumph over Pittsburgh Saturday.

Bob Sadowski pitched 7 1-3 innings of hitless ball for the Braves, but the Pirates erupted for four runs in the eighth inning and took a 5-4 lead. The Braves, however, rallied for two runs in the ninth.

Woody Woodward walked and reached second when Jose Pagan fumbled Mike de la Hoz' grounder for an error. Alou hit into a force play, but Frank Bolling followed with a ground rule double that drove in Woodward with the tying run and put Alou at third.

Veale relieved Frank Carpin and walked Hank Aaron intentionally before unloading the decisive wild pitch.

Richey, Ralston Paired For Clay Courts Finals

CHICAGO (AP) — Cliff Richey, the hotshot teen-ager who was ignored in Davis Cup selections, and top-ranked Dennis Ralston scored semifinal victories Saturday in the National Clay Courts Tennis Championships at the River Forest Club.

Richey, an 18-year-old who would rather take advice from his father than non-playing Davis Cup Capt. George MacCall, eliminated 19-year-old Mike Belkin in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, 6-0.

Ralston, the No. 1 seed, rallied from apparent defeat to score a five-set victory over Hamilton Richardson, 6-4, 7-9, 0-6, 8-6, 6-4.

Richey and Ralston will meet for the championship today.

Richey's sister, 22-year-old Nancy Richey, will go after her third straight clay courts championships today when she meets Julie Heldman of New York City.

Nancy Richey, the No. 1 seed from Dallas, and fourth-seeded Julie Heldman of New York City, both advanced to Sunday's finals.

Miss Richey continued her march toward a third straight title with a 6-2, 6-2 triumph over Stephanie de Fina of Hollywood, Fla., and Miss Heldman eliminated Rosemary Casals of San Francisco 11-9 7-5.

Young Richey, expected to be the No. 2 member of the Davis Cup team which will play in the American Zone finals at the end of the month, was left off the six-man team selected by MacCall Friday.

MacCall had objected to Richey's insistence that his father, George Richey, a Dallas tennis pro and teacher, watch the young star's training and preparation closely.

Cliff, taking his father's advice in his match against Belkin, played back the entire match and rushed the net only once. The match turned into a baseline duel with Richey waiting for Belkin to make mistakes and then taking advantage of them.

Ralston, who will be the 31-year-old Richardson's partner on the Davis Cup doubles team, was down twosets to one and trailing 5-2 in the fourth set when he put on his spurt in the 88-degree heat.

Capitalizing on double faults and other errors by Richardson, Ralston tied the fourth set 5-5, fell behind 6-5 and then won the next three games and the set to even the match.

In the final set, Richardson took a 3-2 lead. But the heat and the grueling contest — which last three hours, 31 minutes — took its tool, with Ralston's powerful service providing decisive.

Clark Graebner and Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., won a doubles finals berth with a 7-5, 7-5, triumph over Arthur Ashe Jr. and Tom Edlefson.

Miss Richey and Carole Graebner of Beechwood, Ohio, won the women's doubles crown by defeating Miss Casals and Miss Heldman, 7-5, 6-4.

Junior Tennis Meet Planned For August

The Monroe Chamber of Commerce and the city's Recreation Department are concluding preliminary plans to hold a tennis tournament for boys and girls up to 17 years old.

The chamber's Sports Committee, headed by Amos Shelton, is scheduled to hold a meeting in the near future with city recreation officials to iron out more details.

The tournament is tentatively set for August 9.

Present plans call for the tourney to be played at night, "to avoid some of the heat," according to Jack Hesketh, director of the city recreation department.

Ron Clarke Home After 44-Day Tour

PARIS (AP) — Ron Clarke flew home to Australia Saturday after a 44-day tour through the United States and Europe that left a trail of world records and set off new chains of thought about how fast foot racers can go.

Billy Mills of the U.S. Marines, who startled the track world by winning the 10,000 meter race in the Tokyo Olympics, said: "Watching Clarke (set a new 10,000 meter record in Oslo), one understands there is a revolution going on."

Clarke himselw is more modest about his accomplishment of 27 minutes 39.4 seconds in the 10,000 meters. He said, "It's true that things are different. We're thinking differently. That 10,000 meter record (by Pyotr Bolitnikov of Russia at 28:29.6) was one of the best on the books, Last week we were thinking in terms of 28 minutes. Now we're thinking about 27 minutes. Anything is possible. We've only started to scratch the surface."

In his final race in Europe Friday night, Clarke ran the 5,000 meters on a heavy track during a light rain in 13:32.4. When he left Australia that would have been a world record. But by Friday night it was commonplace, good but no longer extraordinary, and provoked a reporter's question "are you disappointed in the time?"

Clarke's answer gave the kernel of his approach to foot racing. "No, not at all," he said. "I won, and that's what I was out to do."

Clarke's chronology of world records during his tour has been:

June 2, 13:25.8 for 5,000 meters in Los Angeles.

June 16, 28:14 for 10,000 meters in Turku, Finland.

July 10, 12:52.4 for three miles in London.

July 14, 26:47 for six miles in Oslo.

July 14, 27:39.4 for 10,000 meters in Oslo.

During the same period, Michel Jazy of France set three world records:

June 9, 3:53.6 for one mile in Rennes, France.

June 23, 7:59 for 3,000 meters in Melun, France.

June 23, 8:22.6 for two miles in Melun, France.

Both Clarke and Jazy are superb runners, but they talk a different language about races. Jazy thinks in terms of minutes and seconds and tenths of seconds. Clarke thinks about winning races, and lets the good times come naturally under proper track, atmospheric and competitive conditions.

When asked which record gave him the greatest pleasure, Clarke answers: "I think it was the record for three miles in London, because it was not a solitary race but a real competition. The 10,000 meter race made me happy because of the tremendous encouragement I got from the crowd."

In Oslo for the 10,000 meters, Clarke led from start to finish with no one to push him or even be within shouting distance.

"I like the difficult things," Clarke says. "For example when I ran at Melun I knew that I had very little chance against Hazy at two miles, but I preferred to be beaten, in bettering my own best time for the distance, rather than give an exhibition without interest at another distance.

"The same in Helsinki. It would have been easy to run the 10,000 meters rather than to be beaten by Jazy and Keino at 5,000 meters, but it was the competition at 5,000 meters against the best runners in the world that attracted me."

Jazy and Clarke alternated in setting the pace at both Melun and Helsinki. Then in the closing stages, Jazy pulled away to win. But Jazy needed Clarke in both races to help set a fast pace. The Frenchman has never shown that he can run alone, as Clarke did at Oslo, and set a world record.

Clarke is a supervising accountant, or comptroller, back home in Melbourne and he takes an almost mathematical approach to a race.

He was the favorite to win the 10,000 meters in Tokyo, but he was beaten by Mills and Mohammed Gamoudi of Tunisia. He has a simple explanation:

"There were two better runners in the race than I was. When I started racing again in 1961, I didn't know what I could do. When I started training, I could do only five miles. But gradually I got faster and stronger, and I thought I had a chance in the Olympics. I think I ran better in Tokyo than I ever had. If the Olympics had been held in 1963, I would have had no chance. If they had been held in 1965, I would have had a better chance."

Clarke's first fame was as the final runner in the Olympic torch relay who carried the flame up the steps to the cauldron at the Melbourne Stadium to signal the opening of the 1956 Games. But he gave up racing while he was getting established in business. It was only when he felt he could spare the time that he started training again.

He now hopes to continue running next year and take part in the British Commonwealth Games in Jamaica next August. But he refuses to commit himself on the 1968 Olympics.

"That's too far away," he said. "It all depends on business. Running is a hobby with me, and like any hobby it can be discarded if it gets in the way of more important things. I'd like to think though that I'll still be running in 1968."

Clarke is 28 now, married and the father of two children. His wife came to Europe with him but had to return home last week because of the illness of her mother, who died a short time after Mrs. Clarke arrived there.

Ron is all business when he talks about running, invariably polite, extremely articulate. He talks at a sprint, in a low voice, with the words tumbling from his mouth pell-mell, each syllable trying to overtake the one ahead.

"In spite of my records," he says, "I am not vain enough to think I am the best runner in the world. Who could be so pretentious? Whatever a man does there is always someone to come along and do better. But I have the satisfaction of a workman who can look at his work and find that it has been well done. All I have done is prove that certain performances are possible. But I know perfectly well that others will do as well, and even better than me."

It could be that Clarke will better his records of 1965. He follows a rigid training schedule summer and winter.

"The ideal thing would be two training sessions a day," Clarke said. "I can't do it because of my work. So I take a run in the morning before breakfast and again at lunchtime when I can. In the evening I do about 14 miles. On Saturday and Sundays I try to do about 22 miles in the hills."

Winter will be in full sway when Clarke returns to Melbourne. He plans to race in some cross country races during the winter, then when the Australian spring arrives he will swing back to tracks. For next season he plans to work more at shorter distances, to build up speed, but his eye is still on the long distance races.

"I think that I might hit my peak at 10 miles," he said. "It's a pity that there aren't more races at this distance."

Court Upholds Libel Judgement

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The federal appeals court in New Orleans has upheld the $460,000 libel judgment awarded Wally Butts, former University of Georgia athletic director and football coach. The judgment was against the Curtis Publishing Co., publisher of The Saturday Evening Post.

The majority opinion of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Friday said "we think that Curtis has had its day in court."

There was no immediate comment from the publishers, but court sources here thought the firm might ask the appellate court to review its decision or appeal further to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The suit was based on an article, "The Story of a Football Fix," published in The Post March 23, 1963, which alleged Butts gave Georgia football secrets to Alabama football coach Paul (Bear) Bryant before the two teams played the 1962 season. Alabama won the game, 35-0.

U. S. Dist. Judge Adrian Spears of San Antonio, Tex., author of the 2-1 decision, said the article was "part and parcel of a general policy of callousness, which recognized from the start that Butts' career would be ruined."

Butts and Bryant both sued Curtis. Bryant's suit never went to trial, and the Alabama coach accepted a settlement reported at $300,000. Butts was awarded $3,060,000 in damages by a Georgia federal district court judge, but U. S. Dist. Judge Lewis R. Morgan subsequently cut the amount to $460,000.

In the appeals court proceeding, Circuit Court Judge Richard T. Rives of Montgomery, Ala., dissented. In his opinion, Judge Morgan erred by not granting a new trial. This view was based on a U.S. Supreme Court decision six weeks later involving public officials. Judge Rives thought that Butts, as athletic director, was a public official, and as such was open to some forms of privileged publication.

Phils Bomb Cincinnati For 22 Hits, 14-7 Victory

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies bombed Cincinnati pitchers for 22 hits Saturday, including a grand slam homer by Johnny Callison, and trounced the Reds 14-7.

The loss dropped Cincinnati out of the National League lead, one full game behind the Los Angeles Dodgers, who defeated Chicago 7-2.

Johnny Briggs led the Phillie assault with a homer, two singles and a sacrifice fly, driving across five runs. Pat Corrales had four hits for the winners, while John Herrnstein homered and singled twice.

Philadelphia, in its biggest offensive display of the year, came up with the crusher in the six-run fourth inning. Herrnstein led off with his homer and Callison ripped his bases-loaded blow off Jim O'Toole in that inning.

All told, the Phils battered five Cincinnati pitchers.

The Reds pounded out 13 hits themselves but were in a futile fight after the Phillies' big fourth. Reliever Ed Roebuck, who followed Ray Culp and Gary Wagner, was the winner.

Amateur Athletics Asked To Cool-Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investigating senators demanded Saturday an immediate cooling-off period in the feud between rival U.S. amateur athletic organizations.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., sent telegrams to presidents and officials of the warring groups asking that Randy Matson, holder of the world shot put record, "'be permitted to compete freely" in a track and field meet at Wichita, Kan., next Friday.

Magnuson, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, has promised a full-dress public investigation of the "long standing and harmful struggle" between the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union.

With oral support from several senators, Magnuson said the probe "will take whatever action is necessary to prevent a strangling of athletic freedom in our nation."

Even before he could get his inquiry underway, Magnuson said he learned that Matson, a student at Texas A.&M. has been denied by NCAA officials the right to compete in the Wichita meet sponsored by the AAU.

The Wichita meet is to help raise funds to send a U.S. track team to Soviet Russia for a meet July 31 and Aug. 1.

"We urge that all athletic organizations refrain from imposing any sanctions on athletes," Magnuson telegraphed the NCAA and AAU officials.

"Further, we suggest a moratorium on all action by either organization until the Committee on Commerce can fully investigate this dispute," he said. "It will be in the public interest if there is a cooling-off period in this controversy."

The Senate chairman said he has been promised full cooperation by both groups in the pending investigation.

Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., called the feud childish and a "disgrace to the United States."

Allott was a 400-meter hurdler back in 1925.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., said both the NCAA and AAU have officials with "vested interests" and called the feud completely unfair and a "result of selfishness on the parts of heads of both organizations."

Sen. Joseph S. Tydings, D-Md., said the public and athletes are tired of bickering and decisions "by a few entrenched bureaucrats at the head of these organizations."

Cleveland Trips Boston Club 8-5 Behind Big Bats

CLEVELAND (AP) — Pedro Gonzalez rapped a three-run triple and Leon Wagner hit a two-run homer as the second-place Cleveland Indians defeated the Boston Red Sox 8-5 Saturday night.

The Indians' third straight victory, coupled with Kansas City's 5-4 victory over Minnesota, narrowed the Twins' first-place margin to three games.

Gonzalez' big blow capped a five-run sixth inning for the Indians and nullified Felix Mantilla's three-run homer in the same inning. Mantilla's homer, his 13th, scored Lenny Green and Carl Yastrzemski, who had walked.

Mantilla's drive into the left field seats broke up a pitcher's duel between Cleveland's Luis Tiant and Boston's Earl Wilson. Both teams had totaled only three hits before the sixth.

But Wilson gave up three straight hits in the sixth and was replaced after he walked Rocky Colavito on four pitches to force in the first Indian run. Fred Whitfield drove in another with a sacrifice fly.

Rico Petrocell then bobbled Joe Azcue's grounder, and the bases were loaded again with two out when Gonzalez tagged his triple.

Wagner hit his 17th homer off Jay Ritchie in the seventh with a mate aboard. Larry Brown doubled home the final Cleveland run in the eighth.

West Monroe Is Host Squad In Dixie Meet

Five teams are entered in the bi-district Dixie Senior Baseball Tournament to get underway Monday at Confederate Park in West Monroe.

Teams entered the double-elimination tourney are West Monroe, the host squad, Farmerville, Bastrop, Jonesboro and Ruston.

Two games will be held each night Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday with a single game carded for Thursday. The finals will be held Saturday with the first game scheduled for 7 p.m. and if needed a second game to follow. Friday has been set aside to play any game being rained out.

In first rounded play Monday night, Bastrop will take on Jonesboro at 6 p.m. with West Monroe playing Ruston the following game at 7:30 p.m.

Farmerville drew a bye in the first round and will play the winner of the Bastrop-Jonesboro tilt at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

Director for the tournament is Dan McClure with Lutcher Rainey, Dick Smith, Mack Alexander and Jack Holloway serving on the protest-eligibility committees.

All-Star Team For Tri-Parish League Named

WISNER (Special) — Officials and coaches of Tri-Parish Dixie Senior League named the all-stars from this seven team league, Saturday.

The Wisner team, coached by Charles Harris, led the league-finishing in first place with Winnsboro and Newellton tied for second place honors. Wisner placed six players on the All-Star squad. They are Glen Harris, Galen Collins, Greenberry Linder, Bert Hammons, Daryl Beach, and James Collins.

Monterey placed Danny Sheppard and Sammy Smith. Newellton placed Mike Parker and Rickey Barfield. Winnsboro landed Floyd Hendry, Richard Griffin and Marshall Livingston.

To complete the squad, Waterproof placed Joe Hazlip, Ferriday placed Alvin Martin and St. Joseph landed James Crigler Jr.

This team will meet Monroe in the first game of the Dixie Senior district playoff to be held at Legion Stadium.

Delhi Is Winner Of North League; Downs Tallulah

DELHI (Special) — Delhi defeated Tallulah in a best-of-three game playoff series last week to become the champions of the Northeast Dixie Senior League.

The Delhi team had lost the first game of the playoff to Tallulah, 6-3, but won the next two games to take the title.

Trailing 6-3 in the championship contest going into the last inning, Delhi rallied for four runs for the victory in the game and the league title. Ken Thornton and Jones were the winning battery in the game with Williams and Smith suffering the defeat for the Tallulah Dixie Senior nine.

Two additions have been named to the All-Star team, which was announced in the Morning World Saturday. Being named to the team were Ralph Spears Jr. of Delhi and Ronald Lingfelt of Epps.

The Northeast Dixie Senior All-Star team will play in the bi - district tournament being held in Monroe this week. It will play the winner of the Monday clash of Monroe and Tri-Parish, Tuesday night at 7:30.

Coach Ken Lehman's University of Washington baseball team won 17 games this season but lost 24.

Whitworth Ties Course Record In Yankee Open

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Kathy Whitworth took the second round lead Saturday in the Yankee Women's Open Golf Tournament with a record-equalling 68 for a 36-hole total of 141.

Miss Whitworth, a hazel-eyed 25-year-old pro from San Antonio, Tex., tied the tournament and course record held by defending Yankee Open champion Ruth Jessen.

She carded an opening nine of 35, including two birdies and a bogey, then fired three consecutive birdies — on holes 13, 14 and 15 — to finish with a 33 on the back nine.

Carol Mann of Towson, Md., who was one of the first round leaders, fell to second place with a total of 143.

She carded a one-over-par 38-35—73, including four bogies and three birdies.

Third was Clifford Ann Creed, with a total of 145 after Saturday's two-over-par 36-38—74.

Marylinn Smith, the other first round leader, was another stroke back after coming in with a four-over-par 38-38—76.

Miss Whitworth said it was her best putting day in tournament play. She used only 26 putts and had 12 one-putt greens.

River Water No. 1 Asset

With Sam Hanna

POLLUTION CONTROL CENTER

Several days ago we took a boatride on the Ouachita River, going upstream past Long John Beach. Along the way the river churned with boats pulling youngsters on skis. Swimmers splashed in the water at the river's edge and people picnicked on shore.

It seemed like everybody in town was out on the river.

Back and forth the boats zoomed up and down the Ouachita. Downstream a parade of boats took in the river view of the Twin Cities, going beneath the bridges to a bend in the river not far from the I-20 where they all turned and came back.

A few days later we saw why they turned and came back.

Down on Standifer Avenue the city dumps sewage in the river. At that point south the river is unfit — how far downstream we don't know, but it's unfit.

Fortunately, crews were working on a new structure across the street from where the sewage discharges into the river. The new structure is the Standifer Avenue pump station.

That'll stop the flow of raw, untreated sewage going into the Ouachita and channel it instead to the city's new "water pollution control center," an appropriate name in this case for the Monroe sewage treatment plant.

We stood in the baking sun at the "control center" while engineers rattled off an explanation of how sewage will be handled once it reaches the $3-million plant.

Contrary to our own opinion about the operation of the plant, there will not be a treating system as such. We had thought chemicals would be added here and there to clean up the sewage before it's dumped into the river.

But this is not so.

Chlorine will be added once or twice after the sewage reaches the plant, but nature will do most of the work.

This is known as the trickling filter method, which enables the discharge of the disposal into the river without polluting the stream.

City officials hope to have the plant in operation by mid-August.

The sun was cooking us as we stood with the engineers on top of one of the buildings at the plant. Looking back toward town, we appreciated the plant more as a means to make life better for the people living there.

It occurred to us that other sections of the country are not so fortunate — places like New York where a water shortage has become a serious problem. Other big cities are in the same shoes with New York.

But not Monroe and not West Monroe and not other towns in Louisiana where water is plentiful. All we need to do is take care of our water resources and improve them.

Once the Monroe plant is in operation, the Ouachita will be a more sanitary stream. The river will be a healthier place to spend a summer afternoon.

It won't be completely healthy, however, since West Monroe uses the river for its sewage disposal too.

From Arkansas to Louisiana, the Ouachita has undergone a clean - up program. The job will be finished when West Monroe takes the next step.

ARKANSAS GAME REFUGES

Arkansas is getting out of the refuge business.

Recently the Game & Fish Commission at Little Rock decided aginst renewing its lease agreements on all but one state game refuge. The exception is the 22,000 acre Pike County Refuge.

Nationally, the trend has been against maintaining refuges, which were established to stockpile wildlife. Now the approach is the game management area.

In Arkansas, the commission stated that whereas the refuges have in years past served their intended purposes (help establish deer herds), they are no longer needed and are, in fact, witholding potential open hunting grounds from public use.

Arkansas now maintains 12 refuges, consisting of 240,800 acres. Their expiration dates range from August 18, 1965 to February 15, 1970. Arkansas' first state refuges were established in 1930 — one located in Howard Country, and the other in Ouachita County. Both are still active.

Arkansas, at one time, maintained a total of 33 state and federal refuges. Today, in addition to the 12 state refuges, there are four federal refuges.

But the refuges have served their purpose.

Louisiana is taking the same step — the latest being the conversion of the Terzia Refuge into the Georgia - Pacific Game Management Area in Morehouse Parish.

GUN BILL REACTION

Last week we called on you, the reader, to express your opinion to your representatives in Washington on pending anti-gun legislation in Congress.

Raymond Moore of Monroe writes in to tell us that a petition was circulated here opposing the Dodd bill. Congressman Passman wrote all signers of the petition, explaining his opposition to the bill also.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender also responded, expressing his opposition. Raymond Moore says to date Sen. Russell Long has not responded to the petition.

The Ouachita Wildlife Unit also sent a resolutoin to the Louisiana delegation opposing the Dodd bill.

Residents of the Eighth District also will be interested to know that freshman Congressman Speedy O. Long of Jena has declared his opposition to the anti - gun bills.

Speedy Long said the move to amend the federal firearms act was an "infringement upon the basic right to keep and bear arms."

So it looks as though the reaction against the legislation at home has done some good with some of our representatives in Washington. This doesn't mean, however, that the legislation has been killed.

Incidentially, Speedy Long's position was made clear to us in a letter from Bud Brady, the former Farmerville radio man now serving on Speedy's staff in Washington.

Bud tells us he lives just a few blocks from Washington newsman Sam Hanna in Alexandria, Virginia. Sam Hanna is going a good job in Washington. We hope he keeps it up.

LITTLE MAN'S CORNER

It was summertime and the evening thundershowers kept us guessing, but the little men made news afield.

Out on Black Bayou where the bream fishing has been real good and the spec fishing not bad, Eli Potier landed 45 specs. Some 27 of them weighed in the neighborhood of 1½ pounds.

Ace bass fisherman James L. Doss of Monroe landed 12 bass weighing 35 pounds. Jim Lewis got 81 bream.

From West Monroe, Roy Cash and a friend went up to Gassoway and caught a string of 131 bream. Roy says they were the prettiest bream he's ever seen.

At Lake Providence, Van Hicks caught the limit of bass. Bass fishing is best there late in the afternoons.

And out on the Ouachita River, game agent Frank Swayze is doing a fine job of patrolling the river. Frank gives people in trouble a helping hand, which testify to personally.

Frank tells us that he's having little trouble with boat operators now. Most of them, he says, are abiding by the rules and regulations, which make for better boating.

Down at Winnsboro, Fred Nielsen landed a fine string of bass at Lake Louie. Bubba says the lake is as low as it normally gets in the fall of the year.

Buck McDuff of Winnsboro had a good trip to King's Dump bream fishing and Herbert Zeagler caught a good string of bream on a flyrod at Mosquitto Lake.

From Jena, Otis Morgan landed the limit of white perch in Old River.

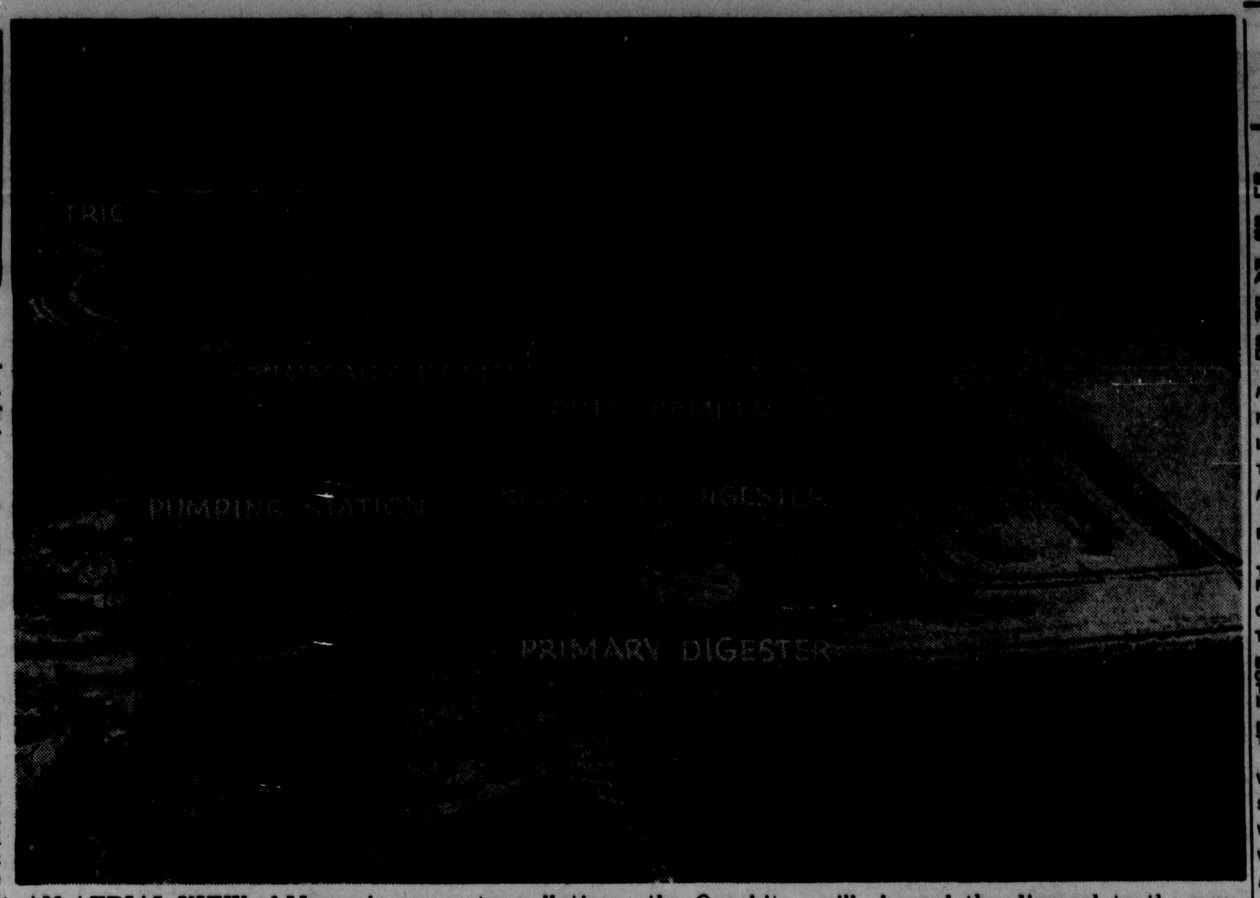
Lake St. John paid off for Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Lively and Robert Juneau of Monroe. They caught the limit of bass. Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Myres of Ferriday landed the limit of bream there.

Also, Ernest Sanford of Ferriday got the limit of bream in St. John while J. A. Gulledge caught the limit of bream and barfish in St. John.

From Baton Rouge, Myron Tassin, who heads up the Louisiana Architects Association, was in Monroe, looking the town over, telling us about a big bass he caught recently at a private pond near Baton Rouge.

Myron is not in the habit of fishing, but when that big bass came out of the water shaking the hook Myron got so excited he jumped in and man-handled the fish to shore.

The bass weighed almost five pounds. Myron was insulted when told about Bussey.



AN AERIAL VIEW of Monroe's new water pollution control center is almost complete. The sewage treatment plant, costing over $3 million, is expected to be in operation by mid-August and will serve as a means to help clean up the Ouachita River, which now receives raw, untreated sewage from Monroe and West Monroe. A new pumping station on Standifer Avenue—located where sewage from Monroe now enters the Ouachita—will channel the disposal to the new plant, located south of the city on U.S. 165. Sewage will be treated by a trickling fliter system, which permits nature to take its course on the disposal before it's channeled to the Ouachita. Carrothers Construction Co. of Kansas is building the center financed by bond issue funds and a $600,000 federal grant.

18TH AND AUBURN MONROE, LA. DIAL 387-1950

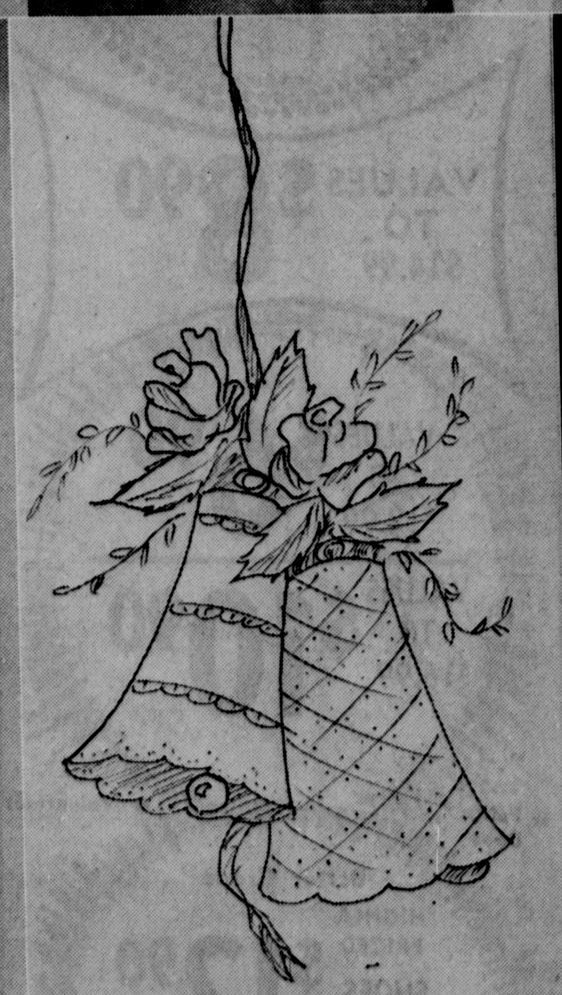
Above: Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Betty Sue Rushing to Alvin Joseph McGinn Jr. of Monroe, is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Harrison Rushing of Pioneer. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Joseph McGinn, Monroe. August 7 is the date chosen for the wedding which will be solemnized in Sacred Heart Catholic Church, Oak Grove. The couple will be at home in Monroe where the bridegroom is employed and the bride will be with the city school system on the faculty at Clara Hall school.

At right: Miss Clara Dee Drew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Drew, Arkansas Road, West Monroe, will represent Ouachita Parish in the State Farm Bureau Queen Contest in Convention Hall at Alexandria Wednesday, July 21. Miss Drew, who placed first in the parish contest over 16 other contestants, will be entertained with other parish queens at various events in Alexandria on Tuesday prior to the contest, which will be concluded with the annual Farm Bureau Ball.

Below: An August 18 wedding is planned by Miss Sandra Ann Mayer and Fred B. Cook Jr., whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lester Mayer of New Orleans. Mr. Cook is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Cook, 201 Fairfield, West Monroe. The wedding will take place in New Orleans. The bride-elect is a graduate of Louisiana State University where Mr. Cook will receive his degree in January, 1966.

Above: Costumed for their leading roles in the Monroe Little Theatre's summer musical, "The King And I," are Ed Beakey, who portrays the king and Dawn Gandy as Anna. The Rogers and Hammerstein musical production will open July 23 for a 10 night run at Strauss Playhouse on Lamy Lane. A matinee will also be presented on the concluding date, August 1. Though new to Monroe theatre audiences, Mr. Beakey and Mrs. Gandy have performed professionally in concert and theatre work elsewhere.

Below: First Methodist Church of Oak Grove was scene of the ceremony on Saturday, July 10 in which Miss Gail Roberta Weems, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd H. Weems of Oak Grove, became the bride of John Allen McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne T. McDonald, Haynesville. Following a wedding trip to the Ozark Mountains the couple will reside in Gibsland.



MRS. GEORGE HAVARD YERGER

Jamaica Trip Follows Yerger-Kalstone Vows

Solemnized Saturday, July 17 in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Shreveport, was the wedding of Miss Sheri Kalstone, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Merle Kalstone of Shreveport and George Havard Yerger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Maxwell Yerger of Hecla Plantation, Mound.

White gladioli, Majestic daisies, pompon chrysanthemums, stock with jade and cherry laurel foliage decorated the altar which was flanked by brass tree candelabra holding white tapers. Urns of mixed foliage adorned the entrance.

Rev. Meade Brown performed the ceremony at 7:30 p.m. Following a reception at East Ridge Country Club the couple left for a wedding trip to Jamaica after which they will be at home in Hammond.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white silk organza designed on Empire lines with an A shaped skirt. The bolero type bodice of handrun Alencon lace featured an oval neckline and elbow length sleeves ended in a scalloped flounce. Back fullness of the skirt terminated in a chapel train. Her full length veil of imported silk illusion fell from a circlet of orange blossoms. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white butterfly roses, fern and pittisporum accented with seed pearls and Italian lace.

Miss Coni Sweeney was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Misses Barbara Muslow, Miss Carolyn Hamel, Miss Gail Hanks, Mrs. Grove Oholendt, all of Shreveport. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Leesa Kalstone, sister of the bride. They wore floor length gowns of white organza over mint green taffeta, styled with sleeveless bodices of white Venise lace and A-line shirts, sashed in leaf green satin with streamers falling to the hemline. Their headdresses were circlets of yellow roses and they carried single yellow glamellias with stems of green velvet.

Mr. Yerger served as best man for his son. Groomsmen-ushers were Edward Yerger Jr., brother of the groom; Kenneth Beoubay, New Orleans; Robert Hodges, New Iberia; Rufus Yerger Jr., Fred Wyly, Tallulah; Charles O'Niell, New Orleans; Steve Wilson, Alexandria and Chris Kalstone, brother of the bride.

For the reception at the country club the bride's table was centered with an antique brass cherub candelabra holding butterfly roses, pompons, Majestic daisies and leatherleaf fern. The groom's table was centered with a Georgian silver and crystal epergne filled with similar flowers. Old fashioned lamp posts with votive lights, garlanded with smilax, marked the area leading to the receiving line.

Assisting with courtesies at the reception were Mrs. William Tenney, Mrs. James Cooper, Mrs. A. J. Nicholas, Mrs. W. McBride, Mrs. E. J. Boersig, Mrs. D. A. Hiller, Mrs. Wildo Colon, Mrs. C. E. Boyd, Mrs. T. Norris, Mrs. Katherine Howard, Mrs. John Boelens, Mrs. McCleland Taylor, Miss Ann Grabill and Miss Dusty Vreeland.

East Ridge Country Club by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Yerger, parents of the bridegroom and Mrs. John J. Potts of Monroe, aunt of the groom, for the bridal party and out of town guests.

An arrangement of white stock, pompons, Majestic daisies and candytuft with leatherleaf fern in an Italian silver and crystal epergne centered the head table with candles on either side. Cherubs holding nosegays of white flowers were placed on other tables.

A bridal luncheon was given Saturday, July 17 by Mrs. William Tenney for the bridesmaids, mothers of the betrothed couple and aunts of the groom. From 12 until 2 p.m. on the wedding day Mr. and Mrs. Charlton Lyons entertained at their home in Shreveport for out of town guests.

The bride is a graduate of Byrd high school, Shreveport, and received her B.S. degree from Louisiana State University. Mr. Yerger graduated from Darlington in Rome, Georgia and is presently a student at Southeastern College, Hammond.

Prenuptial Courtesies

Mr. McGinn will attend his son as best man and named as ushers are Harry Rushing, Monroe, brother of the bride; Lee Neal Gunn, Monroe and Rudolph F. Becker III of New Orleans, brother-in-law of the future groom.

The bride-elect was graduated from Pioneer high school and from Northeast Louisiana State College. She is employed by the Monroe City School system and will be on the faculty at Clara Hall school this fall.

A graduate of Neville high school, Mr. McGinn attended Louisiana State University where he was a member of Sigma Chi fraternity and will graduate in July from Northeast Louisiana State College. He is employed in Monroe where the couple will reside.

"BEACHNIQUE"

Smash fashion news is the "Beachnique" look for summer. A beachnique is a beachnik raised to the highest fashion power. A beachnique adores beaching it all the way through summer, but insists on the most smash, contemporary dressing on the shore and in the water. It's the dressed-up beach ensemble.

WIC Hear Fund Drive Plans

Monthly meeting of Women in Construction of Monroe was held Monday, June 12 at the Holiday Inn with Miss Elizabeth Shaughnessy, president, in charge.

A letter was read from the March of Dimes chairman, offering two new ideas for raising funds for the drive. These include a community education project with a list of doctors available to speak at meetings, and a dinner dance and style show to be held November 13 at the Paragon Club. The group voted to order ten tickets for the event.

Following dinner Mrs. Elizabeth Pickens read a letter from NAWIC giving a slate of officers for 1965-66, which was accepted by the group. Announcement was also made of a joint meeting to be held in Shreveport July 25.

Those present were Elizabeth Shaughnessy, Lucy Hickey, Katie White, Effie Rynbrand, Marianna Burroughs and Elizabeth Pickens.

MRS. JOHN FRANK McFARLAND

Carolyn Mignon Pratt Bride Of John McFarland

Solemnized Saturday, July 17 in First Baptist Church, Ruston was the ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Carolyn Mignon Pratt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vann L. Pratt of Ruston and John Frank McFarland, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Frank McFarland of Mansfield.

Dr. Clyde E. Fant Jr. performed the double ring ceremony at 7 p.m. with appropriate music presented by Miss Sandra Selle, organist and Mrs. Reba McKaskle, soloist.

Antique brass candelabra holding white tapers were placed on each side of a mass arrangement of stock, gladioli and chrysanthemums, to form a setting at the altar for the exchange of vows. Pews were marked with cascades of variegated ivy and majestic daisies.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of candlelight peau de soie featuring a moulded bodice accented at the Sabrina neckline and short sleeves by appliques of Alencon lace embroidered with iridescent sequins and pearls. The lace appliques were repeated on the controlled skirt which fell in soft folds from a back bustle to form a chapel train. Her veil of silk illusion was held in place by a double crown of bead - embroidered lace. She carried a crescent bouquet of green cymbidium orchids accented with green and white variegated ivy.

Mrs. Thomas Terral, matron of honor, wore a formal length gown of yellow linen fashioned with empire bodice and scoop neckline. Her headdress was a Dior bow of yellow linen attached to a brief veil and she carried green and white variegated ivy with Majestic daisies and olive green ribbon. Bridesmaids, dressed identically to the honor attendant, were Miss Marianne McFarland, sister of the groom, Miss Elizabeth Mooney, Miss Renee Larue and Miss Lydia Allen.

Donald McFarland attended his brother as best man and groomsmen were Louis Anderson, Sammy Hilburn, Maurice Julian Graham and Felix Pavy, cousin of the groom.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a light olive green silk dress with matching accessories and an orchid corsage. The groom's mother chose a winter green silk sheath with accessories to match and an orchid corsage.

A reception followed in the social room of the church where the bride's table was centered with an antique brass candelabra holding white tapers, based with the bridesmaids' bouquets. In charge of reception courtesies were Mrs. William C. Terral, Mrs. Forrest M. Terral, Mrs. John Terral, Mrs. Paul Pratt, Mrs. Jesse Rabb and Mrs. G. G. Lawhon. Miss Pam Payne was seated at the guest book table where the bride's bouquet was displayed.

MISS CHERRYL GAY BALLARD

Engagement Announced For Cherryl Gay Ballard

Engagement of Miss Cherryl Gay Ballard to Franklin Dee Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Rose of Baton Rouge, is announced by her mother, Mrs. Ralph Ballard, 416 Wood St., West Monroe.

Plans for the September wedding were revealed at an announcement tea Sunday, July 11 at Highland Park Country Club. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Richard Watkins, Mrs. Clifton Gilliland, Mrs. James Gilliland, Mrs. Scott Spencer, Mrs. R. M. Drew, Mrs. A. S. Frost, Mrs. Archie Gilliland and Mrs. Oliver Moore.

Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Clifton Gilliland and Mrs. Drew greeted guests at the entrance. Receiving with the honoree were her mother, the mother of her fiance and Mrs. Archie Gilliland. For her party Miss Ballard wore a sheath of blue whipped cream with tiny covered buttons and a bow at the neckline. Her corsage was of white gladioli. Mrs. Ballard chose a cream knit suit with matching overblouse and a yellow gladioli corsage. A blue silk sheath was worn by Mrs. Rose with a yellow gladioli corsage.

The guest book table was decorated with an arrangement of white tuberoses encircling a memory candle. Presiding at the book were Misses Gaye Gilliland, Trudie Swink and Sarah Johnston.

Covered with an appliqued linen cloth the refreshment table held a triple arrangement of yellow and white gladioli, white tuberoses and yellow and white roses in tall silver candelabra epergnes. Candles rose from the center of the arrangements. Alternating at the punch bowl were Mrs. Donald Ballard and Miss Barbara Hoff. Coffee was poured by Mrs. W. C. Feazel and Mrs. Bailey Grant. Tea girls were Misses Virginia Kay Gilliland, Julia Ann Gilliland of Calhoun, Barbara Gilliland, Monroe and Clara Dee Drew of West Monroe.

Gail Weems Is Bride Of John Allen McDonald

Pedestal baskets of white roses and emerald palms interspersed with white cathedral tapers entwined with ivy formed a setting at the altar of First Methodist Church, Oak Grove, for the wedding of Miss Gail Roberta Weems and John Allen McDonald on Saturday, July 10 at 5:30 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd H. Weems, Oak Grove and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Wayne T. McDonald of Haynesville.

Rev. Charles S. Walker Jr. performed the double ring ceremony with appropriate music provided by Mrs. Dorothy Womack, organist and Miss Charlotte Sanford, soloist.

Wearing a floor length gown of pale ivory peau de soie and Alencon lace the bride was given in marriage by her father. Pearl-embroidered lace formed the empire bodice with round neckline and elbow sleeves. The chapel train of Alencon lace, bordered by a wide band of peau de soie, extended from the A-line skirt, also embellished with appliques of lace and pearls. Her elbow veil of illusion was held by a crown of lace and roses, studded with seed pearls. She wore a single strand of pearls, gift of her aunt and uncle, Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Couch, and carried a bouquet of white roses.

Attending the bride were Miss Betty Chisum, Sicily Island, maid of honor; Mrs. Roy Wayne Vining of Lake Jackson, Tex., matron of honor, and bridesmaids, Mrs. Howell Lane Cheatham, New Orleans; Mrs. Jerry Fairbanks, Tallulah, Miss Mary Eva Womack, Oak Grove and Miss Carolyn Woodall, Shreveport. They wore floor length gowns of Italian peau de soie in emerald and lime fashioned on slim lines with the empire waist outlined by a band of small pearl flowers and a back floor length panel. Their headdresses were single emerald roses with tulle veils and they wore matching green shoes and carried bouquets of white roses.

Dr. Tillman Wayne McDonald of Shreveport, attended his brother as best man and groomsmen were Billy Jack Colvin, Ruston; James W. Colvin, Springhill; Dr. Edward G. Couch, Oak Grove; Maurice Lindsey of Monroe; Clyde C. McDonald, brother of the groom, New Orleans and John M. McDonald, Dallas, Tex.

Mrs. Weems chose for her daughter's wedding a three piece suit of aqua Italian silk with matching shoes and white accessories. The groom's mother wore a suit of pink Italian silk with pink accessories and both wore corsages of white roses.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception in the social room of the church following the ceremony. The guest book table was covered with white

Fashion Editors Define Chic In Glamor Apparel

What, exactley, is chic, besides the most often used and misused word in fashion?

The editors of a fashion magazine shed new light on chic in the July issue by telling what it is and showing how it looks in crackling summer fashions.

Chic is the long sleeve, ringed over and over with jewelled circlets. One might wear two gold cuffs patterned like fantastic fishscales filled with rubies and emeralds; two bracelets of pearls separated by emerald, ruby and sapphire studded rondels; one rope of cabochon rubies in twisted strands that link with a diamond - paved lion's head.

Chic is narrow trousers, just short of the ankle, worn elegantly with gold shoes set on Louis Quatorze heels for evening.

Chic is the slender little coat with three-quarter length sleeves in cool materials to be worn at home over a bathing suit or nothing at all. Chic is the gentleman's straw to be worn with elan at resorts whipped 'round with gay scarves or bright ribbons; to be purchased anywhere under the sun.

Chic is the long, hand-crocheted chenille sweater in beaming oranges, bold patterns, lacing flowers worn airily over short skirt, or long, at the beach or in town.

Chic is the shoes for languid alluringly shaped and brilliantly patterned. Chic is the quick stroke of a seam, etched on a sandal-foot stocking; grading the leg in the afternoon or evening. It is good for the cocktail hour with a lovely suede pump set on a low heel, its toe rounded.

Knit Facts Are Timely

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Double - knit" fabric is made by knitting on machines equipped with two sets of needles instead of the usual single set. Because of this process, a double - knit fabric is heavier than single - knits and its two sides have different appearances.

Double - knits often are washable, non - clinging, durable and free from excessive stretching. Many can be safely machine - washed with moderate agitation, using warm soap or detergent suds and rinse water, the Cleanliness Bureau reports.

Courreges Leads Teen Fashions

The space age look of Andre Courreges styles is just what today's go - go teens like. For fall his snap skirts, little jackets, welt seams and windowpane checks will be seen throughout teen collections.

Young designers, too, are part of the teen world. England's Mary Quant, Tuffin and Foale, France's Emmanuelle Khanh, and others, are all being added to junior collections.

These trends were part of the fall "Seventeen" magazine show for stores, whose buyers didn't bat an eye at color combinations like magenta and orange. Plaids, wet - looking vinyls and poor-boy sweaters were some of the many other individualistic styles shown for teens.

MRS. MARVIN WAYNE ADCOCK

Adcock-Bryant Wedding Solemnized In Bastrop

In a setting of magnolia foliage, white gladioli and seven branched candelabra holding white tapers was the wedding of Miss Dianne Cecile Bryant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Travis Bryant Jr., and Marvin Wayne Adcock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin W. Adcock, all of Bastrop.

Dr. Ray P. Rust performed the ceremony at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, July 10 in the First Baptist Church, Bastrop. Serving as organist was Mrs. J. B. Spier who also accompanied Miss Melba Elizabeth Barham, who sang.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of crystal peau de soie and Chantilly lace. The moulded bodice featured a scalloped neckline and long fitted sleeves. The controlled skirt extended into a semi - train and highlighted by appliques of pearl - encrusted lace motifs. Three white chiffon roses embellished with pearls and sprays of lily of the valley held her triple tiered veil of illusion. She carried garlands of white gladioli florets and fleur d'amour surrounding a white orchid.

Miss Sherry D. Norwood of St. Joseph, served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Susan Sim of Bastrop; Miss Marjorie Carlyn Fotos, Shreveport and Mrs. James Ray Roan, Monroe. They wore identical gowns of pink peau de soie with scalloped necklines outlined with tiny lace flowers and belled floor length skirts. Clusters of pearl - trimmed roses formed their headpieces and they carried crescent bouquets of pink glamellias. Junior bridesmaids were Miss Ellen Kay Bryant, sister of the bride and Miss Teresa Moore of Montgomery, Ala., niece of the groom. They wore sleeveless frocks of white embroidered batiste over pink polished cotton in floor length with wide pink sashes, and carried bouquets of glamellias and gladioli florets.

Candles were lighted by James Travis Bryant III, brother of the bride and Raymond Dickie Adcock, brother of the groom. Mr. Adcock served his son as best man and groomsmen were Joseph G. Files, James R. Lequin and John William Godwin Jr. Ushers were Neil Keith McGuire of Bastrop and Don L. McGuire of Fayetteville, Ark.

The bride's parents were hosts at a reception following the ceremony in the International House. Mrs. Bryant received guests wearing a dress of rose crepe with overblouse of embroidered lace, matching accessories, and a tiny flower hat. Mrs. Adcock wore a gown of aqua embroidered silk and chiffon with matching accessories and a rose trimmed whimsey. Both wore orchid corsages.

White pompon chrysanthemums and pink gladioli with leatherleaf foliage centered the bride's table and completing the decor was a five - branched candelabra holding lighted pink tapers. Mrs. Bennie Eugene Moore, Montgomery, Ala., sister of the groom, served pink punch from a silver bowl and Mrs. Fred Erston Woods of Crossett, aunt of the bride, served the tiered wedding cake. Miss Cheryl Ann Mizell of Lake Charles presided at the guest book at a table adorned with a memory candle, wreathed with ivy, gardenias and roses.

Tea girls were Miss Celia Grobe, Miss Betty Lou Land, Mrs. Jimmie Sistrunk, Miss Patti Quenan, Bastrop; Miss Ann Rinehart of Monroe and Mrs. Lloyd Sauer of Crossett. Randy Moore, Miss Mary Ann Woods and Freddy Woods distributed pink rice bags to the guests. Others assisting with the courtesies were Mrs. Donald M. Quinn Jr., Mrs. Warren E. Stevenson, Mrs. Wilson Cain, Mrs. Warren Storment, Mrs. L. E. Bentley Jr., Mrs. A. E. Stephenson and Mrs. Anthony Pierce.

For their wedding trip to Colorado, Mrs. Adcock changed to a suit of lemon yellow silk shantung with white blouse, and white accessories. Mrs. Adcock is a graduate of Bastrop high school and received her bachelor of arts degree in elementary education at Northeast Louisiana State College where she was a member of Phi Mu sorority and Student Louisiana Teachers Association. Also a graduate of Bastrop high school, Mr. Adcock is presently a business administration major at Northeast. The couple will be at home at 112 Julia Street in Bastrop.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES LEROY TEDDLIE

Teddlie-Ritter Vows Read In Our Lady Of Fatima

Miss Evy Lee Ritter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Ritter Sr., 3202 Harrison, Monroe, became the bride of James Leroy Teddlie, Shreveport, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Teddlie of Metairie, in an all white wedding solemnized Saturday, July 3 in Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church of Monroe.

The Rev. George Martinez performed the double ring ceremony at 3 p.m. Traditional nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Della Williamson, organist and Mrs. Waymon Etier, soloist.

The main altar of the church was decorated with traditional arrangements of white California gladioli, agapanthus, Majestics and Fuji chrysanthemums in gold altar vases. Banking the marble altar were gold standards of matching flowers and gold urns of the white flowers were placed at the altars honoring St. Joseph and The Blessed Mother.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white silk organza over taffeta, designed with long pointed sleeves of the organza and a scalloped neckline bordered with Alencon lace. The controlled bell skirt in street length was defined at the back waistline by a flat bow. Appliques of lace encrusted with sequins were scattered over the skirt. Her veil was a lace Mantilla worn over a matching pillbox. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white bride's roses, stephanotis and a white cattleya orchid with touches of lace to match her mantilla. Tucked into her bouquet was an heirloom handkerchief carried by her mother and grandmother at their weddings.

Miss Patricia Trudnak, maid of honor and the bridesmaids, Mrs. Claude Veach, sister of the groom and Miss Melba Biggs wore white dresses of Spanish design shadow lace over taffeta with dome skirts defined by back bows. Scoop necklines and cap sleeves accented the taut bodice. They also wore Mantillas of matching lace with white gloves and shoes completing their attire. They carried cascade bouquets of tinted pompon chrysanthemums with the honor attendants' in soft blue: and the bridesmaids' of delphinium and larkspur blue respectively.

Serving as best man for his brother - in - law was Claude Veach and groomsmen were E. L. Ritter Jr. and James Colbert Ritter II, brothers of the bride. Ushers were K. E. McDonald Jr., brother-in-law of the bride and Billy Joe McKinney.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Ritter was wearing a beige knit suit with blue hat and bone accessories. The groom's mother wore a gown of pink Irish lace with white accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white Japhet orchids.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Oliver Road. Guests registered at a table covered with a white linen cloth, garlanded with boxwood roping and decorated with a crystal compote holding a hogarth arrangement of white roses and pompons with a miniature bride and groom.

Draped with a floor length white organdy cloth and garlands of boxwood, the refreshment table held a silver punch bowl at one end, balanced opposite with a Victorian arrangement of bride's roses, lily of the Nile, pencil Calla lilies and pompons in a silver and crystal epergne. The bride's table was covered with a satin cloth, overlaid with white organdy, and was centered with the tiered wedding cake, wreathed with miniature foliage and clusters of orange blossoms.

Mrs. Albert Theriot and Mrs. Jay Fisher served the cake and presiding at the punch bowl were Mrs. Ed Lohan and Mrs. A. L. Embanato. Mrs. Adolph Durocher, aunt of the bride, presided at the guest book and others assisting in the courtesies were Mrs. T. V. Gardner, Mrs. Blanche Loviza, Mrs. K. E. McDonald Jr., Mrs. E. L. Ritter Jr., Mrs. W. E. Whetstone and Miss Diane Fisher.

For their wedding trip to Florida the bride traveled wearing a beige linen suit with imported silk blouse of brown and beige tones. Her accessories were bone and she wore the orchid from her bouquet. The couple will be at home at 1189 Fairfield Manor, in Shreveport.

VEGETABLE CURLS

Use a swivel-blade vegetable parer to have paper-thin, long wide pieces of carrot to add to a tossed salad. If you like, you can roll up each carrot piece, secure with a toothpick and soak in ice water. When the toothpicks are removed, there will be carrot "curls" to add to the salad.

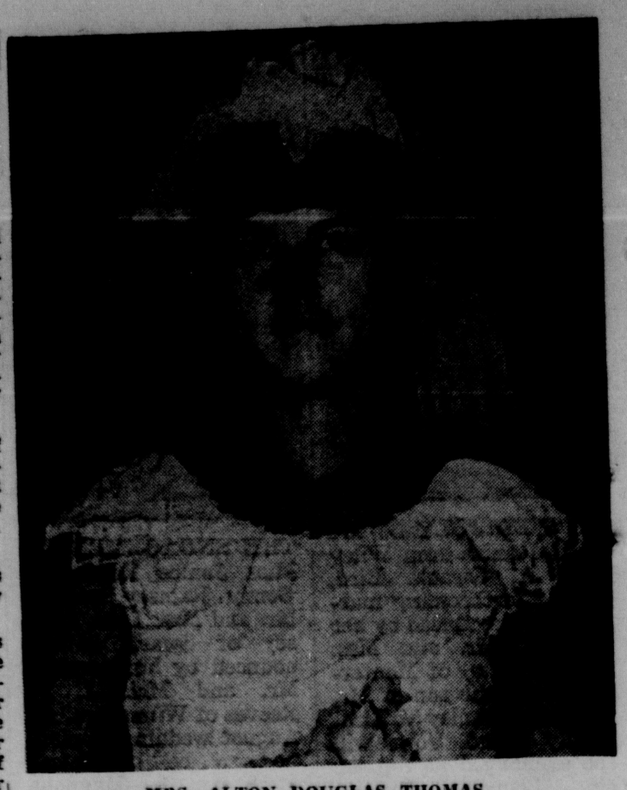
Couple Wed In Double Ring Rites



MRS. ALTON DOUGLAS THOMAS

Pink California gladioli and stock formed a background setting at the altar of Ridge Avenue Baptist Church, West Monroe for the wedding of Miss Diana Lynn Carpenter and Alton Douglas Thomas on Friday, July 9. Rev. H. L. Sampson performed the double ring vows at 7 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Carpenter, 2315 Clover Drive, West Monroe and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Thomas of Shreveport.

Traditional wedding selections were rendered by Mrs. Larry Maxwell, organist.

Mr. Carpenter gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a street length dress of imported white lace and a shoulder length veil attached to a white satin rose which formed her headpiece. Her bouquet was of pink sweetheart roses and fleur d'amour. The bride wore a cameo ring which was a gift to her grandmother Carpenter from her grandfather following their wedding more than 50 years ago.

Mrs. Neil Gunn, matron of honor, wore a pastel pink silk dress with matching veiled pillbox and carried a bouquet of white and pink carnations.

Serving as best man was Neil Gunn and ushers were Dee Faircloth and Melvin Shows.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church social room. For the occasion the bride's mother wore a pale blue dress of linen and lace with accessories to match and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother chose a floral silk in pink and blue on white background with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The lace-covered bride's table was centered with an arrangement of white chrysanthemums and pink carnations. Miss Mary Lou Perry served the tiered wedding cake and Miss Betty Waller presided at the punch bowl. Miss Linda Teddlie was at the bride's book and tea girls were the bride's twin sisters, Denise Ray and Wanda Fay Carpenter and Kay and Jo Thomas, sisters of the groom.

The couple will be at home at College Manor Apartments in Monroe. The bride was graduated from West Monroe high school, attended Northeast Louisiana State College and is employed in Monroe. A graduate of Byrd high school, Mr. Thomas will graduate from Northeast in May, 1966.

At this time of year, every day, no matter the temperature, is a good day for a party. The calendar is crowded with affairs large and small, formal or informal; celebrating arrivals or departures or weddings or birthdays. Out of town visitors are always inspiration for a round of gaiety, and never more so than when the guest is a former Monroyan "back home" for a few days.

Guest of BELLE and BILL HUSTED this week has been MYRTLE (Mrs. H. P.) DURRETT of Heytown, Alabama. Myrtle, a former resident of our city, arrived last Friday and is to be here through next week. Saturday morning, Belle invited about thirty friends for coffee and a "reunion visit" with Myrtle. Bouquets of roses decorated the Husted home, with Eclipse in brass containers in the living room; Tropicana roses in a footed silver bowl on the dining table.

TONY and BILL VEAZEY INVITED Myrtle and the Husteds for Sunday dinner at Bayou DeSiard country club . . On Tuesday, ELSIE STANDLEY was hostess for luncheon at Admiral Benbow . . . Wednesday's hostess for luncheon was PAT SUGAR, who entertained at Bayou DeSiard country club . . . and that evening, Myrtle was honored by ORA Thompson with dinner at Holiday Inn.

Luncheon at home was the compliment planned by JEANNETTE RODDEY Thursday, honoring Myrtle. Eight guests were seated at a table centered with magnolias. The table was laid with white cutwork mats purchased by the hostess during her recent trip to the Philippines. The menu included fish casserole, with three-way beans in sour cream, tomato aspic, peach pickle, hot rolls, and orange sherbert for dessert.

Speaking of Jeannette and Otha Roddey, they returned last Saturday from a week at Laguna Beach, Fla. Others in the party were MARTHA and LON HEUER, their children, HOLLY, BETTY, LONNIE and JEANIE; and GLORIA BINGHAM and her children, BECKY, BLAIR, and THERESA.

Awaiting the Roddeys on their return was his niece, MRS. HERMAN WAYGEN of Oconomoc, Wisconsin. With her children, JON, THOMAS, and BARBARA, she has been here for a week's visit.

Here this week from Duluth, Minnesota, has been SUSAN BAILESS, guest of the BOB CHABOTS. Ann left yesterday to drive her visitor back home.

Last Friday morning NELL FAUCETT and MARY WEBSTER welcomed Susan with a morning coffee hour. The party was held at the Faucett residence, which was decorated with bouquets of mixed zinnias. The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of grapes, lemons, and ivy in a hurricane glass. On the menu were shrimp pinwheels, cucumber sandwiches, cheese straws, and Brownies, with a choice of lemonade or coffee. Twenty ladies were invited to meet the visitor.

A low arrangement of yellow and white daisies with ivy centered the table when ANN BELL was hostess at luncheon Tuesday honoring Susan. Flanking the centerpiece were beaded wax birds. Six attended this party at the Chateau.

Susan was also complimented by JO MATTISON, who entertained at luncheon at home. Eight guests were seated at a table centered with vari-colored zinnias in a silver chafing dish. The menu included ramekins of crab and shrimp; molded salad of apricots and pickled mandarin slices; asparagus; hot biscuits with mayhaw jelly; and for dessert, whipped strawberry creme.

Others who honored Susan during her visit here included JEAN HUENEFELD, CLARA MONTGOMERY, JEANNE and BOB DOWNING, LINDA DANSBY, COURTNEY and BOB CURRY.

Former Monroyans FAY and J. D. WINK have been here visiting from Westfield, New Jersey. They have been guests of their parents, the J. D. WINKS, in West Monroe; and her mother, MRS. E. B. TODD on Rochelle avenue. Last Friday night, DIBBLE and BARNEY PATE invited ten couples for dinner with these visitors . . Members of Monroe Literary club, of which group Fay was formerly a member, were invited for a conversational hour Thursday afternoon at the home of JANE PLITT.

A bridge-luncheon was the compliment planned by VIRGINIA HARGROVE and FRANCES ADCOCK, who entertained for Fay Wednesday at the Hargrove residence. A bouquet of salmon-colored zinnias was placed on the console in the entrance. White snapdragons were used in a footed antique berry bowl in the living room.

A low mass arrangement of blue ageratum, yellow marigolds, and vinca centered the dining table. In the den, where individual tables were set up, flowers were white phlox, zinnias, and petunias in an iron-stone pitcher. The salad plate included tomato aspic with shrimp salad; marinated cucumbers and avocados; and finger sandwiches of Bleu cheese with bacon. Individual chocolate pies were served for dessert . . . Two tables took part in the bridge games, with the honoree winning high. Second prize was taken by JEANNETTE AYCOCK.

Also complimenting Fay was a morning party Friday at the home of MARGE MULLENS. Co-hostess was CHARLOTTIE DENT. A footed ironstone container filled with vari-colored zinnias centered the refreshment table. With a choice of lemonade or coffee, guests were offered iced appricot bars, cucumber sandwiches, tiny chocolate drops, and hot cheese-bacon crackers. Thirty guests were invited.

No better occasion than a birthday for a party—particularly a surprise party. JANET MORGAN was so honored for her Friday birthday last week. LINDA DANSBY was hostess at her home on Gouville drive. Pink roses and sweetheart roses were used with green grapes in a silver and crystal epernge which centered the table. Individual places, laid with pale pink circular mats, were marked with tiny arrangements of pink roses and dwarf crepe myrtle in cut glass salt cellars. Mirrored placecards, with painted pink roses, completed the picture.

The menu served to six guests included molded cranberry rings filled with chicken salad; pear and apricot quarters; peach halves with pimento - stuffed grapes. For dessert, birthday cake, of course; angel food iced with whipped cream and coconut and centered with a July angel figurine. Janet received a tray of gifts with her dessert.

Another birthday girl honored this week was CLARICE JOHNS, whose Monday sewing group met on Wednesday for lunch, celebrating her day. This party was a Dutch treat at Bayou DeSiard country club. Eight ladies were seated at a table centered with purple phlox. Clarice's gift was a set of six demi-tasse cups.

A similar party was planned for MARNIE MOUK on her birthday Thursday. Her sewing group, which during the winter meets at the SOL COURTMAN camp, met at Bayou DeSiard country club for luncheon and bridge.

Home again after a fabulous trip East are Adelaide and EVERETT LAWSON. They travelled to Virginia, where they were guests of Adelaide's cousins, the H. F. AMES and JOHN TRANTS, at their home, Willow Hill Plantation. This, acclaimed as one of the loveliest of the James river plantations, is on tours of historic homes in the Tidewater area. The original house was burned and a new one built in 1840. This is the present structure, which was extensively restored in 1940.

Outstanding features of the house include beautiful wrought iron galleries; fifteenth century panelling brought from a French chateau; a signed Chippendale mantel and Aubusson furniture from London; original Queen Anne chairs; bullet holes from Civil War muskets. Four "dependencies" are joined to the house by pierced brick walls.

While staying at this wonderful old place, Adelaide and Everett visited other James River plantations; attended a recital of colonial music at the Capitol and an organ concert in old Bruton Parish church in Williamsburg; sailed down the James on the Trant yacht. They enjoyed one of the Williamsburg Inn buffets, and Everett played the famous Golden Horseshoe Golf course.

Fifteen girls of the high school set were invited for watermelon at the home of CYNTHIA TERZIA Tuesday afternoon. MARY PRICE was co-hostess for the affair between the hours of four and five. Guests gathered on the pier at the bayou bank. Decorations included streamers of pink and red crepe paper which wrapped the railings. Watermelon designs ornamented placemats and napkins which were used for serving.

Prio to their depature for camp, five girls were honored at a supper party given Monday afternoon by BRENDA and SUSAN BELL. Honorees were VEE MARSHALL and HOLLY HEUER, who are going to DeSoto in Mentone, Alabama; and MOLLY McDONALD, DEBBY and BRENDA HAMILTON, who are to leave this week for Waldemar at Kerrville, Texas.

Crepe paper streamers and balloons decorated the carport at the Bell residence on Deborah drive. Supper was served from a picnic table centered with a flower basket filled with an all-green arrangement. Croquet, badminton, records were the entertainment. Some thirty girls were invited between four and six-thirty.

Members of Bayou DeSiard country club are looking forward to an old-fashioned summer party this coming Saturday night, July 24. Plans for the evening include a shrimp supper, followed by an informal dance. Serving will begin at 6:30 p.m., with dancing in the ballroom beginning at 8.

Here are two poems by Ogden Nash, suitable for the season. First, his "Song of the Open Road" for vacationers:

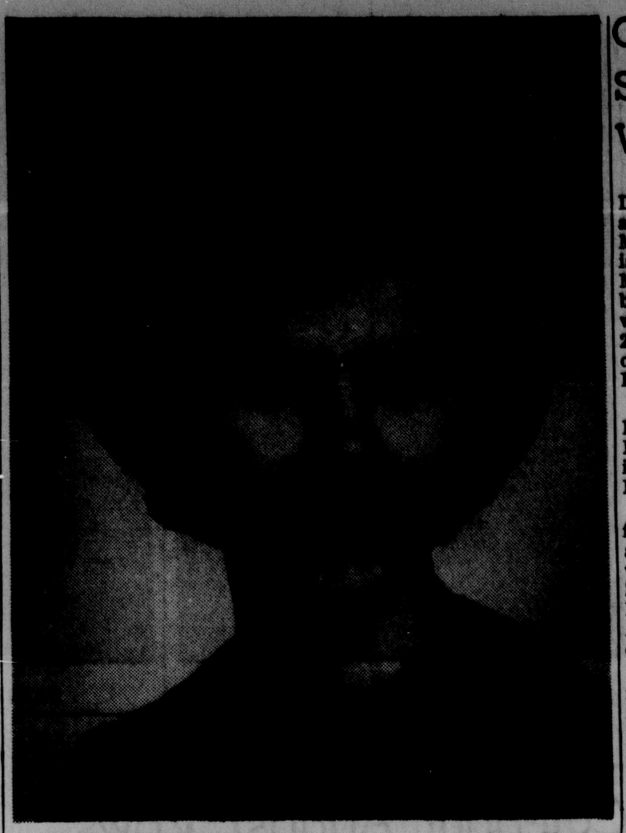
I think that I shall never see
A billboard lovely as a tree.
Indeed, unless the billboard fall
I'll never see a tree at all.

And here's another, this time aimed to the ladies and their vacation attire:

Sure, deck your lower limbs in pants;
Yours are the limbs, my sweeting.
You look divine as you advance-
Have you seen yourself retreating?

NEWEST SKIRTS

Skirts full in the front and straight in the back will make the fashion scene for fall and winter.



ANNOUNCEMENT of the engagement of Miss Franes Gail Blair to Jerry Calvin Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Allen, West Monroe, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Blair of West Monroe. The wedding is planned for August 6 in the First Baptist Church, West Monroe with Dr. Clifton Tennison officiating.

Naval Pin New Accessory For Bare Midriffs

NEW YORK (AP) — If you wear bikinis or other kinds of bare midriff fashions, a naval pin may soon become as basic to your wardrobe as pearls are to the little black dress. That was the news at the accessory show held Tuesday in conjunction with the New York couture group's fall fashion previews.

The "insy" pin — there are also "outsy" models for people with a reverse kind of naval construction — was introduced by a lively, otherwise bare-bellied miss with $1,350 worth of gems in her navel. When she was not huddled in a fur jacket, she shimmered and shook, to test the staying power of her new jewelry while dancing.

It stayed. The manufacturers explained, "It is a masterpiece of engineering, a plunger type with a spring lock and foam rubber backing." Still, a watch fob type safety chain was attached to the lady's low-slung hip-hugger pants pocket.

The model, Diane Glynn, vowed she was "quite comfortable" in her new jewelry. "I don't feel anything at all," she said.

The 18-carat gold pin set with 12 diamonds and two manmade sapphires is the size of a quarter. Less ornate ones are available at prices starting at $200. The pins may be worn on suit lapels during cold weather.

Other fashion news at the accesory show included:

— grab bag purse that stretches to accommodate increasing wealth.

—Fabric gloves that have the look of leather ones, in rich hues, and which grow to all lengths.

—Teen umbrellas in sports car colors and op art patterns; also cocktail umbrellas topped with glittering rhinestones.

PBX Club Adds New Member

Mrs. Lila Monahan became a new member of the PBX Club of the Twin Cities when it met Tuesday night in the home of Mrs. Stella Sterling in Monroe.

During the business session plans were discussed for the coming year's programs. Refreshments were served at close of the meeting to Mrs. Monahan, Chris Futch, Mary Jo Williams, Camille Hathaway, Audrey Trout and Vivian Foster.

Couple Lists September 11 Wedding Date

Engagement of Miss Sylvia Dorothea Binkowski and Thomas Jerry Vining, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vetch Vining of Oakdale, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Hyron Willburn of Houma. The wedding will take place September 11 at 2 p.m. in Sacred Heart Catholic Church at Oakdale with Rev. Bede Becnel officiating.

The bride - elect has chosen Miss Juanita Carol Thomason of Minden as maid of honor. Serving as best man will be Larry Michael Rogers of Springhill.

Miss Binkowski graduated from Lake Charles high school and is attending Louisiana Tech where she is a member of Delta Zeta social sorority; Phi Kappa Phi scholastic fraternity and Alpha Tau Delta senior women's honorary.

Mr. Vining was graduated from Oakdale high school and from Louisiana Tech and is a member of Arnold Air Society. He will be commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Air Force on August 21.

Following their marriage the couple will reside in Ruston.

PARTY DESSERT

For a delightful dessert, fill the cavities of cantaloupe halves with small sugared strawberries and top with small scoops of ice cream; or, if you like, you may reverse the process and top the ice cream with the berries.

DESSERT WINES

MISS SYLVIA DORATHEA BINKOWSKI

PET FOUNTAIN

Something called a "Pet Fountain," a device that assures a thirsty cat or dog of a constant supply of water, is now available. The device resembles most watering dishes in shape, but there the resemblance ends. The dish can be connected to any standard water outlet by a hose and an adjustable water level control allows the owner to set the mechanism so that the dish will always be full to the brim for large dogs.

NELMARIE GAMMILL

Your Problems

It's Not Kosher To Flaunt New Faith

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Several weeks ago you published a letter from a woman who complained because her sister-in-law brought a steak over to her house one Friday night and fixed it for herself while everyone else ate fish.

I grew up in a home that was strictly kosher. My sister Sadie married out of the faith, which almost broke my parents' hearts. Nonetheless, they have accepted Sadie's husband and are very pleasant to him.

Whenever Sadie has the folks to dinner she fixes fish for them but she always has a pork roast or baked ham for her own family. Last week I told her I thought she should stop it. She replied, "A grown woman is free to do as she pleases in her own home."

Is she right or wrong? — SADIE'S SISTER

Dear Sister: A grown woman IS free to do as she pleases in her own home, but a grown woman should also be considerate of her parents. They know she married out of her faith. She does not need to remind them by hitting them over the head with a pork roast every time they have dinner at her home.

Consciously or unconsciously Sadie is reminding her parents that they no longer have control over her. It's time she knocked it off.

Dear Ann Landers: You said that even if the parents and grandparents were born in Poland the kids would be American because "nationality means the nation of your birth." Several people in our office think you're wrong.

If an American traveling in Africa has a baby is the baby African? Or if a mother cat has kittens in an oven are those kittens cookies?

Let's hear from you again on this subject. — IN DOUBT

Dear In: The World Book Encyclopedia dictionary says, "Nationality is the condition of belonging to a nation. A legal relationship between an individual and a nation, involving allegiance on the part of the individual and protection on the part of the state. There are a number of technicalities and every country sets up its own regulations covering its nationality."

Many countries, including the United States, grant nationality (and citizenship) to anyone born here — yes, even if the child was born while Mom was just passing through.

And now about that cat who was born in the oven — no, she is not a cookie, even if her mother was a tart.

Dear Ann Landers: Ten years ago my brother died. My husband had just gotten out of service. He took over my brother's business which was then barely breaking even. My brother's widow was to be a 50 per cent partner and my husband was to own the other 50 per cent for running the business.

My husband has built the company into a very successful enterprise. Three years ago my brother's widow married a jerk who is forever sticking his nose into the business. He knows nothing about the business but he pesters my husband to do this and do that.

Is it fair that my husband should continue to knock his brains out for those two? He is getting headaches from the brother - in - law and so am I. Any suggestions? —ANNOYED

Dear Annoyed: Your husband can (and should) do either of two things. He can have an attorney draw up an "I'll buy you or you buy me" agreement or he can effect a dissolution of the business and start again on his own. No one should remain in business with a partner he doesn't want.

New Fabrics Provide Wearer Carefree Life

Clothes have come out of the summer doldrums at last .. s-t-r-e-t-c-h, permanent press, "wet look" finishes, interestingly textured performance-conscious blends .... all these and more, have been developed by the many fabric technicians.

These wondrous new fabrics have given apparel designers inspiration for a whole raft of exciting new fashion looks. All but gone from feminine wardrobes are the dreary overblouse and matching skirts or shorts separates, and plain maillots and dressmaker swimsuits.

In their place a whole world of fabulous young fun clothes that make the most of the feminine curves, clothes that are designed to attract admiring glances, give maximum of comfort, yet require only minimal care.

Louisiana Tech Students Calendar August Vows

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan D. Watson of Ruston announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Ann Watson to Charles Michael Miles of Lake Charles. He is the son of Mrs. R. W. Farrar, Lake Charles and J. E. Miles of Houma.

The wedding will be an event of August 28 at 6:30 p.m. in First Baptist Church, Ruston. Officiating will be Dr. Clyde Fant.

Attendants have also been chosen by the betrothed couple. Mrs. Truman Collins of Tallulah will serve as matron of honor; Miss Brenda Guimbellot of Tallulah, bridesmaid and Miss Debbie Williams of Winnsborp, as junior bridesmaid. Jimmy Greeson has been named as best man and chosen to serve as ushers are Danny Watson, brother of the bride-elect and Rodney Driggers.

A graduate of Tallulah high school, Miss Watson is presently a junior at Louisiana Tech where she was Sweetheart of Tau Kappa Epsilon for 1964-65.

Mr. Miles was graduated from Lake Charles high school and is a senior at Louisiana Tech where he is a member of Tau Kappa Epsilon. Following their marriage the couple will reside in Ruston.

Geoffrey Beene Against Short Skirts En Masse

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

"Of course I show very short skirts. That doesn't mean I think every woman should wear them."

Women wondering whether they should go in for above-knee skirts can take heart from the firm opinion of top designer Geoffrey Beene. Winner of all three of fashion's top awards, the Coty, the Neiman-Marcus and now the Cotton Council, soft-spoken Mr. Beene thinks clothes should be chosen to suit the individual woman.

"I design individualistic clothes, so I would never prescribe a single look for all women. A designer always shows in terms of the ideal, and even with some exaggeration. You're getting a point across."

The fashion point, in Geoffrey Beene's eyes, is that top interest is the strong point in current fashion. Thus shortening represents a trend to eliminating the skirt.

"What you have now is a long body line, no division in the middle, with a little bit of skirt. But this has to be proportioned to the figure — and the legs. If a woman has good legs, then the short hemline is fine, but not otherwise. However, she may well use a slightly shorter hemline than she would have if we hadn't made the point with short skirts."

Mr. Beene pointed out that the wife of his business partner, Ben Shaw, had bought at Andre Courreges, in Paris, where the whole short trend started. A small woman, she was able to wear the sample Courreges as they were.

"But Courreges himself said he had no intention of all women wearing this length. Certainly women like Mrs. Lyndon Johnson and the Duchess of Windsor aren't wearing their Courreges designs above the knees!"

Geoffrey Beene has an unusually solid grounding in anatomy because he began a career in medicine. Coming from a family of Louisiana doctors, he went to Tulane University for the purpose, abandoned it when he realized he was more interested in the fashion sketches he kept making all over his chemistry and biology notes.

But the anatomy knowledge has stood him in good stead. His clothes, which began to attract attention only about five years ago, are both feminine and "active," in that they are always easy and comfortable on the body.

"A designer doesn't have to think so much of age groups any more," said Mr. Beene, whose boyish looks and dark-rimmed glasses still make him look more like a medical student than a top designer. "Women are active at all ages, and they like fashion. But not fads. If you're paying good money for good clothes, they should last a while."

Cotton, of course, is a fabric native to his Southern background, and he is enthusiastic about its current high-fashion possibilities.

"I went into the mills and worked with the fabric designers to get what I wanted. My clothes are usually rather architectural, so I wanted fabrics with body and texture, rather than sheers."

For Geoffrey Beene, design grows out of the fabric, which he often drapes in the bolt to get the feel of what it will do.

Miss Alford Is August Bride-Elect

An August bride-elect is Miss Patricia Ann Alford whose engagement to James Standish, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Stearns of West Hartford, Connecticut, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Alford of Winnsboro.

Vows will be exchanged on August 1 at 4:30 p.m. in Beouf River Baptist Church with Rev. Meredith Hair officiating.

Miss Alford has chosen Miss Gussie Simon of Winnsboro as maid of honor and bridesmaids will be Mrs. Carlyle Williams, Winnsboro; Mrs. Clyde Arnold, Monroe and Mrs. Kenneth Slomasky of Bastrop. Candlelighters will be Judy and Janet McVey of Laurel, Miss., and acting as flower girl will be Laura Thompson, with George Allen Price as ring bearer.

Mr. Standish will have as his best man William E. Krohner of West Hartford. Named as ushers are Jerry D. Alford, brother of the bride-elect; Larry F. Bradley and James Richard Doughty, all of Winnsboro.

Miss Alford graduated from Ogden high school and will graduate July 31 from Northeast Louisiana State College with a B. A. degree in elementary education. The prospective bridegroom has been attending Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, majoring in electrical engineering.

Candlelight Ceremony Unites Couple

In a candlelight ceremony at the First Baptist church of Marion on Friday, July 9, Miss Donna Lynn Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim B. Johnston of Marion became the bride of Terry J. Akin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Akin of Farmerville.

Baskets of white gladioli and asters enhanced with greenery were placed at the base of candle trees holding lighted tapers which flanked an ivy entwined arch adorned with white roses where the couple exchanged vows. Rev. Oscar Bradford performed the double ring ceremony at 7 p.m.

A prenuptial concert was rendered by Mrs. Robert Gulley, who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Larry Alford. Candles were lighted by J. M. Baker and Tommy Head.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor length gown of white peau de soie with Chantilly lace bodice, styled with scalloped neckline, etched with seed pearls. Long sleeves tapered to points over the hands. The full skirt featured a front panel appliqued with motifs of the Chantilly lace, and back fullness terminating in a chapel train. Her bouffant veil of French illusion fell from a crown of iridescent sequins and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnations atop a white Bible.

Mrs. J. M. Baker, sister-in-law of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a short gown of blue satin with matching slippers and a headdress of a self fabric bow with blue tulle veil. Bridesmaids, Miss Patsy Johnson and Miss Carolyn Johnson, were dressed identically to the honor attendant, in yellow satin with matching slippers and headdresses. They carried bouquets of white carnations with streamers matching their dresses. Miss Nancy Brown, cousin of the groom, was flower girl, and wore a frock of white peau de soie with a wristlet of yellow carnations.

Mr. Akin served as best man for his son. Groomsmen-ushers were J. M. Baker, brother of the bride and Tommy Head.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Johnston wore a sheath of blue lace over taffeta with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother chose a beige lace dress with matching accessories.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the banquet room of the church. The table covered with white net over yellow taffeta, was centered with an arrangement of white althea and phlox. A rice bag tree of yellow and blue rice bags adorned the guest book table, covered with white net over yellow taffeta, and presided over by Miss Linda Andrews, Alexandria. Presiding at the reception table were Mrs. W. E. Bowen and Miss Davey Ann Head of Marion, Miss Gretchen Ross and Miss Sharon Friou of Sterlington. Miss Betsy Ross of Sterlington, was tea girl.

After a short wedding trip to Hot Springs, Ark. the couple is at home in their new home near Farmerville.

Fashion Sense Is Individual

For a beautiful look, follow your fashion sense. If you're a classicist at heart — and the "Way-out" seems too far-out for your tastes — remember that style is flexible, and individuality is the real pace-setter today.

Although some women enjoy out-modding each other, with the ye'-ye' look of latticed stockings and mock Mary-janes, you may be the chic stand-out of your crowd in basic solid skimmers and simple closed pumps.

Salad Dressing

You can prepare a delicious dressing for wedges of lettuce by mixing mayonnaise with chili sauce, the pulp and juice from finely grated onion, lemon juice and a dash of cayenne.

Frozen Berries

You can freeze some choice strawberries with their hulls left on and use them as garnishes for desserts.

NELDA JEAN ENGLISH

Oak Grove Church Scene Of Wise-Layton Nuptials

Solemnized in First Baptist Church of Oak Grove on July 9 at 7:30 p.m. was the wedding of Miss Lorraine Layton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Layton of Oak Grove and Charles Walter Wise, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Huggins of Pineville.

The Rev. C. N. Welch of Bastrop, performed the double ring ceremony beneath an arch of ivy which formed a setting for the satin prie dieu. Arrangements of white and pink chrysanthemums were used on the chapel altar.

Prenuptial music was provided by Mrs. Doris Buckley, who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Wendell Lewis.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-skirted gown of white lace over satin with scoop neck and short sleeves. Her shoulder length veil of illusion fell from a crown of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink lilies of the valley centered with white orchids.

Attending the bride were Mrs. Glenda Tally, matron of honor and Mrs. Sue Boyte, bridesmaid. They wore street length dresses of pink satin with matching veiled hats and carried bouquets of white carnations with pink streamers.

Wayne Holly of Oak Grove served as best man and Tom Tally was groomsman. Ushers were David Barron of Monroe and John Wood of Winnsboro.

The bride's mother wore a navy blue linen sheath with white accessories and the groom's mother chose a pink suit with white accessories. Both wore white corsages.

Following the exchange of vows a reception was held in the recreation room of the church. The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of pink and white carnations flanked by lighted candles in silver candelabra. Miss Connie Kovac served the tiered wedding cake and presiding at the punch bowl were Mrs. Brown Nelson of Lake Providence and Mrs. J. M. Walker, Bastrop, sisters of the bride. The guest book, presided over by Miss June Robinson of Bastrop, sister of the bride, was placed on a table, covered with a pink cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink and white stock and a memory candle.

For travel when the couple left on a short wedding trip the bride was wearing a brown and beige linen suit with beige accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College. Mr. Wise attended Northeast and is presently employed in Monroe. The couple will be at home in Rayville where the bride will be on the faculty of Rayville high school.

Canned Candles Now On Market

At long last — we know you've been holding your breath — you can buy purple eggplant candles in a can. And, if that doesn't impress you, how about canned candles, specially perfumed, in the shape of mushrooms, owls and even asparagus clusters?

Actually, canning candles is not so ridiculous as it sounds. Cans safeguard the wax and seal in the scents of the candles. More elaborate shapes and designs are made possible because cans protect candles from damage so successfully. In fact, the U. S. candle market, Chemical Week reports, literally is changing its shape. A Houston firm is working full blast at molding candles in the shape of vegetables, fruits and animals. Plain old stick candles are out; bananas, poodles and corn cobs are in.

THIS MOST popular split level of the last five years has an unconventional exterior, plus an interior which places the living room two steps down from the dining room and includes a number of other interesting features.

AT LOWER LEVELS, recessed entry provides practical shelter for the trip from front door to garage. There is choice of routes to upper level, either from foyer or from recreation room.

Most Popular Split Level House Has Unusual Design

By ANDY LANG

Regular readers of the House of the Week series know that we have been doing continuous research on the most popular homes presented in recent years. One of these proved to be a one - story, expandable house; another, a two - story traditional.

This time we are bringing you the most popular split level of the last five years. It's a somewhat unconventional split level, both inside and out.

A different approach to basic split - level living produces a balconied dining room and a glamorous living room. The living room, usually on the middle level with the dining room and kitchen, has been dropped down to within two steps of the first level. The relationship between dramatized by liberal use of decorative wrought iron railing.

Unusual Appearance

Architect Herman H. York has given the outside of the house an unusual look for a split level by blending the upper level roof into the roof over the lower section and extending a horizontal cornice line across the entire front in an unbroken sweep.

Another special feature is the outdoor dining deck directly behind the kitchen and on the same level. It's connected by stairway to the ground level terrace behind the recreation room and makes a pleasant setting for outdoor relaxation or dining, with food service possible from either the kitchen or an outdoor barbecue in the rear yard.

There are 1330 square feet of living area on the bedroom and living levels, with 508 square feet in the foyer, recreation room and study on the entrance level. With a two-car garage, the over-all width is 55' 2". This drops to 45' if only a one-car garage is included. The depth is 33' 5".

With the entrance on the ground level, a minimum of grading is necessary on level or gently sloping lots. The entrance is sheltered and nicely framed on both sides. Inside the front door, both the coat closet and powder room open on the foyer.

The long sight lines from the foyer through the recreation room and its sliding glass doors to the rear terrace, and across the 18-foot living room, contribute to a feeling of spaciousness.

Entrance

Family areas of the house can be reached from the front entrance without entering the living room. A half - flight of stairs from the recreation room reaches the dining room alongside the kitchen door. And a U-turn at that point takes you the rest of the way up to the bedroom level.

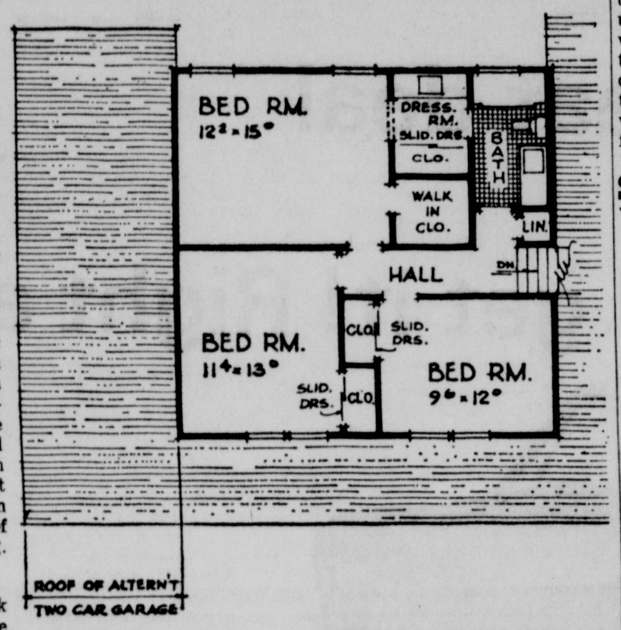
Off the recreation room to the left is a small study, guest room or fourth bedroom. The kitchen is 18 feet long, with ample space for family meals.

On the upper level are three bedrooms and a large bath. The bath is accessible from the hallway and from the master bedroom through a compact dressing room. The master bedroom also has a walk-in closet.

Architect York has indicated stone on the front facade, but brick may be substituted without materially changing the character of the design. Should a fireplace be desired, a chimney can be located outside the living room wall at the side.

The small basement can be reached either from the recreation room or from an exterior entrance sunken at the right rear corner of the house.

A full study of this architect - designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-92.



BEDROOM LEVEL: Master bedroom is equipped with walk-in closet and dressing room which leads to main bath.

Calls For Revision

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A call for a revision of the movie industry's Motion Picture Production Code has been made by Bishop Gerald Kennedy of the Los Angeles area of the Methodist Church. In an article in "The Journal" of the Screen Producers Guild, he said the code was "unrealistic."

"While motion pictures because of their uiversal appeal and family appeal must never have quite the freedom of the stage, I do think they need more freedom than a literal interpretation of the Code will give them," Bishop Kennedy wrote.

Garden Center Notes

Themes Vary In Designs

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

"Designs With Themes," could easily be the title of the program last Wednesday, presented by one of our most talented arrangers in Fifth District, Mrs. Claude Thomas of Bonita. Mrs. Thomas is a student flower show judge, and also president of the Bastrop Garden Club. She has won many top awards in flower shows and, best of all, she expressed her feeling for her work as, "I just love flowers."

This remark was proven by Mrs. Thomas by the way she handled many varieties of plant materials that she had so patiently dried over a period of time of collecting and growing. Also, the containers used were improvised from unheard of things collected from the work shops and junk yard.

She has a flair for doing the unusual — thus adding distinction to each design. She mentioned that after a hard day of household chores and church duties, even baby sitting with grandbabies, she found great relaxation in simply making a flower arrangement. This is where therapy plays a great part in this wonderful art. You see why it is taking a leading role in the life of today's woman.

When enjoyment is found in such a rewarding art the artist is always eager to share her pleasure with others — so, Mrs. Thomas said she greatly enjoyed bringing this program for us because she was anxious to display these things that gave her such pleasure. Isn't this an unselfish attitude?

Eight Designs

I'm sure many did enjoy her eight designs featuring line, massed line and massed design using dried plant materials in unusual containers. I hope you were among the many who saw the show and came by the Garden Center in Sears to see these. For the benefit of those who did not I will describe one from each of the lines.

One of the most striking line designs was one made from twisted garlic branches (two stems) with the pods attached, placed low at the bottle neck. theme for this design was "Silver Slippers." Rhythm was very evident in the design in the curving lines. The material was sprayed with silver paint, and the container also. For focal interest a small cluster of purple zinnias (dried), was placed low at the bottle neck. For accessories and further interpretation two small silver slippers were placed at the base of the design. A round wooden base sprayed with blue paint was placed beneath the entire composition creating good balance and unity. This arrangement won the Award of Distinction in a recent flower show.

Roadside Thistles

Massed-line design was created from roadside thistles as the primary line in a very unusual container, a plough disc that was mounted on a round iron wheel cap, all sprayed with copper paint. The secondary line was a twisted weed vine that was found growing on a fence post. The tiny hair-like roots were left attached, giving a softness to the dried vine. The thistles of the primary line were massed in a group, low in the design, for focal balance. These inspired the name for this design, "You Wouldn't Dare." If you have ever handled thistle you will readily understand this title because you'd know that it is very difficult to handle this prickly material without getting stuck with the tiny thorns. For balance within the line molten rocks were placed opposite the dried thistle blooms in the lower part of the design. Since all the materials were dried and the browns and tans alone would have been too monotomous, two colorful pheasants were added within the line. These also gave life and interest to the dull color scheme of the design.

Southern Gardener

Cyclamens Planting Time

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

This is the time to order and plant the corms of the hardy cyclamens. The extra cool weather seems to have fooled a big patch of the Neapolitan cyclamen in my woods into flowering early this year. A few corms have even sent up some of their beautiful mottled leaves.

Just last week did I receive my catalogue from Oakhurst Gardens, Box 444, Arcadia, California. The mystery of why we did not receive catalogues from there after the printers' strike last year seems to be cleared up: Mr. Giridlian charges 35 cents for the new catalogue. You will learn a lot about many new plants from this booklet, however, as it is probably the only source of many of the hard-to-get plants in this country.

It seems in order to repeat the directions for growing the little cyclamens that we have given in the column in former years. Plant them on a slope in half and half coarse grit and woods soil into which you have stirred a double handful of bone meal per bushel. Then crumble up the leaf mold that is right under the surface of last year's leaves with your hands and scatter it over the bed an inch to two inches deep. Finally, scatter a dusting of bone meal over the leaf mold.

Planting Corms

If you follow the directions in the catalogue for Cyclamen neapolitanum, you will set the little flat corms by simply pressing them into the loose soil until the top of the corms is barely below of the level of the soil. This one roots entirely from the top of the corm. It sends its fine hairlike roots out from its top all through the leaf mold on the surface. Be sure you do not plant C. neapolitanum with its roots down.

All the other cyclamens send roots out from the bottom of their corms and some from the sides as well. These should be planted just as you would other bulbs, but an inch of soil above the top of the corms is plenty. The leaf mold mulch on top will give them plenty of winter protection, and anyway, most kinds are very winter hardy.

Blooming Time

Cyclamen neapolitanum starts to bloom here in the South about the 4th of July. The flowers increase in number through the weeks of hot summer until they make a pink or white ground-cover. In all the drought and heat, they are a delight. When September rains come, the foliage appears and gradually hides the flowers which keep right on coming. This one is the easiest cyclamen.

Cyclamen europaeum blooms in the Fall. The flowers are crimson and sweet scented. Cyclamen cilicicum has pink flowers in the Autumn, and both of these have evergreen foliage. As Winter comes on, they are more and more welcome.

Post And Rail Fence Adds Special Touch

By VIVIAN BOWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

There are so many emergency ways to improve the appearance of your home. Little inexpensive touches than can add large amounts of romance, solidarity, tranquility, whatever you wish to convey as a sort of personal trademark when someone looks toward your house.

A fence has the instantaneous effect of setting your home apart from others. It is your castle and grounds, no matter how small. Yet many people never think of a fence as an improvement. The type of fence that suits the area is the best choice. A tiny plot of grass in front of a small house may need nothing more than an ordinary privet or hemlock hedge. But a stone wall a couple of feet high or a low wood fence can offer easy upkeep all the year, with instant charm.

Matching Fences

A post and rail fence is a great idea in deep country. It is no longer considered gauche to paint a post and rail fence white. Now that we have more colorful houses instead of all-houses with matching fences. Pink house, pink fence.

Long entrance walks to a home should be more than dirt or patchy grass paths. Why dispel the lovely image you've evolved indoors by a sloppy entrance. Blue chips and gravel as paths are hard on ladies' leather heels, but interspersed with stepping stones, logs sunk in vertically, wooden slabs or blue slate, can serve very well. Slate or cement slabs may be set into grass for a pretty effect. Some people like to use creeping thyme around stone steps. At lakes and sea spots a variety of exotic plants in different shadings can supply interest along walks and garden paths.

Almost any wood house can be improved by shutters. In particular, dark green-black shutters set off a white house and the muted sea-green shutters add considerable charm to weatherbeaten shingles or a gray house.

Stucco

At the seashore, stucco looks beautiful painted pink or blue and what an improvement over dirty white. Some may complain about the cost of painting but colors don't fade that rapidly and even in fading have a certain charm.

Outdoor lighting can add posh effects to the tiniest home. One of the prettiest can be a tree shadow on the side of a house accomplished with ground lighting. But small, low lights along a garden or entrance path can serve for utility and beauty.

Can Be Overdone

As in everything else in decorative use, lighting can be overdone. It can reflect good and bad taste. As an architect pointed out recently, it is going to take a lot of doing to retrain our eyes. We have so long been accustomed to junk that poured out of factories. But everyone in decorative fields believes that manufacturers are making more of an effort to produce betterlooking objects. Many didn't know the difference themselves, but now, working hand and draftboard with good designers, they aim to improve the American scene.

Some homes are blighted in such a way that there seems to be nothing one can do to improve the outward appearance without a sizable chunk of money. Porches that have taken a beating for many years are likely to be in bad disrepair. But such proches may be turned into veritable gardens in summer with small plants and trees in pots that may be moved indoors during cool spells or cold weather. Put them on dollies for easier rolling if you haven't the strength to lift large pots.

Trees in Pots

As a truckman said recently if he had to pick the new status symbol for the home, it would be trees in pots. It is a principal part of his work today—moving trees into homes for use on porches in summer.

One beat-up porch seen recently had rows of geraniums up each side of its steps. The porch itself was loaded with plants started by the homemaker from scratch: avacado (5 feet) lemon (3 feet) gardenia bush, waxed begonia (3 feet) all reflecting expert care since they were grown in a moderate to cold climate. In between were ferns and smaller plants. But the point is all were conversation pieces that distracted the eye from the messy porch—warped floor, peeling paint, and so on.

Even the front door had a small hanging basket from which spilled trailing lantana and variegated ivy. Along the hanging porch roof in direct sun were some lovely tuberous begonia plants in dazzling colors.

Start Early On Compost

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

If you, Mrs. Gardener, want decomposed humus for next winter's landscape planting, start a compost pile now so you can add vegetative waste throughout the remainder of the summer.

Nature has been making compost for many years. This is why many virgin woodland soils are deep, loose, rich and dark. With a properly mixed compost, you can duplicate what nature has been doing for hundreds of years.

Many wastes at home can be used for making compost. Some of these include vegetable table waste, grass clippings, weed and leaves. Layers of soil should be added with these materials. Build a box to a height of three or four feet to retain the compost.

Locate it on a well drained area of the yard. Water the pile every few weeks. Air must be present for micro-organism activity. Hasten the decomposition and increase the value of the compost for planting beds by adding nitrogen to the mixture. Compost is invaluable for building a better soil for plant growth.

This week our own Clara Dee Drew will represent Ouachita in the annual State Farm Bureau Queen's Contest. Clara Dee is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Drew of Arkansas Road, W. Monroe. Clara Dee placed first in the parish contest over 16 entries last January. We are delighted to have such a lovely young lady to represent Ouachita Parish.

Your home demonstration agent plans to be on hand to witness the crowning of the Miss Farm Bureau of Louisiana for 1965.

Home, Garden Week

There's a full week of up-to-date information for you, Mrs. Homemaker, if you attend Home and Garden Week at L.S.U. August 17-19.

New developments in residental heating and cooling systems will be given by Charles E. Severance and Dennis R. Stripe, specialists in engineering at Agricultural Extension Service at L.S.U. Different types of electric and gas heating and cooling systems will be discussed. The important factors to consider when selecting a system will be emphasized.

Decorative and useful lighting to enhance the home will be demonstrated by Miss Leonera O'Neal and Miss Mildred Trimble, home service advisors for a utility company.

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, enjoy painting then you will surely want to attend the session on landscape and still life painting. Painting of landscapes and still life will be discussed and illustrated by Mrs. Hardy McKnight of Broussard. She will talk about composition, materials and oil painting techniques.

Cleaning Upholstery

Cleaning upholstered furniture in the home is not a hard job if you know your fabric and follow recommended cleaning methods. All upholstered fabrics should be vacuumed first to remove loose dirt. After thoroughly vacuuming pile fabrics, brush against the nap with a whisk broom or brush. If the fabric is of a fast color, sponge with a clean cloth dipped in a solution of warm water and detergent. Then wipe lightly with a cloth dampened with warm water. To get the nap back to the upright position, brush the surface in the direction of the nap. Flat surfaces should not be cleaned with soap and water. After the surface has been vacuumed, go over the piece lightly with a cloth dampened with a solvent cleaner.

SPENDING PLAN

Do you, Mrs. Homemaker, have a spending record? The family is in a very real sense a business and just as in business, the family needs profits to invest for future use. Unless the family's income is far above the average, half of it is used for daily living expenses such as food, clothing, medical care, automobile upkeep, contributions and family recreation. Often mistakes in buying these goods and services add up to big money leaks. A spending record will help you, Mrs. Consumer, to hold down expenses. The high food bill can be reduced by planning what is to be bought and then controlling the buying. Many ready - prepared foods are expensive and can be eliminated from the budget.

A Thought

The most agreeable companion is the one who would not have you any different from what you are.

CURTAIN CALL

By JACQUE BIEGENWALD

Little Theater members of the past season received their mailers last week, announcing performance dates for "The King and I," July 23 through August 1.

Our summer productions are not limited to the membership, though. For the benefit of those who may be new in town, or who have just discovered the Little Theater, we'd like to extend an invitation to attend one of the performances of "The King and I." You'll be pleasantly surprised with the professional caliber of the acting and singing, the set design and the costumes.

We have ordered the lovely costumes for this production from a commercial costumer in Houston, and they are a sight indeed to behold. Those who gasped in awe at the elegance of the "My Fair Lady" costumes will be just as pleased with these oriental beauties. They are expensive, though, and that fact, along with having to hire an orchestra, makes the ticket prices necessarily higher than for a straight play.

Comparison

But, many of our musicals have been compared very favorably with professional groups who charge two and three times the price for tickets that Monroe's Little Theater must. And here, you may choose from a wide range of dates as well as choose your own seating arrangement.

Ticket prices have been set at $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for students for the Friday and Saturday performances, and $3 for adults and $2 for students for the other evenings and and the matinee, scheduled for Sunday afternoon, August 1, at 2:30.

You may make reservations by writing the theater; Strauss Playhouse, Box 848, Monroe, La., or by phoning the box office beginning Tuesday, July 20, 323-1235.

A new man in town, especially an interesting one, is always a good subject for conversation. And when he lands the biggest plum of the summer, the lead role in "The King and I," then, he becomes a subject for Curtain Call!

Seriously, though, many of this column's readers have asked to know a little more about the king, Ed Beakey. Ed has been in Monroe since March, and is a native of New York. He confesses to a fondness for the gypsy life and has spent the past few years traveling, but, decided recently to light for awhile.

He chose Monroe, fortunately. He is an account executive for one of the local radio stations, and does his traveling now, "from one end of Monroe to the other," according to him.

Previous Experience

Ed has had previous experience in acting and singing, put to good use now in "The King and I." You'll enjoy his performance.

In the audience on last Sunday afternoon to see three of her grandchildren perform was Mrs. R. L. Vining, a lively 86 years old. Mrs. Vining came from Oak Grove to see Bruce, Dixie and Ken Harrison in "Mr. Popper's Penguins." With her was Mrs. Johnny Morgan, the children's aunt, who came all the way from Atlanta, Ga., for the event. What a delightfully devoted family!

A word of thanks is due the ladies who manned the box office during that children's show. All mothers of the cast members, they are: Mrs. Harry Stone, Mrs. Sam Harrison, Mrs. Claude Fuller, Mrs. G. L. Shepperd, Mrs. Earl Hoodemaker, Mrs. Harry Lemert and Mrs. E. J. Kramar.

A new tile for the green room wall has been purchased for this play. It will read, appropriately enough, "To Dr. George Brian, the Emperor Penguin, from the cast and crew of "Mr. Popper's Penguins."

Local Couple Has Run-Away Party!

BATON ROUGE, La. (JTP)—Last week a local couple parked the children with a babysitter and treated themselves to a long, leisurely weekend just for two at the Jack Tar Capitol House.

They checked in their comfortable, air conditioned room after lunch Friday to get things off to a delightful start at their Friday evening Run-Away Weekend Party.

Saturday, they enjoyed a leisurely breakfast together, then chose between a round of golf or a sightseeing tour of our Capital City.

That night they had dinner in the gracious Azalea Room, then had a ball—a real ball—at a "fais-do-do" party on the pool deck.

They wound it up by sleeping late Sunday, enjoying another leisurely breakfast. It was marvelously inexpensive—as low as $37.90 for the two of them.

If you too would like to have a Run-Away Weekend Party just call 342-7721 for reservations or write.

BOOKS

Keen Observer Of Contemporary

THIS SCHEMING WORLD. By Saikaku Ihara. Charles E. Tuttle Co., Rutland, Vt. $3.50.

Scattered all through this diverting bouquet from a literary bypath are things that might have been written here and now —

"The woman of today, under the influence of the styles of the gay quarters, dress exactly like professional entertainers." Mink and all?

Or "He resolved to deal strictly on a cash-and-carry basis, and would do without fish at table unless he was sure he could afford it." Credit card troubles?

But the fact is that Saikaku's amusing view of human frailties was published first in 1692. In a translation by Masanori Takatsuka and David C. Stubbs, it comes through loud and clear as a life-like portrayal of individual human characters.

For those interested in the literary perspective, it should be noted that in 17th Century Japan the old warrior class had been thrown into eclipse by the merchants, city dwellers and bourgeoisie. The author came from that milieu and soon was creating a new type of literature about it.

In this work, Saikaku's main concern is with the events related to New Year's Eve, when by tradition all debts were supposed to be settled. Many of his characters are dodging bill collectors, thinking up excuses for delay or just disappearing.

Among them are status-seekers, four-flushers and fakers who would be familiar in today's backgrounds. Others are greedy — like "Octopus" Hachisuke, who sold seven-legged octopuses and outsmarted himself when he sliced them down to six.

Saikaku's eyes and ears are as sharp as Chaucer's, and he is a far better realist than the English character-writers of the 17th Century.

Guide To Good Reading

Use Of Library Is On Increase

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

As the book collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library increases in number and quality, so does the use of the library. At the end of June the total book collection of the library numbered 102,876 volumes and during that month the library showed its largest circulation figure. A total of 74,240 books were borrowed by patrons of the library during the month of June. By branches the circulation was as follows: Monroe — 26,289; West Monroe, 19,216; bookmobiles — 14,095, Anna Meyer — 8,494 and Carver— 6,146. The total circulation for the first six months of the year was 317,060 books, this is more than the circulation for the entire year of 1959 and gives a good picture of the rate at which the library is growing.

New books added in the past week will interest many readers. A delightful book for light summer reading is "The Summer of Sir Lancelot" written by Richare Gordon. Those who have enjoyed his Doctor books will not want to miss this one. "The Edith Wharton Reader" edited by Louis Auchincloss is an excellent selection from this writer who understood the novel of manners so well. "O Be Careful" by Lee C. Reed is another bit of froth which will be enjoyed by women readers. "Goodbye Rosie" by James McPherson is a very slight novel, but some readers will enjoy it. "The Death of Dickie Draper" by Jerome Weidman is a collection of ten short stories. They are beautifully written and deserve the attention of the discriminating reader. There are two new mysteries for those who enjoy this medium; "Death in the Wrong Bed" by Stewart Farrar and "The False Beards" by Alan Williams.

There are many interesting books in the non-fiction department. "Summoned by Books" is a delightful collection of essays dealing with the joys of being a librarian written by Frances Clarke Sayers. "Useless Facts of History" by Paul Steiner is an interesting book of general information. "Humanism and Imagination" by G. R. Elliott is an excellent book of philosophical essays. "Phenomenon of Man" by Teilhard de Charden is a very fine book of philosophy.

There are some lovely new books in the fine arts section. "America's Gardens" published by Better Homes and Gardens is a perfectly lovely book of famous gardens in this country. "Walls; Enrichment and Oranmentation" by David B. Van Domelen is an excellent discussion of architectural ornament. "Redoute's Roses and Redoute's Fruits and Flowers" are reprints of two lovely works published in 1817. For sports enthusiasts there are several new books "Best Sport Stories of 1965" edited by Irving Marsh is always a popular collection. The Complete Book of Surfing" by Peter L. Dixon will be popular with young people who are planning to take their vacations at the coast. "Dance and Be Charming" by Roni Dengel and "Dance Year" by Romano Calvi will interest dancers and for baseball enthusiasts there is "'Now Wait A Minute Casey" by Maury Allen.

There are some most interesting books of description and history. "Welcome the Wayfarer" by Nancy Phelan is an account of a trip to modern day Turkey. "The Warrior Herdsmen" by Elizabeth Marshall Thomas is a very interesting account of the Dodoth people who live in Uganda. "Arlington; Monument to Heroes" by John Hinkel is a very interesting book about the Arlington National Cemetery. "Roots of American Culture" is a study of American life and customs by Constance Rourke. "Is Paris Burning" by Larry Collins gives a vivid picture of Paris during the last days of the German occupation, when Hitler had ordered it's destruction and is a book which will not soon be forgotten. Another book of interest about World War II is "The Battle of El Alamein" written by Fred Majdalany. "The Berlin Wall" by Pierre Galante gives a good account of the wall which separates East and West Germany.

"The African Nettle" by Frank S. Meuer pictures the dilemmas which face an emerging continent. "Williamsburg in Virginia" by Rutherford Goodwin is a very fine account of the restoration of Colonial Williamsburg.

A-Bomb's First Test Recounted

THE DAY OF TRINITY. By Lansing Lamont. Atheneum. $6.95.

Lamont's suspense - building story, filled with a multitude of details and personal reactions, is a re-creation of the test firing of the world's first atom bomb, just 20 years ago.

There is a prelude in which the author sets the scene of the big blast, with only 10 seconds of countdown remaining. Then Lamont sketches the background of war, politics and scientific discovery which led to the creation of the famous Manhattan District.

Next he relates the secret recruiting of physicists and other specialists, the establishment of a colony of frantically busy men at Los Alamos, N. M., the technical dilemmas they faced, and finally the preparations at Trinity — near a mountain range which the Spanish explorers had named Journey of Death — for touching off the 5-ton plutonium device at the top of a tower.

The account of the actual firing weaves together the personal hopes, fears, qualms and experiences of a whole host of men who took part. They included two leaders, General Leslie Groves and Robert Oppenheimer; such scientists as Kenneth Bainbridge and Donald Hornig, and even an humble enlisted man, T-5 Leo M. Jercinovic. But there also were two others — traitor Klaus Fuchs and spy David Greenglass.

The author concludes the story by reviewing the decision to use nuclear warfare; the bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki; the security case against Oppenheimer in 1954 and his vindication in 1963; and the scientists' long dialogue over the moral issues involved.

Lamont writes in a newsmagazine style which heightens the dramatic effect of an already dramatic event. His book is a tense, complete history of a fateful project.

BANCROFT OPPOSITE ROBARDS

NEW YORK (AP) — Anne Bancroft comes back to Broadway next season opposite Jason Robards in "The Devils." In the drama, based upon Aldous Huxley's "The Devils of Loudun," she will portray the prioress of an Ursuline Convent.

Miss Bancroft, who won a Tony and an Oscar for her stage and film performances in "The Miracle Worker," last appeared here in "Mother Courage."

by Jan Bank

By ROBERT H. EVANS

As today's guest columnist for vacationing Jan Bank, I have her permission to stray from the subject matter that usually fills her space. Actually, it is not roaming too far afield to discuss the significance of art in the environment we create for ourselves in our homes, our places of business and our public buildings.

Starting with the premise that art represents man's effort to express his creative instincts and to bring esthetic qualities into his life, it is hardly necessary to prove that art, in the broad sense, need not be restricted to museums and galleries. Surely man is just as interested in surrounding himself with an atmosphere of beauty where he spends his working and leisure hours.

Too often, however, so-called practical considerations interfere with allowing art its rightful place in the design and construction of new buildings. When funds run short in the finalization of building plans, it is all too easy to sacrifice "frills" in favor of utilitarian requirements. Most of the time, the frills are the embellishments that the architect, designer or decorator wanted to add to give esthetic appeal to the structure or furnishings.

Whether a home or business building is involved, we are going to have to live with it for many years, so perhaps if the question arises, we should ask ourselves if all the economies ought to be concentrated in the artistic area. In the long run, it might be better to get by with a little less space or some other functional sacrifice, rather than eliminate elements of style and beauty that will make the structure esthetically satisfying over its life.

If I am not mistaken, the federal government deliberately allows a small percentage of the total construction cost of its public buildings to be applied to artistic touches, so as to insure that this aspect will not be neglected. And many private builders, of course, devote much thought and money to making their edifices landmarks of beauty.

The Seagrams Building in New York City comes at once to mind as an example of willingness to forego valuable office space that could legally have been constructed, in order to produce a more handsome building. On Wall Street the Chase Manhattan Tower is not only architecturally magnificent, but made land available for an attractive plaza with trees and a sunken pool.

The Chase Manhattan Bank benefited art in another way. The upper floors are decorated with a collection of modern paintings that has become one of the most talked-about features of the entire building. Across the continent in San Francisco, the Crown Zellerbach Building also boasts an art collection in the executive suite.

Recently in Salt Lake City, I was impressed with the new Prudential Federal Savings Building. Erected around a hollow square, the structure includes a sunken garden across the full width of its street front. Out of this garden soar one hundred sculptured bronze seagulls affixed to metal columns rising the full 120-foot height of the building. I have no idea what this breath-taking effect must have cost, but I feel sure there were moments when it was nearly sacrificed in order to stay within budget. Yet for decades to come, this dazzling flight of seagulls will adorn the downtown district.

My argument is that utility alone is not enough to determine the design of a place to live or work. Often beauty and utility can be combined at little or no extra cost, but even when the esthetic adornments do represent added expense, they are no less justified than any other design feature if our lives are to be enriched and not impoverished by our man-made environment.

Annual Legion Convention Set At Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE (Special) — The 1965 American Legion State Convention, which annually brings together the largest gathering of American War veterans in Louisiana, will be held in Baton Rouge the weekend of July 22-25.

In making the official call of American Legion Post delegates, State Commander John Bailey of Baton Rouge said this year's conclave could be one of the largest and most exciting in years.

Representing The American Legion will be National Commander Donald E. Johnson of Cedar Falls, Iowa, and Mrs. Walter Wild Andrews of Jackson, Ala., National President of the American Legion Auxiliary. Both Legion leaders will address the delegates on Sunday, July 25.

Gov. John McKeithen, Sen. Russell Long and Rep. Hale Boggs, the latter pair generally recognized as among the most powerful political men in Washington, are also scheduled to appear on the various programs.

Gov. McKeithen and Sen. Long will address Legionnaires on Friday and Saturday, respectively, while Rep. Boggs will speak before Forty and Eight delegages on Saturday.

Retired Colonel Named General By McKeithen

Women's Army Corps Lt. Col. Emily V. Miller of Waterproof, recently retired, has been commissioned a brigadier general on the staff of Louisiana Gov. John J. McKeithen.

According to Ellen Bryan Moore, state register of lands, who presented the citation to Col. Miller in ceremonies at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., the governor recognized the colonel's "devotion to duty and her record of distinction of service to her country."

It was significant that the state official should have presented the honor, she noted, since she and the colonel were among the first Louisiana women to volunteer in World War II. They were members of the first women's officer training class at Fort Des Moines, Iowa.

Col. Miller's career of more than 20 years in the service includes several overseas tours of duty, plus assignments at the Pentagon in Washington, D. C.

She left after the Texas ceremonies for a trip around the world, but will return in the fall to make her home at Shreveport.

National Meet Of Delta Sigma Scheduled Here

The Beta Alpha Chapter of Monroe and West Monroe will host the national convention of the Delta Sigma Fraternity, a national high school service group, Thursday, July 22 through Saturday, July 24 at the Penn Hotel.

Registration for the convention will begin at noon Thursday in the hotel lobby, according to Ken Robertson, West Monroe High School student, president of the local chapter.

He said national officers expected at the convention include John Robinson of Newport News, Va., president; Charles Hepner of Valparaiso, Ind., secretary-treasurer; Al Kuhn of Sacramento, Calif., bulletin editor; and Jerry Rusk of Long Beach, Calif., historian.

Robertson urged all Delta alumni to attend the convention.

Church In Rome Honors Diplomat

ROME (AP) — A memorial service for Adlai E. Stevenson was held Saturday at St. Paul's Episcopal church in Rome.

Diplomats from many nations, Italian government officials and Americans living in Rome attended the service.

The Minneapolis Choralaires, a 27-member choral group from the Minneapolis-St. Paul area, currently on a European tour, sang during the service.

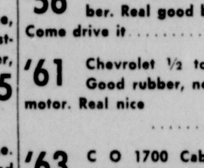
MIDWEST All-Purpose
Emblem of Quality and Satisfaction
"Fold Down" model Body
Here is a farm body that gives you the profit advantage of bigger payload space and a chance to profit from additional uses you've previously had to pass up. Hinged Stock Racks-light-weight "Swing or Slide" Stock End Gate — "metering" grain gate, lowest possible loading height, kilndried hardwood or all-steel floors, patented steel stakes, all contribute to lower operating costs.



WITH STOCK RACKS DOWN
With Stock Racks folded down and ventilator slats in place body is quickly converted to 37" grain body. Available with or without endgate body hoist.

WANT-AD WONDERS...

ADVENTUROUS CLUB STARTED WITH WANT AD

In 1961 four people wanted to visit a newspaper plant at press time and were told seats were available only to groups of 15. A Want Ad for more people received such enthusiastic response, they eventually became a corporation. Adventure On A Shoestring, Inc. offers entertainment at group rates, such as Big League Ball Games with visits with the team, Broadway Plays and visits with famous personalities.

Take it for a test drive.
See if you pass.
The real test in a Volkswagen is to see if you know what driving really is. (If you think you're driving in other cars, then what you do in a VW is something else.)
Most cars give you all the lively moving sensation of sitting on your living room couch. But the VW isn't sprung like other cars. Its 4-wheel torsion bar suspension (the kind they have in racers) gives you the feel of the road. You always know what's going on because you know what your car's going on.
And you know what's coming, because you'll see more road than you ever saw before. (Our sloping hood doesn't cut off your view.)
When you twist the steering wheel a little, you can feel the front wheels turn a little. So you know the car's doing just what you told it to. (Doesn't that sound satisfying?)
We can tell you that the VW parks shorter than other cars, and maneuvers more easily.
But we can't tell you how it feels to drive one.
So take the test.
Maybe you can tell us.

THESE ARE THE HOMES that Troy and Nichols Sells

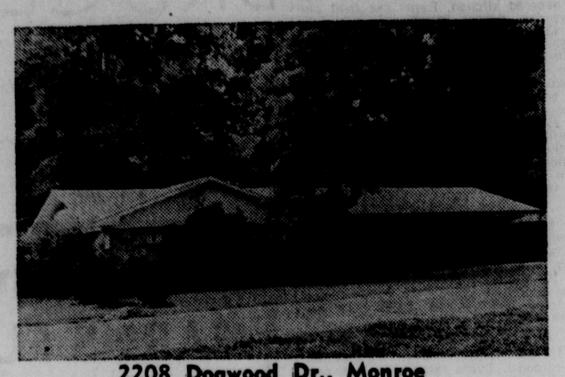
710 Loop Road, Monroe

A fine home with guest house. An acre of ground. Best location.

2911 Pargoud Blvd., Monroe

Modern styling nestled in sylvan setting. Gorgeous gardens.



2208 Dogwood Dr., Monroe

Comfort and beauty combined, and not too expensive.

THE ABOVE HOMES are just a sampling, of course. Big homes . . . Little homes . . . Expensive homes . . Modest homes . . . Homes to suit families of every size, taste and income. In fact, through cooperation with other brokers, Troy and Nichols can offer almost any property the owner is willing to sell. And on the other hand, every licensed broker is invited to help sell Troy and Nichols listings, giving the buyer the broadest selection of homes possible and the seller the largest number of people working to sell his home.

LOOK AT US! DON'T YOU KNOW WHO WE ARE? ISN'T THERE ANYTHING ABOUT US YOU RECOGNIZE?

SHOULD I? I MEAN...SHOULD I KNOW WHO YOU ARE? DEAR ME, MARCY'S ALWAYS SAYING I SHOULD HAVE BEEN A PROFESSOR—THE WAY I'M ALWAYS FORGETTING THINGS!

DOCTOR—ISN'T THERE ANYTHING YOU CAN DO? I MEAN HERE AND NOW?

I'M NOT A PSYCHIATRIST—I TOLD YOU THAT. BUT DURING THE KOREAN WAR I HAD SOME FIELD EXPERIENCE WITH AMNESIA CASES. IF YOU WANT ME TO TRY—

TRY!

MR. JONES, LISTEN TO ME CAREFULLY. I'M GOING TO HYPNOTIZE YOU. IT WON'T HURT, I PROMISE YOU. JUST SIT THERE, AND RELAX!

I'M GOING TO PUT YOU TO SLEEP, SIR...JUST CONCENTRATE ON THE SOUND OF MY VOICE...

...YOUR EYES ARE GETTING HEAVY...YOU CAN'T KEEP THEM OPEN...YOU ARE FALLING INTO A DEEP...DEEP...

...SLEEP... THAT'S RIGHT... SLEEP...

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:
When preparing eggs for my children, I first use an animal-shaped (or other odd-shaped) cookie cutter and cut out the center of each slice of bread.

I fry the egg in the empty space in the bread, turning the bread and egg over at the same time with a spatula to brown both sides of the bread.

I also fry the cut-out parts. The children have the toasted "animal" to eat with the rest of the egg and bread.

This egg idea is based on a hint someone gave in your column about cutting out a circle in the bread.

My children are now avid egg eaters!

Mrs. Bernard Shapiro

* * *

The eggs may either be fried whole or beaten as for scrambled eggs and poured into the center for cooking.

FOLLOW THE ARROWS

DEAR HELOISE:
The last time I bought my seven-year-old a pair of sneakers, she told me how to solve the problem of which shoe goes on which foot.

Her solution: Sew (or draw) an arrow on each shoe pointing toward the middle, so that when the shoes are on the correct feet, the arrows will be pointing toward each other.

A touch of embroidery thread enhances the appearance of the canvas shoes, and my daughter has not put them on the wrong feet since.

Debbie's Mother

TWO POTHOLDERS

DEAR HELOISE:
When you need an extra hot pad, cover a small magazine with aluminum foil and place a doily over the top.

For a quick-disposable or special-sized funnel, shape a piece of aluminum foil to the desired size. Works like a charm.

Mrs. Margene Emge

SPRINKLE LIGHTLY

DEAR HELOISE:
Use the sugar shaker from your stove set for your family meals and you will love it! The sugar shakes out evenly and it is always nice and clean. Especially wonderful for cereal.

Rachelle Sanders

FLOWER PROTECTOR

DEAR HELOISE:
I drove a one-inch stake into the ground at the corner of a small flower bed, leaving it about two inches above the ground. Keeps me from dragging the hose over the plants and ruining them.

Elaine

WINDSHIELD WIPER

DEAR HELOISE:
I have another good use for the nylon net you write about so often. When using this hint, one doesn't have to worry about the color!

When I clean the windshield of my car, or wash the whole car, I always use a small wad of nylon net to wipe off the B and B spots. (B and B spots are those made by bugs and birds.)

The nylon net is rough enough to clean the spot off and yet has never harmed the paint on my car.

I usually dampen the spot and use suds or cleaner, then rub it with the wad of nylon net.

My wife saves scraps of nylon net for just this purpose.

DEAR HELOISE:
If you are going for a long drive, and your husband wants to carry extra trousers along—I have this tip:

To hold trousers on a hanger so they won't slide off, anchor them with the round, curved part of a drapery hook . . . beats fastening them with straight pins. The drapery hook clamps the trousers securely to the hanger, and does not leave any mark.

Constant Reader

SUPER-SIZE CAKES

DEAR HELOISE:
I occasionally make a cake too large for any of my plates, such as for birthdays.

I cut the side from a heavy cardboard box and cover it with freezer paper or foil, and then with wax paper.

D. Johns

If you have a hint, problem or suggestion you'd like to share . . . write to Heloise in care of this newspaper.

A FAVORITE SPOON

DEAR HELOISE:
When heating vegetables or making gravies, sauces, or anything that calls for close attention . . . you have to stir and lay the spoon aside or it will sneak down into the pan the minute you turn your head!

I solved this problem by bending the end of a tablespoon (stainless steel is easiest) so that it will hook over the rim of the pan and now it is always there when I turn back to stir.

Margaret

PAINT BRUSH CARE

DEAR HELOISE:
I use one-pound coffee cans with plastic tops for soaking my paint brushes.

I cut two cross slits in the plastic lid, put the brush in the can, pour in some turpentine, and put on the lid . . . with the brush handle sticking up through the slits.

This way, the liquid is not likely to spill, the odors do not escape so easily, and the brush does not rest on the bottom of the can.

Velma H.

[illegible]

DEAR HELOISE:
To prevent eggs from cracking, pierce a tiny hole in the large end of the egg before putting it in the water. (It is the air inside that causes the egg to crack.)

To make the hole, take a long needle, hold it in the center with a pair of pliers and push the eye end into a large cork for safety's sake.

This needle gadget is also excellent for testing vegetables for "doneness" because it won't split the vegetable the way a fork tine sometimes does.

I stick the point of the needle into a smaller cork to keep from pricking my finger when it is in the drawer.

Mrs. Doris Ulback

NAIL-POLISH RACK

DEAR HELOISE:
I have found a use for my husband's old pipe rack!

I keep my nail-polish bottles upside down in it! Keeps the polish mixed, and it doesn't seem to get thick so quickly.

ON A QUIET SUMMER EVENING, IN LITTLE STATIC, SUDDENLY ROARING FIRE, DISASTER, AND UNMITIGATED TRAGEDY!!!

I HEARD "DADDY" PHONE GRAF AN' GUSSIE ... ER, MR. AN' MRS. GASTON! WHEN NOBODY MET US, I SHOULDA' GUESSED SOMETHIN' HAD HAPPENED!

NOBODY COULD HAVE GUESSED SUCH A TERRIBLE THING AS THAT FIRE NEXT DOOR!

NOW-NOW, TOM! WE DON'T KNOW IT'S AS BAD AS IT SEEMS!

OH, I SUPPOSE THERE COULD BE A SIMPLE EXPLANATION!

BUT YOU SAW THEIR CAR, BURNED TO A CINDER, RIGHT THERE IN THEIR DRIVE! IF THEY'D GONE OUT....

I SAY, LET'S NOT TALK ABOUT IT ANY MORE NOW! I'M MAKING SOME STRONG TEA! I THINK WE ALL NEED IT!

I SURE COULD USE SOMETHING STRONG, TONY!

I GUESS WE TOLD YOU, ANNIE; I'M TONY TWIDDLE AND HE'S TOM. YOU JUST STAY WITH US; WE'VE GOT SCADS OF ROOM!

OF COURSE! HOW LUCKY WE FOUND YOU THERE IN THAT CROWD!

IT SURE WAS LUCKY FOR US!

ARF!

SEE WHO THAT IS AT THE DOOR, TOM!

IT'S THE CHIEF! COME ON IN, GEORGE!

A TERRIBLE THING! GOT ANY IDEA HOW THE FIRE STARTED?

BE A WHILE BEFORE IT ALL COOLS ENOUGH TO TELL MUCH, IF ANYTHING!

EVEN THEN MIGHTY LITTLE LEFT TO GO BY! DON'T S'POSE YOU FOLKS NOTICED ANYTHING UNUSUAL BEFORE THE FIRE; EXPLOSION, MAYBE? ANY STRANGERS?

NOT A THING, GEORGE!

WE THOUGHT GRAF AND GUSSIE WERE GONE TO MEET ANNIE, TILL WE SAW THEIR CAR BURNING IN THEIR DRIVE!

HM-M.... SO YOU'RE ANNIE? SAW YOU AT THE FIRE!

WHEN NOBODY MET SANDY AND ME, WE WALKED: IT WASN'T FAR! GEE! WHEN WE SAW THAT FIRE!

DON'T S'POSE YOU NOTICED ANYTHING YOU REMEMBER SPECIAL?

JUST EVER'BODY RUNNIN' TO TH' FIRE ... ER ... 'CEPT ONE CAR; IT WAS GOIN' AWAY!

HM-M... GOT T'GO NOW! WELCOME TO STATIC, ANNIE! SEE YOU AROUND, EH?
